SCHMITZ FEARS EJECT OF THE NATIVE SONS Failing in Move to Resign, He May Have Attorney Drew Defend Him DELAY IS GRANTED Lawyer Says That He Will Investigate the Charges Against ex-Mayor

Former Mayor Schmitz, finding that his hasty attempt to resign from the Native Sons of the Golden West had proved unavailing, now intends to make some sort of a defense for his name and standing in the order.

The rules of the organization allow the defendant in such cases the privilege of being represented by an attorney, provided that the latter is a member in good standing. Schmitz is making use of this privilege and at the meeting of the commission yesterday was represented by Attorney Frank C. Drew.

SALOON FOR WOMEN LAST ACT OF SCHMITZ BOARD Dive Run by Dunn Brothers in Market Street Is Open Again

The doors to the back rooms of Dunn Brothers' cafe in Market street opposite Seventh swung both ways last night, despite the fact that within a space of four months last year enough robberies, burglaries and other disorders were pulled off in the cafe to cause the license to be revoked.

The granting of the license to Dunn Brothers apparently was the last official act of the retiring police commissioners. The matter was never taken up in open meeting, but slipped through by mutual consent of the members.

A year ago Dunn Brothers were forbidden to sell any liquor whatever in the city of San Francisco, because of continued complaints. After four months the board of police commissioners, then composed of Hagerty, Creswell, Umbson and Leahy, granted them the privilege of running a bar-room provided they had no woman patronage.

DIRECTS ITS ENERGIES TO COMPLETING LINE Northern Electric Railway Company Working Hard to Handle Irrigation Congress Crowds

RED BLUFF, Aug. 22.—The Northern electric railway company, which is now directing its energies toward completing a line to Sacramento in time to handle the irrigation congress crowds, has just filed deeds for lands secured in this county from the Los Molinas land company by which it proposes to be operating its system into Red Bluff, the northern terminal, by July 1, 1908.

The road will then extend from Sacramento to Marysville, Chico, Oroville, Hamilton City, Tehama, Corning and Red Bluff with a branch to Colusa. With connections made at Marysville with the California Midland electric line to Auburn and Grass Valley, and with the Central traction company at Sacramento, it will be possible to cover the entire Sacramento valley and the San Joaquin as far south as Modesto by electric cars.

Band of Millionaire Robbers Will Be Exposed and Punished for Violating Lottery Laws

their graves. Without the larger companies they cannot exist. Already the public has become in part aware of the fraud and the receipts are falling rapidly. A few heavy shots from the federal officers and the crooked bones of the local game will lie bleaching under the California sun.

The postoffice department, the secret service and the attorney general's office have joined together to smash the San Francisco lottery trust and to expose the men who have made millions from it. The ordinary methods of trust busting are not employed in this case. The lotteries do not come out into the open. The light of open day means death to them.

Twelve years ago the government became convinced that the local lottery trust was operating in defiance of the federal laws and clapped a fraud order upon the concern. Every letter which comes addressed to it to the San Francisco postoffice is stamped "fraud" across the face and sent to the dead letter office.

The Standard oil company is a public benefaction and the shell and pea a philanthropic enterprise as compared with the lottery trust. Standard oil is satisfied with a profit of 40 per cent a year, the shell and pea man allows his victim to win occasionally, but the lottery trust demands a profit of 40 per cent a month or 480 per cent a year and never allows the public to take out more than a quarter of what it puts in.

LOTTERY KINGS FOLLOW TACTICS OF OIL AND RAILROAD TRUST MAGNATES It is not a figure of speech to call the lottery game as conducted in San Francisco a trust. It is as much a trust as the oil octopus. Inherently illegal, it will tolerate no opposition.

Like the Standard oil company and the Harriman organizations, the lottery trust is deep in politics. It retains on its staff a coterie of Jere Burke and Walter Parkers, a former political boss, the representative of a later boss and a recent mayor of San Francisco, and one of its attorneys sits among the mighty in the senate of the state of California.

The government explains the persistency of the trust in holding on in California to the willingness of the Californian "to take a chance." It points to Mark Twain's "Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," in which this trait of the residents of the Golden state is amusingly set forth.

Nor does the lottery trust confine its operations to California. If it did it would be the business of the state and not the nation to stop it. The trust extends into Oregon, Washington, Utah, Arizona and Nevada. In so doing it engages in interstate commerce, and just there is where it runs counter to the government.

BIG SWINDLERS ARE IN TURN PREYED UPON BY NUMEROUS FORGERS Not only must the trust fight to maintain its illegal existence, but it must contend with the law breakers who prey upon it. Chief of these are the forgers, the men who thrive by the manufacture of bogus tickets, a colony so large and so active as to make it an even chance when one purchases a ticket that he purchases a bogus one.

In subsequent chapters the names of these forgers and their places of business will be made public. They have a system of their own with hundreds of agents who peddle the spurious tickets. The most interesting feature of the lottery is the capital prize, that fond hope which has coaxed many a man into bankruptcy.

Before taking up in detail the San Francisco situation it may be well to show how the legal batteries of the nation for half a century have been pounding away at the lotteries and how they have, within the last few weeks, broken up the Honduras, the successor to the Louisiana, and how attention has since been turned toward San Francisco, the last ditch from which the enterprise is shortly to be driven.
