McCarthy Makes Biggy an Issue
AN ISSUE OF CAMPAIGN

Address by Labor Boss Is Long Catalogue of Epithets

RYAN IS DENOUNCED

Hearst Also Comes in for Abuse for Calling Mission "Slums"

"This piping, sneezing, monkey faced chief of police, Mr. Biggy, will not stay in office long enough to draw a breath after I become able to remove him through my police commission."

So said P. H. McCarthy last night before a crowd that packed Maennerbund hall at Twenty-fourth street and Potrero avenue, following a unanimous applause greeted the announcement.

McCarthy charged that there was a plot under way to strike the names of many union workmen from the register. He spoke briefly of the money question, referring to the Philadelphia Evening Post as proof that the west had been protecting Wall street from disaster. He denounced Chief of Police Biggy for not disarming strike breakers, promised to remove him, and added:

"I understand Mr. Biggy works more than 12 hours a day. Well, we are all agreed he can work his blooming head off until January 5, and then we will send him back to his washboard piano to wash dirty linen again for Rudolph Spreckels."

According to McCarthy, the backers of Mayor Taylor had only one object in view, which was to reduce the wages and increase the hours for workingmen. "This he said in conclusion, 'is a fight for bread and butter.'"

Shortly before McCarthy arrived Colonel T. V. Eddy made a speech, in which he said: "No man ever won a vote by abusing the other man." Eddy mentioned many names. The crowd cheered the name of Henry T. Gage, laughed when George C. Pardee was mentioned and hissed the name of Governor Gillett.

"You shouldn't do that," said Eddy. "Labor never had a better friend in the gubernatorial chair than James K. Gillett." The crowd hissed again, and Eddy changed the subject. Eddy accused Daniel A. Ryan of breaking his promise to friends not to become a candidate for office. Dr. Taylor was compared to an old retired racehorse dragged out from a pension and patched up for one more race.

"He was trotted twice around the track," continued Eddy, "and when he didn't fall down on the second heat Spreckels and Pheian said: 'He's all right.'"

Eddy mentioned the name of Francis J. Heney and the crowd hissed. When he spoke the name of Chief of Police Biggy the audience hooted and one man raised a large sign shouting "back to the laundry with him." Eddy declared that Ryan was third in the mayoralty race and that a vote for him was half a vote for Dr. Taylor.

Colonel Eddy, in speaking of Ryan, said: "For years he has been used in behalf of the Southern Pacific railway. Then there is Perry Newberry who, up to two years ago, did Southern Pacific politics in Santa Clara county. Now he is running the campaign of Daniel A. Ryan for mayor."

Frank McGowan, nominee for district attorney, was late in reaching the hall, but was given a warm greeting. He made a brief speech in which he promised if elected to prosecute Patrick Calhoun.

H. J. Power, president of the ship carkers' union, was chairman of the meeting. Among the speakers were J. I. Sparrow, T. B. Healy, Joseph I. Twobig, Charles A. Bantel, Coroner W. J. Walsh, Sheriff Thomas F. O'Neil, I. H. Spiro, T. A. Caserly, Recorder John H. Nelson, W. A. Cole and George B. Benham.

P. H. McCarthy also spoke at Lira hall, Twenty-eighth and Church streets. He was late in getting there, but a large crowd of voters greeted him when he mounted the platform. In his speech he paid more attention to Ryan than he has done heretofore, and he denounced the young candidate as an unfit man to represent the city.

McCarthy said that Ryan was aligned with the Citizens' alliance and recited his connections with the republican convention two years ago when Partridge was nominated on the fusion ticket. He maintained that Ryan was the chairman of that convention and the convention was controlled by the Citizens' alliance.

Early in the evening McCarthy spoke at Columbia hall, in Harriet street, which was crowded to the doors. McCarthy received an ovation when he began to speak and he was constantly interrupted by applause as he denounced his opponents and told what he would do "when elected."

Loud cheers filled the air when McCarthy in stentorian tones called Henry Bert George a dog and referred to De Young as "Michael the pious" and to Spreckels as "Rudolph the handsome." "Go to him, McCarthy!" yelled the crowd, and thus encouraged McCarthy spoke at considerable length. He rehearsed the struggle of the carpenters and millmen in 1900, saying that the defeat of the bosses by the unions under his leadership had made them afraid to renew the battle. He spoke of the Bulletin as "that lying pamphlet," and said that the Examiner, which had declared in its columns that the scum of the city lived in the Mission, was now asking the voters to elect its pet candidate.

Speaking at Third and Berry streets to an audience of about 600 persons at noon yesterday, P. H. McCarthy declared that Spreckels and Pheian were seeking to elect Dr. Taylor in order to obtain control of the city government. "I want all workmen to remember Pheian's attitude in 1901, when he said to the workmen, 'Get to work or be clubbed.' And I also want to call your attention to Spreckels, who refused to give union men work during the same year."

In dealing with the subject of carmen carrying arms, McCarthy said that if elected he would not only disarm every Calhoun employe but Calhoun himself.

Frank McGowan, who preceded McCarthy, sarcastically commented on Langdon's political affiliations and followed this by insinuating that Langdon had no intention of prosecuting Calhoun.

"Five months have elapsed since Calhoun was indicted," said he, "and if Langdon does not proceed more rapidly Calhoun will die of old age before he comes to trial."

Korea, says Professor Ladd of Yale university, after a recent two months' stay there, is now free from intrigues and commotions and is reaping the benefits of the agricultural and other reforms introduced in the last 10 years.

LONGSHOREMEN PLEDGE SUPPORT TO LANGDON

Aroused by Declaration That Big Grafters Will Be Convicted

An enthusiastic open air meeting was held in the interests of Mayor Taylor and good government candidates on pier 41 of the Pacific Mail docks yesterday noon, when William H. Langdon and others addressed the teamsters, longshoremen and railroad men. Langdon was well received by the 400 or 500 men.

The district attorney declared that he believed in prosecuting all criminals, and that so far as he was able with the evidence he could obtain all offenders would be punished. In speaking of immunity grants Langdon said that they were a necessary evil. He told the citizens that the government could not have obtained evidence against the grafters and bootlers unless some among them had come forward and confessed. Langdon said that the government could not have obtained this evidence unless he had guaranteed immunity to the informant. The speaker stated it was far better to get all but one of the offenders than it was to place none of them behind bars. Patrick Calhoun was one of the men, Langdon told his audience, that he would try to place behind iron bars. He assured them that if he was rejected he would do all in his power to convict Calhoun and any and all others who were working against the best interests of the citizens. Langdon remarked that this city would show the world that here the rich man stands in no more exalted position, because of his great wealth, than does the poor man.

The declaration was the signal for a hearty outburst of cheers and hand clapping and cries of "Well elect you, Langdon." The district attorney was then introduced to many of the men by William P. McCabe, both of whom the residents of many good wishes from the voters.

Others who spoke at the noon meeting were William P. McCabe, candidate for police judge; Ralph McLeran and Paul Bancroft, candidates for supervisors.

HONESTY OF HOTEL MAID BRINGS SECOND REWARD

Finds Lost Purse of Guest and Repeats Former Act in Returning It

Honest Katie McGee, one of Manager James Woods' most valued maids at the little St. Francis hotel, again has been rewarded for her honesty and integrity. A guest at the hotel yesterday handed Miss McGee a substantial reward in return for her honesty in having promptly handed in to the office his lost purse containing several hundred dollars.

The guest, who did not fail to recognize the valuable service done him by Miss McGee, was J. C. Lutz, a merchant of Gardener, Ill. He left the hotel early yesterday morning and went across the bay. While there he discovered that he had lost a large sum of money. On his return to the St. Francis Lutz was surprised at being told by Chief Clerk McCullough that his money had been found by Miss McGee while sweeping out his room. Lutz had almost given up all hope of ever regaining it, and without hesitation he unwrapped the roll and taking out a handful of bills left them with the clerk to be given to the maid. Miss McGee was surprised to receive the reward, saying that she had not expected it. Lutz afterward thanked her personally for her act.

A few months ago Miss McGee located a jewel box containing a number of valuable jewels, valued at over $1,000, in a drawer of a bureau of the room which had been occupied by a departed guest. These she straightway handed in to the management and the departed guest was communicated with at his home in the east. The jewels were claimed and forwarded, and the return post brought a letter of thanks containing a large reward to Miss McGee.

GOVERNOR OF CHIHUAHUA VISITS SAN FRANCISCO

Mexican Merchants Are Awaking to Advantages of American Trade Methods

Jose M. Sanchez, governor of Chihuahua, who is making a tour of California, spoke enthusiastically at the majestic hotel yesterday of the commercial relations existing between Mexico and the United States. Mexico at the present time, he says, is going ahead commercially to a greater extent than ever before in its history. Under the long presidency of President Diaz the country has awakened to the advantages to be gained from American commercial methods.

Governor Sanchez has been recently elected governor of Chihuahua in place of Ambassador Creel, who has returned to Washington. Speaking of the presidential election of Mexico, which takes place next year, Sanchez said Diaz was expected to be returned unopposed.

He remarked that every effort was being made by the merchants to foster and increase trade relations with the United States.

Governor Sanchez is a prominent merchant and land owner of Chihuahua. He is accompanied on his trip by his wife and daughter and L. B. Olivares, his secretary.

RYAN SEEKS VOTES AT NOON AND NIGHT RALLIES

Talks of "Peace and Prosperity" to Crowd in Garibaldi Hall

OVATION TO LANGDON

District Attorney as Usual Feature of Republican Meetings

Two meetings in the evening and one earlier in the day kept Daniel A. Ryan busy yesterday talking for votes. He addressed the employes of the iron works, planning mill and other like establishments at Sixth and Townsend streets during the noon hour and talked first to voters in Garibaldi hall and later in Dolores hall in the evening. The former meeting represented the opening of the campaign in the forty-fourth district and the hall in Broadway was crowded to the doors. The meeting was under the auspices of the Ryan Republican club, of which Dr. J. K. Plimcz and I. W. Parson, president and manager, were in charge. Senator Marc Anthony was chairman of the meeting.

Ryan congratulated his hearers on the splendid work of rehabilitation which had characterized the rapid rebuilding of north beach and commended the efforts of the city officials in that section of the city. He declared he had nothing to say against his opponent, Mayor Taylor, personally, but declared he was dominated by James D. Phelan and Michael De Young. "Are they friends of the common people?" he asked, while his hearers jeered the names.

He read from newspapers about the financial crisis in New York, and asserted that San Francisco was lending and not a borrowing city. "The cry of my opponents that we need help from the east is a false alarm," he maintained. "We are lending the east money."

"McCarthy has said," declared the speaker, "that there will be industrial strife if he is not elected mayor. Dr. Taylor has said there will be industrial depression if he is defeated. Which do you want, depression or strife? I have no quarrel with the labor or capital. If you elect me and the straight republican ticket there will be no fight between labor and capital, and there will be a season of peace and prosperity."

FRESNO, Oct. 22.—A man's half cut hair led to his arrest on a charge of theft today. Robert Baumgart suspected a stranger of robbing his room in a lodging house. He happened to see the man in a barber's chair and accused him of the crime. Baumgart said he went out at once to call a policeman and went out to do so.

George Bryant, the accused man, fled without permitting the barber to finish taking off his hair and when the policeman arrived there was no one to arrest. Pursuit was begun and the arrest of the man with a half finished haircut soon followed.

Goff of a lot in Fell street between Van Ness avenue and Franklin street, forming part of the public library site. The lot was the last piece to be acquired by the city and made the entire block bounded by Van Ness avenue, Franklin, Hayes and Fell streets available for the library site.

OVATION FOR LANGDON

District Attorney William H. Langdon was given an ovation when he entered the hall. His short review of the work done by his office and the promise of the conviction of wealthy bootlers were received with great enthusiasm.

Other speakers at the meeting in Garibaldi hall were John Gibson, city auditor; Dr. R. E. Hartley, for coroner; Dr. O. F. Westphal, Thomas F. Egan and Chairman Marc Anthony.

Ryan was accorded an enthusiastic greeting by nearly 1,200 people when he arrived at Dolores hall, Sixteenth and Mission streets, last night. Prior to his arrival District Attorney Langdon, Edgar Pleixotto and Thomas F. Egan spoke to the people in the hall, holding their attention while they waited for the chief speaker of the evening.

Langdon was given a shout of greeting when he entered the hall. He pleaded for a further opportunity to finish the work he has begun and promised that if he were allowed to go after the grafters San Francisco would be cleansed from the stain now upon it in the eyes of the rest of the country. He said that he could not believe that the voters intended to send back to private life the men who had carried the brunt of the graft prosecution while that work was but half finished.

Ryan, who was also greeted with great applause, said that he was of the people and that he by the people he hoped to regenerate San Francisco. He promised that he would be no man's man, and boasted of the fact that the republican papers, which had been behind the republican nominees of the past, were now behind him. "You must choose between me and the representatives of a class on the coming election day," was his final announcement, and it drew forth a shout of approval.

Besides Pleixotto and Egan several of the other candidates on the ticket spoke at some length, appealing to those present to support the republican ticket at the coming election. Their listeners gave them careful attention and frequently interrupted with applause.

Ryan was well received by a large number of the employes in the iron works, planning mills and freight yards yesterday when he held an open meeting at noon at the corner of Sixth and Townsend streets.

EXECUTOR OF BIG HITE ESTATE IS SUSPENDED

Heirs of $600,000 Property Accuse F. A. Berlin of Wasting Wealth

F. A. Berlin, executor of the estate of John R. Hite, who died on the morning of April 15, 1906, leaving a large estate, was removed from his executorship yesterday by Judge Coffey on the ground of mismanagement of the estate. Berlin is required to show cause November 6 why the letters testamentary issued to him should not be permanently revoked.

Judge Coffey issued the order as the result of a showing made to him by Garber, Cresswell & Garber, attorneys for the heirs under the will, who alleged that Berlin had wasted the estate. He has used the money of the estate to purchase real estate in Nevada and to buy mining stocks without the order of the court or authority in law, according to the information conveyed to the judge by the attorneys. Judge Coffey thereupon suspended Berlin from the executorship "until the further order of the court."

The Hite estate was valued at $602,000, including $200,000 in cash, Hite having disposed of some valuable real estate shortly before his death. Although he died on the morning of the big fire which devastated San Francisco, his death occurred before the earthquake which occasioned that fire.
