

MERCHANTS ARE TO ENTERTAIN MEMBERS OF ROOSEVELT CABINET

Vice President Fairbanks Will Be Received in September

GARFIELD DUE FIRST Reception to Chief of the Interior Department to Be Informal

The commercial organizations of San Francisco sent delegates yesterday afternoon to a meeting in the board of trade rooms...

The reception to be tendered Secretary Garfield will be the first of the kind...

In the afternoon an informal reception will be tendered him and his party in the large room on the floor of the Merchants' exchange building.

Secretary Garfield asked that if a public reception were contemplated by the citizens of this city it be made simple and informal.

The program named. The presence of Secretary McCall of the navy in Oakland was the occasion for a motion that he be invited as a guest with Secretary Garfield in the reception of July 24.

In discussing the reception to Secretary Wilson, Senator George C. Perkins, who was present at the meeting yesterday, paid him a glowing tribute and stated that his coming to California to attend the irrigation convention in Sacramento was a high honor.

The following delegates were present at yesterday's meeting: L. M. King and Byron Maury from the Merchants' Association; C. W. Perkins and C. H. Bently from the chamber of commerce; T. C. Friedlander and E. R. Lillenthal of the Merchants' exchange; A. A. Watkins and Henry L. Smith of the San Francisco board of trade; Arthur R. Briggs, J. S. Emery and Craigie Sharp of the state board of trade; Andrew Sbarboro of the manufacturers' and producers' association.

Secretary George C. Perkins and Congressman W. F. English were there and helped in making the plans. A vote of thanks was tendered the Merchants' exchange for the use of the large hall in the building in California street.

The reception will be given under the auspices of all the commercial and mercantile organizations of the city, and invited guests will include the state and federal officers, the judiciary and other prominent in the public life of San Francisco.

FORMER MAYOR THOMAS ARRESTED BY GILLET Must Answer Federal Indictment Charging Him With Making False Certificate as a Notary

Captain W. R. Thomas, notary public, formerly mayor of Oakland, was arrested in that city yesterday by Deputy United States Marshal Walter S. Gillett on a federal indictment charging him with having made a false certificate on a pension voucher. It is alleged that E. Barnett, a money lender, also indicted, presented five pension vouchers to Thomas in March, 1906, and that Thomas certified that the signers had personally appeared before him and taken the oath, when, in fact, they had not appeared at all.

When Barnett presented the vouchers to the pension agent for payment on June 1, 1906, they bore signatures purporting to have been made on that date, when, in fact, they had been made in March of the same year and held by Barnett as collateral security for money lent.

Thomas was taken before Judge Ogden, who released him upon his depositing bond for $1,000.

HANDWRITING EXPERT DECLARES WRONG MAN IS HELD A PRISONER

Theodore Kytka Maintains the Innocence of John Arata

MISTAKEN IDENTITY Remarkable Similarity of Person and Signature Brought to Light

A remarkable case of mistaken identity was brought to the attention of Police Judge Shortall yesterday in a report filed by Theodore Kytka, the handwriting expert, in the matter of John Arata, charged with forgery.

Arata has protested his innocence, which will be established by the sworn testimony of Kytka next Tuesday and the guilt fastened upon the real culprit, who, it is said, closely resembles Arata.

Arata was accused of forging the name of George Windler, proprietor of a planing mill, to a check for $15, which it was alleged, he passed January 28 on J. F. Mohr, hotel keeper, Fourth and Berry streets.

At the preliminary hearing last Tuesday three officials of the Italian-American bank testified that Arata was in the bank transacting business three minutes after the time Mohr alleged he passed the check, and it was looked upon as an impossibility for Arata to have gotten from Fourth and Berry streets to Montgomery and Washington in three minutes.

Arata was taken to the police station in three minutes. As Mohr positively swore that Arata was the man who passed the check, the judge asked Kytka to examine the handwriting on the check and report to him before next Tuesday.

Kytka in his report says that at first he thought the writing resembled that of Arata, but after examining Arata's in the books kept by him for J. Zappetoni, shipping agent, 101 Montgomery street, who is Arata's brother in law, he was satisfied that his first impression was wrong. Pursuing his investigation, Kytka called at Windler's office and asked to see the stubs of several checks that he had paid recently. He went to the bank and carefully scrutinized a check for $5 paid on June 1 to F. W. Behrens, secretary of a republican club, and asked the privilege of taking it with him for further investigation, which was granted.

He came to the conclusion, and will testify under oath on Tuesday, that the handwriting on the $15 check passed on Mohr is that of Behrens. Kytka also learned that Arata and Behrens closely resemble each other in appearance.

There are other points clearly establishing Arata's innocence. Arata's father is a wealthy rancher at Antioch, and he has been here for a few weeks looking after his brother in law's business during the latter's absence on a vacation.

Judge Shortall says that, in view of Kytka's statement, he will dismiss the charge against Arata on Tuesday after Kytka testifies.

MOTHER BLEADS WITH JUDGE TO SPARE SON Weeps When His Sentence of Three Years Is Pronounced

"My poor boy, I'll see his face every night in my dreams," moaned the mother of John Roche yesterday, when her son was sentenced by Judge Gaddis to serve a three years' sentence in the San Quentin prison. For several minutes she sat with bowed head, crying bitterly and talking to herself. Her husband vainly tried to comfort her, but finally it became necessary for the bailiff of the court to lead her from the room.

Roche was convicted of holding up J. J. Sehl on the night of April 25 and robbing him of a grand total valued at $125. He was tried for robbery, but a kind hearted jury found him guilty of grand larceny. Roche's defense was that he was the victim of mistaken identity. The man who took part in the robbery of Sehl, which was preceded by an assault, but one of them escaped. Roche, who was captured while in full flight, said on the witness stand: "I ran because I thought one of the robbers was chasing me." Sehl had previously identified Roche as one of his assailants and the jury believed his story.

When the case was called yesterday the mother of Roche took the witness stand to give testimony in mitigation of punishment. "He is a good boy," she said. "He keeps good hours and he has always given me his wages every week."

According to her story the offender is only 17 years of age. There was no testimony to the contrary, but the prosecution thought him much older. Judge Gaddis concluded that the jury had been sufficiently lenient with Roche and sentenced him to prison instead of the county jail.

INFANT FALLS FROM SISTER'S ARMS TO DEATH Little Arecco Trecci Kicks Himself Out of Girl's Embrace Over Porch Railing

Arecco Trecci, a year-old child living at 1314 Kearny street, was instantly killed yesterday when he kicked himself out of his sister's arms and fell over a porch railing into the yard. The sobbing, Fulu Trecci, who is only seven years old, was caring for the baby in its mother's absence. The little fellow suddenly uttered a gleeful shout, kicked the little girl in the chest and went over the railing backward. He was dead when picked up.

ENGINEER FIGHTS FOREMAN There has been bad blood between Joseph W. Mott, yard foreman of the Southern Pacific company, and Louis H. Francisco, an engineer. Yesterday morning Francisco attacked Mott in the yard at Fourth and Townsend streets and Mott stabbed him in the back. Mott was arrested by Policeman F. E. Mahoney on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon and Francisco was taken to the central emergency hospital. Later Mott was arraigned before Police Judge Cabanis and the case was continued.

ASSASSINS TERRORIZE MARIPOSA STREET CAMP

Italian Laborer Is Victim of Mysterious Plot to Kill Him

Italians and other inhabitants of the Mariposa street refugee camp are greatly excited over a mysterious attempt at assassination, which resulted in the fatal wounding of Alfonso Pasquene, a laborer, as he was going to his shack just before dawn yesterday morning.

Pasquene was shot twice, one bullet perforating the left lung, the other inflicting a wound in the left arm. Every one in the neighborhood was aroused when the sharp reports of the revolver broke the stillness of the early morning.

Shrieks of pain and shouts for help brought them out of bed instantly and sent them scurrying into the area ways, where Pasquene was found groaning in front of his door. The man's family formed a weeping, frightened group around him and in the excitement every one forgot to look for the man's assailants. When they were finally sought there was not a trace of them to be found, and the police, though they have been working since yesterday on the case, have been unable to pick up a clew.

All the Italians living in the refugee colony have been closely questioned in an attempt to trace some secret society or race trouble which impelled Pasquene's assailants to shoot him. This inquiry was made more rigid because the police were not notified of the shooting until long after its occurrence.

Directly after the prostrate man had gained a measure of coolness, Dr. William Peters, who lives near by, was called and ordered the victim taken to the Jefferson hospital, a private institution. It was not until Pasquene had regained consciousness that the police were told of the shooting.

"We struggled for a couple of minutes and then our assailant fled. I saw a woman standing near who was apparently one of the attacking party. After I had regained my feet and started for home I saw her again standing with a man at Broadway and Fillmore street. He looked around and, not seeing Maguire, I started for the club on a run. When the trouble started I was too far behind Maguire to hear any words that were passed between him and the men who attacked him. No attempt was made to rob either of us."

NOT A STRIKE ASSAULT The report that the men were attacked by strike sympathizers is disproved by the fact that they had not ridden on the cars.

Maguire's companions stated at the hospital that they had been attacked by four or five thugs who were accompanied by a woman. They said that they had all gone to the Louvre at 9 o'clock on Thursday evening and had eaten their dinner there. They remained in the cafe listening to the music and drinking until after midnight. At 1 o'clock in the morning they started up Fillmore street together. They walked on the west side of the street and had two more drinks before they reached Jackson street. At Jackson they proceeded diagonally across, over torn up tracks and had barely reached the other side before Maguire fell mortally hurt.

Shurtieff hurried on and met Special Policeman Henry at Broadway and Webster street.

"I want you to help me," said Shurtieff. "One of my friends is hurt." Henry summoned an ambulance and had Maguire taken to the hospital.

The executive committee of the Western Addition Improvement club met hastily last night and offered a reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of the murderers of Maguire.

Detectives Graham and Hordan worked on the case all day yesterday and closely questioned all parties concerned. They will continue their investigation today.

Two distinct marks were visible upon Maguire, one on the right side of the jaw and the other at the base of the skull.

Maguire was well known in club and commercial circles. He was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Maguire, who live at 212 Ashbury street. Young Maguire was educated in the south and made a splendid record while in college.

GEORGE MAGUIRE DIES OF HIS INJURIES AND POLICE ARE MYSTIFIED

Two Witnesses Say Victim Was Attacked by His Companions

WILL BE ARRESTED Accounts of Street Assault on Bradstreet Reporter Conflicting

George Maguire, the young college graduate and reporter of Bradstreet's agency, who was mysteriously injured early yesterday morning at Fillmore and Jackson streets while on his way to his home with three of his friends, died at 5:30 o'clock yesterday morning at the central emergency hospital.

He did not regain consciousness and the police are confronted with conflicting stories as to the manner in which he received the fatal wounds. Although the companions of the young man assert that he was attacked by a band of thugs, M. Russell and his wife, who say that they observed the entire affair, told the police that Maguire had received his injuries at the hands of his comrades.

Acting upon this information, the police said last night that they would take the victim's three companions into custody today in a further effort to clear up the mystery.

Maguire was accompanied Thursday night by A. S. Darrow, his roommate, who is employed in the office of the Northwestern Pacific railroad; Leonard Kok, an architect in the offices of Reid Brothers, at Seventh and Market streets; and Louis E. Shurtieff, a jeweler employed at Shreve's. The four young men lived at the Bachelors' club at 2620 Laguna street near Broadway.

Maguire's injuries consisted of a basal fracture of the skull and a broken jaw. The tracks of all those who witnessed the affair agree only in the statement that he was hurt in Fillmore street near Jackson. Beyond this the reports conveyed to the police vary.

SAY COMPANIONS HIT HIM Russell and his wife asserted that they had observed the four men and that there appeared to be a disagreement among them. Suddenly Maguire fell to the ground and lay as though lifeless. Kok later made his way to his home, while Shurtieff and Darrow stopped to take on some passengers and an ambulance and took Maguire to the central emergency hospital.

In the meantime Kok had gone to his rooms, Shurtieff and Darrow going to the hospital. In general all three of them looked at each other as if an attack by highwaymen. There is some difference in their description of their positions at the time.

When seen at the Bachelors' club last night, Kok said: "Our party started from 9 o'clock until 11 dining at the Louvre. A few minutes before 1 o'clock, I think it was, we left to go home, and started out Fillmore street on foot. On the way we became separated. Maguire being ahead of us about a half block and Shurtieff and Darrow about the same distance behind. At Jackson street I saw a group of men, either four or five, I am not sure, who stopped Maguire and then began to beat him. I hurried up and went to his assistance.

"Two of the men forced me out into the middle of the street and the others, I believe Maguire, I was knocked down twice, but saved myself from serious injury by kicking out with my feet."

"We struggled for a couple of minutes and then our assailant fled. I saw a woman standing near who was apparently one of the attacking party. After I had regained my feet and started for home I saw her again standing with a man at Broadway and Fillmore street. He looked around and, not seeing Maguire, I started for the club on a run. When the trouble started I was too far behind Maguire to hear any words that were passed between him and the men who attacked him. No attempt was made to rob either of us."

FOUR RIOTERS JAILED Three Men and Woman Charged With Attacking Car in Potrero

Louis Rosenthal and S. Moe, striking conductors; Oscar Toson, a steward, and Inza Olsen, a domestic, were booked at the city prison yesterday morning for disturbing the peace. It is alleged that they attacked a car at Illinois and Kentucky streets.

Policeman J. Strum of the Potrero station happened along in time to see the three men and the woman creating a disturbance near the car, which had stopped to take on some passengers. He quickly gathered them all in and hustled them to the city prison. They all deny that they were rioting.

STRIKE BREAKER SENTENCED Samuel Goldberg, a strike breaking conductor who was convicted by Police Judge Conlan of disturbing the peace in using vile language in the presence of women passengers on a wagon at Sixteenth and Bryant streets, was sentenced yesterday to serve 90 days in jail without the option of a fine.

Why Beer is a Food Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is richer in food values and lower in alcohol than any other beer. Thereason is simple. Pabst brews for food values, and intentionally decreases the percentage of alcohol.

To secure the highest percentage of food values in Pabst Blue Ribbon The Beer of Quality

Pabst perfected the 8-Day Malting Process which gives to Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer more nutriment, more muscle-building properties than could be obtained by any other process, and the Pabst Brewing Process transmits these food values to the beer in liquid form, making it what Dr. Liebig aptly calls "liquid bread."

When ordering beer, ask for Pabst Blue Ribbon. Made by Pabst at Milwaukee And Bottled only at the Brewery.
