

Amount of City's Rentals

The city is expending more than $800,000 monthly for the rental of offices for its officials. In several instances the city officials themselves are the landlords and dig heavily into the municipal treasury. Police Commissioner William H. Leahy, Fire Commissioner Henry M. Wreden and M. L. Asher, attorney for the Auditor, are beneficiaries of the city's generosity.

Exact Large Sums in the Shape of Rentals

In the disbursement of more than $800,000 a month for the rental of offices for the city officials Police Commissioner Leahy and Morris Levy are not the only friends of the administration who are being benefited by the public expense.

Despite the fact that a provision in the city charter makes it illegal for a city official to enter into a contract with the city, Fire Commissioner Henry M. Wreden and M. L. Asher, the attorney for the Auditor, have rented to the city dwelling houses in their possession, for which they are receiving amounts out of all their pockets.

Wreden receives $200 a month for the use of the basement of his house at 447 Fillmore street, which is used as headquarters for the Fire Department. It is said that $100 a month would be a generous rental for the entire house, which stands upon a steep grade, and of which Wreden continues to occupy the upper portion.

Asher has been even more fortunate. Before the embers of the fire had cooled on the 21st April last—when contracted with the city for the use of two dwelling houses at 2511 and 2513 Sacramento street for the large sum of $600 a month. Many realty men declare that $100 would be a good rental for the houses, but Auditor Horton was kind to his attorney and very generously threw in the other $500.

Leahy, whose famous bargains in the city are well known, has secured a good rental for the houses, but Auditor Horton was kind to his attorney and very generously threw in the other $500. Leahy exceeds the good fortune of Morris Levy, whose famous bargains in the city are well known, has secured a good rental for the houses, but Auditor Horton was kind to his attorney and very generously threw in the other $500.

Another member of the house of Levy appears on the prize rent roll. H. M. Levy is down for $250 a month for the use of the lower floor of his dwelling at the corner of Post and Franklin streets, which is used as an office by his honor, the Mayor.

RENT FOR CAUCUS ROOM. Insignificant in amount, but by far the most picturesque of all the items on this roll is that of $25 a month paid to M. Regensburger, for which the owner of Hamilton Hall permits the Board of Supervisors to hold their regular Sunday evening caucuses in one of the upper rooms of the building. It looks small, this $25, beside the $250 the Mayor pays for his office, and the $500 the same board pays for the public meeting place, but when the full history of graft is written and that unique feature of municipal government, the Sunday evening meeting with Ruef, is given its proper proportion, it will be different.

Altogether the city is paying each month $822,120 in fulfillment of all these strange bargains. Annually that means $9,865,440, or in round numbers $10,000,000 a year for the temporary quarters of the different departments. At 5 per cent that sum would pay interest on $2,000,000. But then, what would become of the Gallaghers and the Levys?

Comparison of the different items show that the indolent generosity of the distribution was not without discrimination. For instance, the genial Police Commissioner Leahy has driven his bargains in the city, but when the full history of graft is written and that unique feature of municipal government, the Sunday evening meeting with Ruef, is given its proper proportion, it will be different.

RENTS TOTAL $822,120. Among the less famous landlords on the municipal lists is W. H. Talbot, the lumber merchant, who has rented four different pieces of property to the city at a monthly charge of $355.

POOLROOM GRAFT SWELLS FORTUNE OF RUEF. The Grand Jury will soon consider the charge that fifty poolrooms in Fillmore street are paying a weekly tribute of $5000 to the Schmitz-Ruef-Diana syndicate. Some of his friends were to be the promoters of the scheme, and they were to build a pavilion on the water front where bets would be made.

JUVENILE BURGLARS RECENTLY ARRESTED. Four boys who gave the names Lafe Burch, John Wadleigh, Raymond Brand and George Larue, and who have created much annoyance for residents of Hayes Valley for several weeks, were arrested yesterday by Policemen Cornelius and Mitchell of the Bush-street station and will have to answer to at least fifteen or twenty separate charges of burglary. Burch will be held to plead to an assault with a deadly weapon in addition to the other charges.
