HEARST'S LEMON LOOKS LIKE A PEACH TO RYAN

tried to look as if he believed this tale himself.

W. characteristic self-effacement Hearst had not attempted to negotiate with Ryan, had demanded no pledges of any kind and had received none—possibly because Ryan did not wish to add a mercenary ally to the pure metal of Hearst's philanthropy. Despite the adoption of the Ryan argument of the republican party by Hearst, Ryan said, the party which he had freed from corporation domination and boss control would remain as free as himself, by which he may have meant as free as any Hearst candidate for mayor.

Ryan did not like to think about the espousal of his candidacy by Hearst as consequent upon his repudiation by the Lincoln-Roosevelt league, to whose letter demanding that he desist from his efforts to divide the friends of good government he has paid no attention. But he was positive, even solemnly emphatic, that Hearst had not given him any campaign money along with the unexpected gift of journalistic frill which he insisted had done it.

Ryan said he was going to be elected as a simple pure republican and when elected he would not be bound to accept any other pledges or anti-election pledges or anti-election tributes. He declined to admit that the support of a newspaper consistently and persistently opposed to everything republican would in any degree embarrass him as a candidate.

He accepted the wholly unexpected and unbargained for support of Hearst as confirmation of the promises of his inner self which, he says, has compelled him to ignore the demands of the republicans who by their primary votes made his betrayal of them possible. His inner man has told him that he will be elected mayor. The peach secured from Hearst without money paid without price has convinced Ryan that the inner man has all other political prophets chained to the post.

Some of Ryan's joy bubbles over into a meeting of the campaign committee held at his headquarters yesterday afternoon. By dint of impassioned oratory and frequent references to the fact that regardless of its character a newspaper has consented to speak for Ryan, the chief booster managed to extract promises of an effort from the precinct committeemen.

M. R. RYAN evidently considers that the delegates to the republican convention were chosen to advance his personal political ambitions. The delegates are bearers of a trust. The trust is not fulfilled if the primary leader assumes that because the people elected his primary ticket they want him in office. They don't want him, for they don't want primary politicians in the mayor's chair. The principal Ryan meeting will be held in the Davis theater, McAllister street between Fillmore and Steiner; another in the South San Francisco opera house, Fourteenth street and Railroad avenue, and the third in the Columbia hall, Sixth and Harrison streets.

Ryan and Egan will speak in Dolores hall, Sixteenth and Dolores, and in Garibaldi hall, Broadway and Kearny streets, on Tuesday night and on Friday night they will essay the task of filling Dreamland rink.

The union labor schedule calls for McCarthy's appearance at four mass meetings tonight: Oakwood hall, 1805 Devisadero street, hall, Twentieth and Kentucky streets; hall, Seventeenth and Bryant streets, and at the sugar refinery in the Potrero.

Republicans Will Advance Percy V. Long's Interests

Form Club to Prosecute Vigorous Campaign in His Behalf

Republicans interested in the candidacy of Percy V. Long, good government nominee for city attorney, have formed a club to advance his interests. The officers of the club are: J. R. Howell, president; H. A. Friedman, vice president; Herbert Clayburgh, treasurer; William H. Smith Jr., secretary.

Arrangements have been made to prosecute a vigorous campaign throughout the city and especially in those districts interested in public improvements. A campaign card was adopted on which Long's record while city attorney two years ago will appear, as follows:

"He succeeded Franklin K. Lane as city attorney; sustained the city's bond issue of $17,000,000 in the supreme court; purchased sites for public library, Mission park, Southside playground and extension of Golden Gate park to the Presidio; acquired sites for

RYAN, of equally irreproachable private character, and of equally unshakable integrity (with Mayor Taylor), more nearly fills to the full the needs of the hour and him The Examiner unhesitatingly recommends to all the voters of San Francisco—republican, democratic and labor adherents alike—as the man best qualified to be the next mayor of the city. To republicans, democrats and all other honest men of whatever affiliation we say without hesitation that we believe Mr. Ryan will be mayor of the whole people, that no party will sway his judgment or divert him from the honest administration of the city's affairs.

BAREFACED THIEF, SAYS HEARST OF DAN RYAN

Editorial Compares Him to Embezzler of a Charity Fund

Following is the full text of the Examiner editorial of September 19, 1907, regarding the political position of Daniel A. Ryan, the present Hearst candidate for mayor:

It is generally understood that Mr. Dan Ryan proposes to nominate himself as the republican candidate for mayor of San Francisco. That he has the power to do this thing is one of the curiosities of our political system. The theory is that the delegates to a convention represent that part of the public which marches under the political banner of a political party. But Mr. Ryan evidently considers that the delegates to the republican convention were chosen to advance his personal political ambitions.

The people do not mean that the accidental leaders of a primary fight should put their names in their own pockets. They elect delegates as agents to select candidates from among the people. The delegates are bearers of a trust, and neither they nor the man who happens to be in the scramble between factions has a right to appropriate the nomination.

The trust is not fulfilled if the primary leader assumes that because the people elected his primary ticket they want him in office. They don't want him, for they don't want primary politicians in the mayor's chair.

The theory of any convention is that it is assembled to choose the best man in the party for its candidate. The spectacle of Mr. Dan Ryan holding a caucus with himself and deciding that he is better qualified to be mayor of San Francisco than any other man in the republican party is a grotesque piece of effrontery.

All sorts of men rise to the top in primary fights, but most of them have a sufficient sense of modesty, if not of the fitness of things, to abstain from making themselves the recipients of what the delegates to give to contractors; condemned a site for a fire department reservoir on Twin Peaks at a saving to the city of $50,000; obtained the library site for $100,000 less than the estimate of real estate experts.

MCCARTHY ADDRESSES LABOR'S CANDIDATES

Denunciation of Mayor Is Principal Business of Meeting

CLUBS IN PRECINCTS

Plan to Cement Organized Labor Closer Is to Be Formulated

The union labor county convention and all the candidates on the union labor ticket, with one of two exceptions, gathered at Union hall yesterday to listen to an address by the standard bearer of their party, P. H. McCarthy, County Chairman Thomas F. Finn presiding over the meeting. McCarthy was the principal speaker, with Phil Knox and Harry I. Mulcrevy close seconds. The afternoon was spent in much denouncing of Mayor Taylor, his capdandy and his party and in the adoption of a plan to cement the organization of the union labor party by forming a labor league club in each precinct, independent of the individual candidates' clubs.

McCarthy waxed warm in his address. A part of it was taken up with telling what good could be derived from the election of a straight union labor ticket. By far the greater part of it, however, was spent in berating the democratic and good government league parties. He said in part:

I want to tell you that just so sure as there is a heaven above we have those people licked to-day these folks by these folks. I don't care more that we must get attend to. We stand in serious danger of having our victory stolen from under very noses after we have earned it at the polls. Only those who have been interested in politics that realize through what channels the men who make up the fusion of the good government and democratic tickets would be likely to force their candidates into office. We must not let them get out of our sight for a minute. Let us appoint a sufficient number of men to take care of these things if necessary, until they are counted and securely stowed away under lock and key, and thwart the men who would stop at nothing to steal this election from the people.

McCarthy's enthusiasm or heat was well received by his audience. He was frequently interrupted by cheers, hand claps or cries of "Good boy, Mac." The name of Dr. Taylor was greeted with a suppressed groan by a few men in the rear of the hall, but outside of this and a hint at a hiss when Langdon's name fell from the lips of the speaker the crowd was a fair one and open for argument.

McCarthy was bitter in his talk against his opposing candidates, but the labor leaders who were supporting candidates other than himself came in for the most blasting denunciations.

"The Caseys, the Egan, the McCabes, the McLarens and the Macarthur, alleged labor leaders," said McCarthy, "are false leaders, traitors, men who owe their all to us who work where they are, yet who sell themselves to a Citizens' alliance cause."

"Why, Egan would not now be supporting Daniel Ryan—a man whom I do not begrudge any support he may secure—were it not that Mayor Taylor has put him up to it lest if he place him in his own train he prove to the world that Egan is dominated by the big stick."

Priority to McCarthy's address Phil Knox of the county committee placed a plan for more minute organization of the union labor ticket in the various precincts. Harry I. Mulcrevy, candidate for county clerk, followed with a commendatory speech and a resolution that the precinct clubs be organized forthwith, which he introduced, was unanimously adopted and received with cheers.

Other candidates followed as their names were called by Chairman Finn and all promised a certain victory for the working classes at the polls November 5. Many of the candidates were cheered as they took the floor. William J. Haggerty, formerly a police commissioner, was removed by Mayor Taylor for refusal to remove Chief of Police Dinan, concluded the meeting with a lengthy address. Haggerty is now a member of the campaign committee, his name having been added on his return to the city five days ago. Haggerty declared that never before in the history of union labor politics had he seen such interest shown by the working people. Following Haggerty's speech the campaign committee went into executive session.

WILL INDICT ACTORS FOR VIOLATING SUNDAY LAW

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 20.—All the theaters of this city were open today in violation of the Sunday closing order of Judge Wallace of the criminal court and all the actors and actresses who participated in the various performances will be indicted by the grand jury next Tuesday.

Scores of city detectives and deputy marshals were busy today securing evidence, which will be presented Tuesday to the same grand jury that already has indicted the theatrical managers here for keeping their playhouses open on Sunday.

The persons indicted will be released on bonds and Judge Wallace believes that this method of procedure, if adopted every Sunday, will prove so inconvenient to traveling actors that the theaters will be compelled to close.

PRESIDENT KILLS BEAR AND HUGS COMPANIONS

STAMBOUL, La., Oct. 20.—"We got three bears, six deer, one wild turkey, twelve squirrels, one duck, one possum and one wildcat. We ate them all except the wildcat, and there were times when we almost felt as if we could eat it."

This was President Roosevelt's summing up of the result of his hunt on Bayou Tensas and Bear lake. He arrived at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the residence of Leo Shields, where he will be a guest until his departure for Vicksburg tomorrow. He came in on full gallop and accompanied as he was by the president was killed Thursday and the killing was witnessed by one of the McKinzies and Alex Reynolds. They agree in saying that the president's bearing was extremely sportsmanlike. The animal had been chased by the dogs for three hours, the president following all the time.

When at last they came within hearing the president dismounted, threw off his coat and tore into the camerake, coming to within 20 paces of the bear. The dogs were coming up rapidly with the president's favorite, Rowdy, in the lead, and bruin had stopped to bite his defiance into them when the president sent a bullet from his 45-70 rifle after it. The shot went through the animal's lungs and would have been fatal, but with the little life left in it the bear turned upon the dogs. The president saved the pack and lodged a second bullet between the shoulders which broke the creature's neck.

The president was so rejoiced over his good fortune that he embraced each of his companions. They were equally happy, and in the exuberance of the moment Reynolds went to the extent of telling the president that he, the president, was "no tenderfoot." The president responded by presenting him with a $20 note. Yesterday there was considerable little hunting because of the condition of the dogs, some of which encountered a drove of wild hogs, which are more ferocious than bear. One of the best dogs of the Osborn pack was killed outright by a big boar.

The president will leave here tomorrow at 10 o'clock and will spend four hours in the afternoon at Vicksburg. He will arrive at Delta, directly across the river from Vicksburg, at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

STANFORD MAN RETURNS WITH STORIES OF GOLD

Le Roy Barbour Makes Enthusiastic Report on Alaskan Fields

DESCRIBES HIS TRIP

Present When the Original Strikes at Fairbanks Are Made

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Oct. 20.—News of fabulous wealth of gold in the districts bordering about Fairbanks, Alaska, has been brought back to the campus community by Le Roy Barbour, '07, of Los Angeles, who has for the past six months been engaged in the service of the United States government in this section. The returning student has caused considerable comment by his tales of the gold district.

Barbour, who is a member of the 1907 class, has won recognition here as a student in the geology and mining department. He left college before graduating last spring to accept a position with the geological survey and was sent to Fairbanks with a party of surveyors who had followed upon the heels of the gold seekers in order to map the country.

Barbour was thus at the scene of the big strikes with the first and has returned with the germ of the gold fever. The returning student is particularly popular here and has been royally entertained by his former classmates.

NEILL FAILS TO END TELEGRAPHERS' STRIKE

Special by Leased Wire to The Call

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Having failed to effect a settlement of the telegraphers' strike, Charles T. Neill, United States commissioner, who, the strike leaders insisted, came to this city at the suggestion of President Roosevelt, returned to Washington tonight. Before his departure the strikers adopted a resolution to expel as a traitor any member who should try in any way to discourage the strike, and other measures were taken to carry it out.

Daniel L. Russell was elected delegate to the convention to be held in Milwaukee Wednesday, when the question of a sympathetic strike of railroad telegraphers is to be considered. He said that Grand Chief Perham of the order of railroad telegraphers had received a vote of the Denver and Rio Grande railway telegraphers on the question of a strike, but that he would not sanction such a movement until he had learned the result of Commissioner Neill's visit to New York.

Acting upon an appeal from the strikers for financial assistance the central federated union appointed a committee of 35 to devise plans for raising funds. It was decided by the strike leaders to arrange for a lecture in their behalf by William Jennings Bryan.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—S. J. Small, former president of the commercial telegraphers' union, was hanged and jeered by 600 members of the Chicago local union before whom he appeared this afternoon in an effort to justify his action in seeking to end the strike. Vice-President W. W. Battle of Washington was named as the choice of the Chicago local for successor to Small.
