Brave Motorman and Night Watchman Slain by a Desperate Bandit Who Makes an Early Morning Raid on an Oakland Electric Car

POWERS GOURAUD AND HIS WIFE SEPARATE.

Daughter of Former Amy Crocker and Actor She Eloped With Live Apart

STRANGE MIXTURE OF RELATIONSHIP

Mother the Wife of Brother of Man Whose Spouse Has Decided to Desert Him

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE CALL.
NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Although no legal proceedings have been begun, it is an open secret among their friends that a separation has taken place between Mr. and Mrs. Powers Gouraud, and after a sojourn of several months in Europe the husband returned to this city and took up a residence apart from his wife, who returned to her mother.

Powers Gouraud, son of Colonel George Gouraud, an American who for many years has resided in London, was rather less fortunate from a financial standpoint than was his bride, and his friends were free in their belief that he had made as good a match as had his brother, who had married the mother. Gouraud's marriage to his brother's stepdaughter made a rather involved relationship, as his sister-in-law became his mother-in-law and his brother became his stepfather-in-law, while his bride became his stepfather's sister-in-law, and by marriage she became sister-in-law to her mother.

WIFE RETAINS HER FORTUNE.

Gouraud has been on the stage. He has played in the chorus and in other parts "for experience," his friends say, but after the marriage such a necessity was no longer present, and the couple lived in a manner in keeping with the wealth of the bride. By the provisions under which she came into her fortune it was tied up in such a manner as to make her complete mistress of it, no matter what contingency might arise through marriage.

After a trip to Europe Mrs. Gouraud took up her residence with the Jackson Gourauds at 429 Madison avenue, while her husband sought his quarters elsewhere.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Gouraud are indefatigable "first nighters," but recently the young woman had accompanied them, rarely preferring the privacy of her home. She is described as being of rather a retiring disposition. It is a source of speculation among those who are acquainted with the circumstances as to whether heredity is playing any part in the young woman's career, for it is recalled that her mother has made three matrimonial ventures, each attended by romantic and unequal conditions.

DAUGHTER OF AMY CROCKER.

Powers Gouraud was married to Gladys Crocker, daughter of Amy Crocker and her husband, R. Porter Ashe, with whom she had eloped in 1882, in the Church of St. Clements Dane in London three years ago. After a more or less extensive tour the couple took up their residence in this city and they seemed happy. The good fortune of the Gouraud brothers, who had come to this city with nothing more than their names and the talents they possessed, in marrying two such wealthy women was long a topic of gossip.

Mrs. Jackson Gouraud is the daughter of E. B. Crocker, one of the financiers of the Union Pacific and an important member of the Crocker family of San Francisco. After her elopement with Ashe she obtained a divorce from him and in 1899 married Henry M. Gillig, commodore of the Larchmont Yacht Club. Their entertainments at Larchmont were unusually lavish. A divorce was decreed between the Gilligs in 1901 and that year in Paris she married Jackson Gouraud.

LEAGUERS DESERT HEARST TICKET BY SCORES.

Angered by Contemptuous Treatment Accorded the Delegates by Leader

UNIONS DISCOVER THEY WERE TRICKED

Hughes' Campaigning for the Purpose of Exposing Insincerity of Claims

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE CALL.
NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Indignant at the discovery that the Independence League is a corporation completely under the thumb of its protector, Hearst, and angered by the contemptuous treatment accorded by Hearst to the delegates sent to him in Elmira, scores of the members are breaking away and joining the Municipal Ownership League.

This organization, which supported Hearst for Mayor in the last campaign, and thus had an opportunity to become familiar with the selfish, insincere character of his candidacy, has declined to support Hearst for Governor. It chose as its candidate for Governor, Joseph W. Cody, who ran for Sheriff on the Hearst ticket last fall. It was found impossible, however, to obtain the large number of signatures required for the nomination of Cody as an independent candidate and in time to file them with the Secretary of State before midnight last Friday night as the law requires. The Municipal Ownership League, therefore, recruited by a heavy defection from the disgraced membership of the Independence League, has decided to support Hughes.

Anti-Hearst delegations from the Municipal Ownership League organization in the four Assembly districts of Queens County have called on Cody and pledged to him their hearty co-operation in the war upon Hearst's candidacy.

HEARST AND MURPHY.
 Hearst's deal with Murphy, which caused the repudiation of Hearst's candidacy by the Independence League party, resulted in a remarkable demonstration in the Central Federated Union this afternoon. The head Independence party convention reported to the union that its efforts to confer with the Independence League for the purpose of forming a fusion on Congressional and legislative candidates had been met with contempt. No conference could be arranged, he said, and the deal with Tammany was being extended to include Tammany candidates for the Legislature.

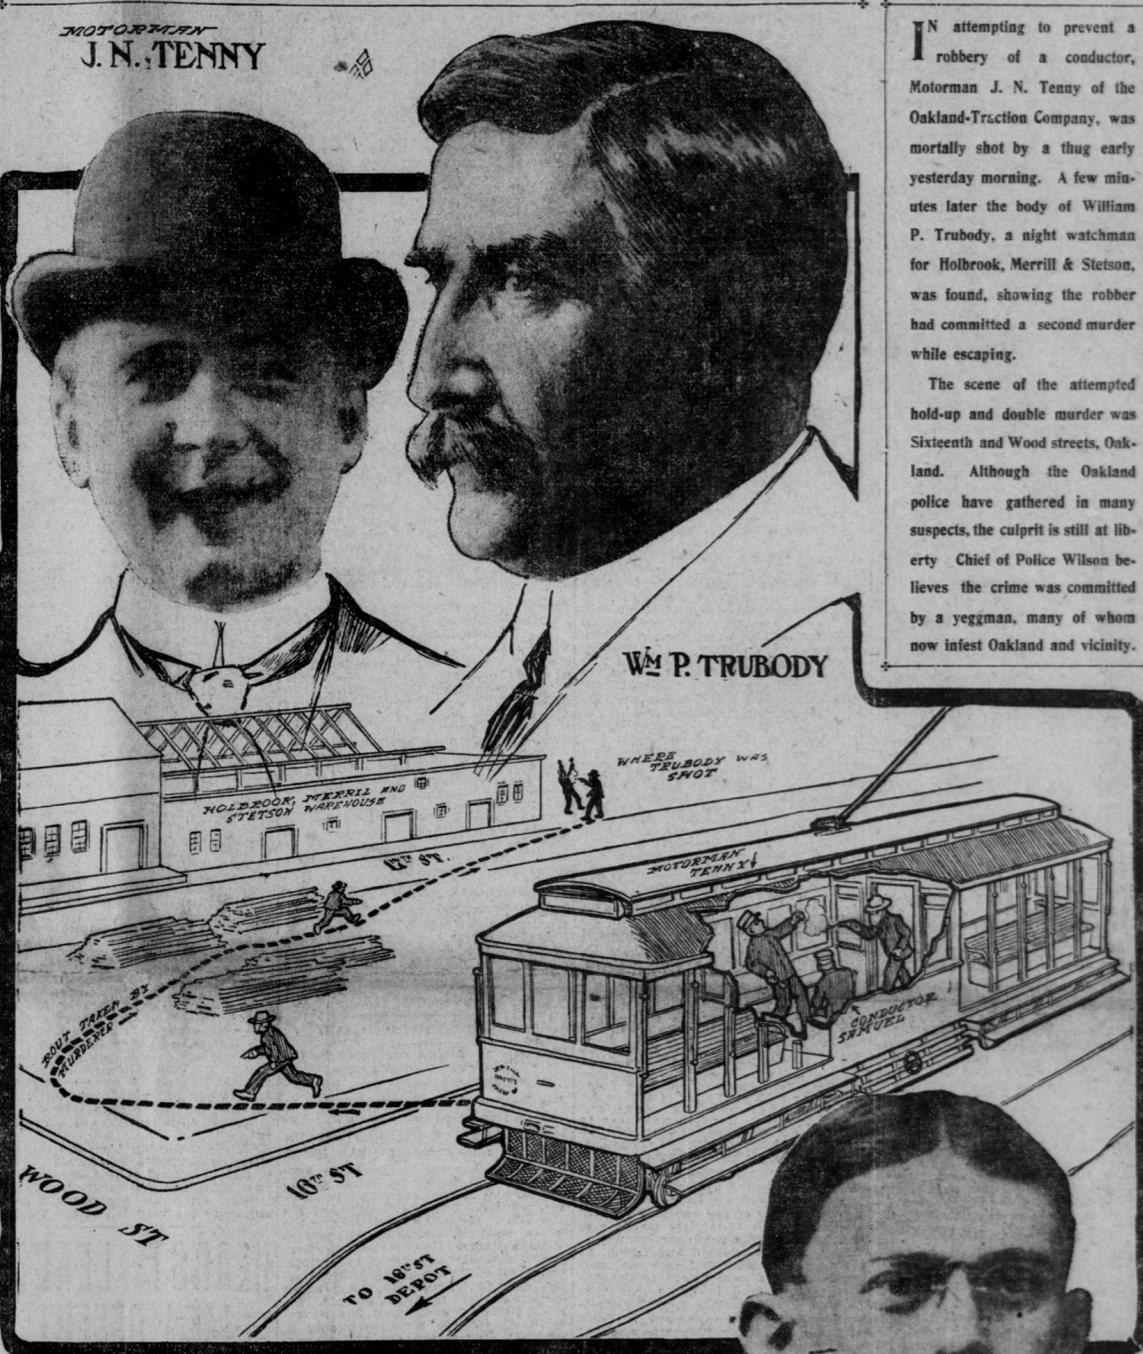

Realizing that labor had been thrown overboard for Murphy, many men repudiated Hearst in speeches. Practically no sentiment was expressed for him. The result of the meeting was an irrevocable split between Mr. Hearst and union labor as represented in the Federated Union.

Reports from up the State show that there is plenty of work ahead of the Republicans. The reception which Hughes received in Fulton County, where there is Hearst sentiment, has opened the eyes of the Republican campaigners. Hughes will speak tomorrow on Long Island. Hearst will continue his State tour. The Republican county committee is making every effort possible to enroll its full strength tomorrow, which is the last opportunity voters in this city will have to register.

HUGHES AT NEW YORK.
 Charles E. Hughes and his party of campaigners reached New York at 7 o'clock this morning after a run from Amsterdam, where one of the best meetings of the week had been held on Saturday. As a result of their first week of up State campaigning members of Hughes' party have returned encouraged, but by no means overconfident. It is undeniable that among the old line conservative Democrats in the eight counties in which Hughes addressed mass meetings there is a large element that will vote for him. It would be no exaggeration to say that many hundreds of such Democrats have personally assured the nominee of their purpose to do so. It is equally evident that, on the other hand, there is in the districts visited, particularly in manufacturing towns of the Mohawk Valley, such as Gloversville, Johnstown, Little Falls and Amsterdam, the Hearst sentiment, not only extensive, but well entrenched among the industrial workers, not all of whom are normally Democrats and many of whom look upon Hearst and his promises as a universal panacea for all their ills.

MAY MAKE INROADS.
 To what extent a campaign such as Mr. Hughes has begun may make inroads upon this aggressive Hearst sentiment in the workshops and mills is

PATHETIC END OF GIRL'S TRIP.

On Saturday Louis Brese of 1325 Steiner street and his wife prepared to welcome to their home Brese's sister-in-law, Miss Lulu Lancaster, who was coming on a visit here from her home in Iowa. But the girl did not arrive Saturday. Nor did she put in an appearance yesterday, although the train on which Miss Lancaster traveled reached the city on time. Brese grew apprehensive, as the traveler was but 19 years of age and possessed of more than usual beauty. Fearing that the girl had been abducted on her journey or drugged and led astray by a chance acquaintance on the train, he reported the matter to the police and learned that his apprehensions were well grounded.

Miss Lancaster arrived in the city Saturday, but during the long, monotonous days of steaming over dreary desert she had fallen under the influence of a strange man, and when the train reached this city was forced by him to go to a transient rooming-house on O'Farrell street, near Fillmore. There the couple stayed Saturday night. She left this place with the man yesterday morning, and the police are now searching the city to find her.

The authorities hope that in rescuing the girl and arresting her companion they may disclose the operations of a ring of infamous creatures who make a practice of preying upon young women traveling alone.

Brese was overcome with grief when he learned the fate that had befallen his wife's kinswoman. He spoke of her pleasing qualities, her brightness, and how he and his wife had looked forward to the pleasure of having her in their home. The need of a cordon of police to protect a defenseless girl traveling alone had not been contemplated.

FATALLY HURT IN A STREET BRAWL.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE CALL.
SAN RAFAEL, Oct. 14.—Two posess are searching the surrounding country for Ernest Nerviani, an Italian, who is believed to have fatally injured Thomas Rogers, a salesman employed by the Landers Shoe Company of Fillmore street, San Francisco, in a street brawl tonight.

Rogers was walking along the street, when Nerviani and some other Italians passed him. Some one brushed against Rogers and an angry dispute followed, during which the latter was heard to ask Nerviani why he didn't "learn to speak United States."

The Italian kept up the dispute. "Vote for Bell!" shouted Rogers. Nerviani then seized hold of Rogers and began striking him. There was a brief mix-up and Rogers fell to the pavement, where blood began streaming from his nose and ears.

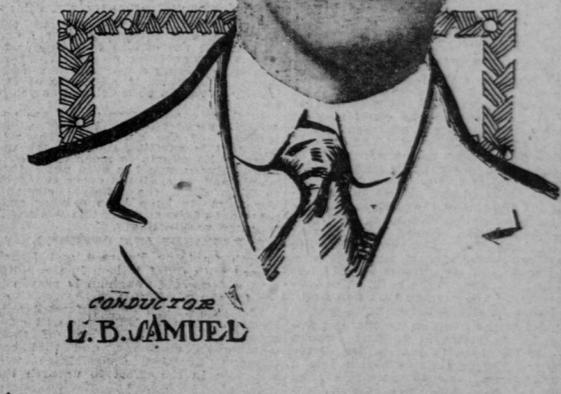

He was taken to a hospital, where it was found that he had sustained a compound fracture of the skull. It was said by the physicians attending him at midnight that the chances were against his recovery.

Nerviani and the other Italians fled after the attack on Rogers. Two posess were immediately organized to hunt them down and a third party is surrounding Nerviani's home at San Anselmo.

Two Men Murdered in Attempt to Rob Conductor.

OAKLAND, Oct. 14.—Balked in his attempt to rob a conductor of the Oakland Traction Consolidated of his collections for the day, a murderous thug, determined at all costs to evade capture, early this morning ended the lives of J. N. Tenny, a motorman, who had prevented the robbery of the conductor, and William P. Trubody, a night watchman at the West Oakland warehouse of Holbrook, Merrill & Stetson. The watchman, attracted by the sound of the shot fired by the robber at Tenny, started to investigate and was shot through the heart by the fleeing thug, who then made his escape. Tenny was shot in a brave endeavor to save the money of his employers, succeeding at the cost of his own life.

A strange presentiment warned the ill-fated motorman that his car was to be held up, for as the robber en-
