- Lot 2—$22.50 and $25 Values for $15
- Lot 3—$35 and $45 Values for $25

This is unquestionably the greatest waist sale that will be held in San Francisco this season, and we advise early buying.

LADIES' NECKWEAR SALE

$1.00 and $1.50 Values for 65c

A most attractive offer to every economically inclined shopper. Advance fall styles in Ladies' Tailor-made Silk Neckwear, some white, some black, nearly all beautifully embroidered; a very extensive variety to select from. Buying should be very brisk at the above price.

Cruiser California Returns.

The cruiser California returned yesterday morning from Santa Barbara, and in spite of the fact that a breakdown of her port engine prevented her from completing her official trial, she was given a noisy welcome by everything on the bay that had a whistle in commission. No time will be lost in making the repairs, but when she will be ready for the endurance test is not yet known. The damage is said to be not serious, and the fact that she broke down is no reflection on the cruiser's quality. When she is ready for the final test the trial board will be reconvened and the big cruiser will be put through her paces. It is not likely that she will return to Santa Barbara, as the waters outside the heads will be just as suitable for the purposes of the remaining test. As far as her trial went it was a success. The new cruiser is speedy, a good sea boat and handles well.

Policeman Laws Is Accused of Robbing Wounded Man.

Dinan Is to Force Prosecution

MRS. W. E. POWELL, young variety performer, whose lover was shot by her brother, William Bolte, pleads futilely with wounded man to say that she and not her kin fired shot.

JOHN E. LAWS

POLICEMAN "JACK" LAWS, CHARGED WITH HAVING ROBBED PATIENT ON OPERATING TABLE.

Policeman John E. Laws is accused of having robbed John Lovejoy, the bartender of Sacramento who was shot at the Terminal cafe Saturday morning, of $125. Part of the money was found on the policeman and other bills were found concealed under a cushion near where Laws had stood.

There is no sympathy in the department for the policeman, who is now lodged in jail in default of bail, charged with grand larceny. So strong is the sentiment of the force that Chief Dinan authorized the statement last night that a fund will be collected to hire a special prosecutor to conduct the case against the man, whose star was stripped from him breast yesterday morning.

Lovejoy was hurt seriously and at first it was thought his wound would be fatal. He and Bolte and Bolte's sister, Mrs. W. E. Powell, or Conine Glomonde, a girl who sang at such theaters as the old Haymarket on Mason street, were together in the cafe, and, according to the wounded man's story, he was trying to persuade the girl to return to live with him. He says he had known her for two years and went to her home, 4109 J street, Thursday night to talk with her. Mrs. Powell's family wished Lovejoy to marry the girl, a proposition which was not included in the man's code, he frankly admits. It being impossible to discuss the matter at the Bolte home, the man and woman agreed to meet Friday night at the Terminal cafe. Lovejoy ungraciously says the girl was willing to accept his view of their relations. They met as per agreement, and, to the accompaniment of drinks, the brother, sister and Lovejoy discussed the matter, quarreled, and then the shot was fired. There seems no doubt that young Bolte shot the man. Lovejoy says he did. He says, too, that the girl gave her brother the pistol.

LAW'S HAPPENS ON SCENE.

Policeman Laws, who has been attached to the Southern station since he ceased to be bailiff in Judge Conlan's court, was off duty at the time of the shooting. He had been drinking in the Terminal bar, and went to the room where the shooting occurred when he heard the pistol report. With Policeman Fulwider he removed the injured man to the P. & H. Hospital.

Laws was in charge of the patient from the time he left the Terminal saloon until he reached the hospital. While the patient was being undressed preparatory to the operation Laws busied himself counting the money of the patient. Dr. Hill interrupted him and counted the money himself. He found there was $625. Laws again made pretense of counting the money. In the meantime the operation was in progress and no attention was paid to Laws and the greenbacks. When the money was again counted by the steward, before being labeled as the property of the wounded man, it was found to be $125 short.

The park police station was telephoned to and Lieutenant Kelly responded. As soon as he arrived at the hospital he directed that no one leave until all had been searched. Policeman Fulwider, who accompanied Laws, the patrol wagon driver and all the hospital attendants expressed their willingness to be searched. Laws held back.

"Any person who does not wish to be searched here will have to go to the station," announced Lieutenant Kelly.

Dr. Hill kept his eyes on Laws while the search was being made and says he saw that individual throw some bills into the corner of the room. When it came time for Laws to be searched there was no money found in his pockets. He was compelled to strip to his undershirt, however, and as he did a $10 bill rolled out. A search was made in the corner where Dr. Hill says he saw Laws throw the money. There $60 in bills were found. A search of the floor was made and $20 more recovered. Laws was seen to slip his hand behind the covering of the operating table, and when this place was searched $20 more was found. This, with the money that tumbled from Laws' shirt, left only $10 to be accounted for, but a diligent search failed to reveal where this was hidden away.

CHARGED WITH GRAND LARCENY.

Laws' arrest followed immediately and he was charged with grand larceny. He was held before Chief of Police Dinan yesterday morning and doggedly stuck to the story that he was innocent. He was suspended from the force and placed in solitary confinement at the Park station.

Lovejoy's wound was over the heart, the bullet passing through the body and coming out under the shoulder blade. The man is 30 years of age and has a splendid physique. The chances are that he will survive his hurt.

William Bolte is 25 years of age and looks to be about 20. He is a structural iron worker. He was arrested immediately after the shooting and booked at the Park station on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. His sister spent the day in quest of bonds which would qualify for her brother's bail and late last night found J. Bassity and another man, who were willing to assume the responsibility.

The regard of the girl for her brother's plight was manifested immediately after the shooting. She came into the hospital where Lovejoy was being treated and greeted him with affectionate demonstration. When she left the place she turned and said appealingly, "You know, Jack, that I shot you."

But the little strategy did not work. Lovejoy charges Bolte with the crime. "He is an ungrateful brute," says the wounded man, intimating that he has helped the youth financially.

Yesterday afternoon Lovejoy told his version of the shooting in the presence of Captain Gleeson of the Park station.

LOVEJOY TELLS HIS STORY.

"I went out to the place at 4109 J street," he said, "where Mrs. Powell lived with her mother and brother and her small daughter on Thursday night to try to persuade the girl to come and live with me. Her folks didn't like the idea. They wanted me to marry her, but we weren't particular. We couldn't talk it over right at the house, so we arranged to meet at Haight and Stanyard last night. We went into the Terminal cafe and talked for a long while. I knew that the young fellow Bolte was after me to marry his sister. He was acting queerly, and as I knew he had a gun I watched him. I saw that the talk wasn't going to have any results, and I started from the place, still watching Bolte. Suddenly I saw him make a move and jumped at him, but he had shot. I saw that he pointed the pistol right at me, so I knew I was shot, but I didn't feel the bullet. I grappled with him, and we fell to the floor, I fighting until I had the pistol."

In discussing the crime of which Policeman Laws is accused, Chief Dinan said last night:

"I have never heard of crime should occur at all to be regretted, but that it should occur when all citizens are in need of police protection is deplorable. Laws will be treated just the same as any other man accused of a crime. Personally, I will assist in the prosecution of this man and will do what lies in my power to take the blameworthy out of the department. The offense is the most heinous that could be committed by a policeman and I earnestly hope that the punishment will fit the crime. The man is a disgrace to the department."

Captain of Detectives Duke is equally incensed at the accused man. He said:

"That a policeman should act in such a cowardly manner is hardly conceivable. He did not have even the courage of a highwayman or a burglar. This is one offense which cannot be condoned. For my part I will assist in the prosecution to the utmost."

OPEN HEARING OF LABOR DISPUTE, ARBITRATORS SAY

Justice Beatty, Father York and Francis Heney Meet and Discuss Procedure for Sessions.

In the chambers of Justice Beatty yesterday morning Francis J. Heney and Father P. C. York met with the Chief Justice to consider the form of procedure to obtain at the arbitration of the dispute between the United Railroads and its employees and the unions to which they belong. It was decided that there shall be no meeting before October 25, on which date Justice Beatty will return to the city from Los Angeles. All sessions of the arbitrators will be open to the public. The board will probably sit at 341 Fulton street.

On the opening day, which will be October 25 or 26, the attorneys for each side in the controversy will present their arguments, and the issue will be defined. The taking of testimony will then proceed. The evidence is expected to throw much light on the cost of living in this city at the present time.

RAGAN'S HORSE RUNS AWAY, BUT STOPS AT A SALOON

Health Officer Wonders Why Animal Tried to Enter Drinking Place and Wants to Sell Him.

Health Officer Ragan's horse took flight yesterday while standing in front of the Health Office on O'Farrell street, near Scott, and ran off. The frightened animal went down O'Farrell street and turned into Pierce, just missing a streetcar as it swung the buggy around the corner. The horse ran for a block and then made a direct line for Dinnigan Bros.' saloon at the corner of Ellis and Pierce streets. The animal ran up to the entrance of the drinking place, but slipped and fell before he could enter it.

Willing hands assisted the horse to rise and it was returned to the owner none the worse for his fall. The buggy was not injured. Now Dr. Ragan is wondering why the horse stopped at a saloon in his mad flight. Ragan surmises that the man from whom he bought the equine was a drinking man and was in the habit of visiting saloons while driving the horse. As Ragan does not want a horse with that kind of a reputation he is thinking of selling it to another drinking man.

NEW COOKS' ASSOCIATION.
The dissolution of the Cooks' Association in Judge Hart's court was not effected for the purpose of permanent disbanding the organization, as has been reported. Articles of reincorporation have been filed by the association, which desires to hold title to real estate—a right it did not have under its old charter. Jess Sanders, former manager of the association, says that it will occupy a higher plane in labor circles in the future than it did in the past.

Kaufmann's Good Shoes for Children

There are three essentials for children's shoes:
First and foremost—A proper and correct fitting shoe that will let the young foot grow as it should and does not deform and mar it for after life.
Second—The shoes should be neat and becoming so the children may take a proper pride in their appearance.
Third—Wear and durability; here lies the only true economy in children's shoes.
We have these essentials always in mind and embody them in our shoes. No other store takes such care and consideration nor offers the large assortment of children's shoes—it's our specialty.

Kozy Klog (Illustration No. 1). The tremendous success of this shoe for men, women and children is due to its absolute correct construction and comfort and its excellent wearing qualities.

Children's Kozy Klogs are the perfection of children's shoemaking; no finer or better shoe can be made. They are worth every cent of their price.
