HANDS WITH LABOR
Unions Are Advised of the New Departure of the Presbyterians

The central labor bodies of this city and the Presbyterians of the United States have established a department of church and labor, with the idea of having the church, through its clergymen, take an active interest in the affairs of labor and to interest the laboring people in the church. Rev. Charles Stelze, formerly of St. Louis, has been placed at the head of the new department. He was a machinist before he was ordained a minister and he still keeps up his membership in the lodge in which he was initiated. He always carries his card with him. He is represented as a man who has gained the good will and respect of all labor organizations, the doors of which are open to him at all times. He writes for many labor papers, besides talking wherever he visits. Unique in his new line, it is said, he speaks plainly to the men he addresses, mixes no words, and does not hesitate to tell them of faults in the conduct of their business when he discovers them. He has been very active on the subject of abolishing the salaried ministry, and has spoken on the subject with great enthusiasm. The communication concludes in these words: "The Rev. Mr. Stelze has succeeded where other clergymen might have failed, chiefly because he has had the good sense to refrain from a patronizing attitude toward his hearers. His success gives the lie to the statement of repeated that organized labor and the church are incompatible. This is a matter of great importance, as serious denominations who have earned the warm friendship of union men, but Rev. Mr. Stelze is pre-eminent in the distinctive national field which he has chosen for himself."

Information has been received in this city that there will be industrial peace in the city of Brooklyn, N. Y., during the current year, and that the people of San Francisco will find it to their advantage to follow the example of the city. The employers' association has issued a statement in which it is set forth: "Many of the unions are satisfied to renew their relations with the employers, hoping that in the current year matters will improve in the building industry. At present the outlook is bad. We may have a rebuilding season this year. The mechanics, like the employers, can only hope that the stagnation will not last long. In the matter of the prevention of strikes, the employers have decided not to reduce wages. The workers, as well, and both sides feel that such a plan should remain permanent."

In accordance with this idea the following organizations have agreed to abide by the conclusion reached: Bricklayers and masons' union, 13,000 members; electrical workers, 5,000; operative plasterers, 5,000; journeymen electricians, 2,000; plumbers, 2,000; workers, 3,000; marble cutters, 2,500; elevator constructors, 2,000; marble polishers, 1,500; wood carvers, 800; tile layers, 600; millers, 500; portable hoisting engineers, 500. Total, 37,400.

Timothy A. Reardon of the steam fitters' union received a letter yesterday from the east announcing that the special committee named by the American Federation of Labor at its recent meeting in Norfolk, Va., had been summoned to meet in Washington, D. C., this week to settle the controversy between the steam fitters and the plumbers. This matter, in which the steam fitters and plumbers of this city are directly interested, having brought the subject before the highest labor body in the land, is a question of trade jurisdiction as to which trade has the right to install steam pipes and fittings. The steam fitters' union has an exclusive right to do this, while the plumbers claim it under their charter, which designates them as "plumber, gas and steam fitters." The committee, with Samuel Compers, president of the federation, as referee, will go into all the points raised, and it is expected that a decision will be reached before the close of the week.

A number of Italian bakers who compose an independent association and are in no way connected with any of the labor organizations have quit work in the Italian bakeries in which they were employed. The proprietors insisted that each man should lay off a certain time each week to give unemployed men an opportunity to earn a living. Secretary Tedishi of the association stated that the men who walked out started a co-operative bakery on Dupont street, but find themselves confronted with the fact that they cannot obtain flour. He claims that a compact was made at the time of the walkout to prevent them from carrying on their business. He stated that a committee was appointed at a meeting held Sunday night to discover if they have any legal redress in the matter.

During the absence of P. H. McCarthy in Washington, D. C., in attendance upon the formation of an organization of all the building trades that shall be under the supervision of the American Federation of Labor, the office of O. A. Twitmore at the Asiatic exclusion league in Seattle, Wash., the office of the general president and that of the general secretary-treasurer will be in charge of J. B. Bowen of Alameda. First vice president of the state building trades council.

Judge Seawell having modified the injunction against the writers' union to the extent that they may send out wagons with transparencies announcing that two cafes are unfair, and may send out pickets, providing that neither wagons nor pickets shall stand in front of either cafe, the wagons and pickets were put on duty yesterday afternoon.

There is no change in the situation, none of the other "cash" houses having given notice of intent to reduce wages.

Frank E. Maxwell, for many terms secretary of carpenters' union No. 1082, having been elected secretary of the district council of carpenters, tendered his resignation in the union, as his new duties will not permit him to attend to the work he should do for it. On retiring from No. 1082 the members gave him a vote of thanks for his conscientious manner in which he had fulfilled the duties of his office.

Bakers' union No. 24 has decided to hold a summoned meeting on the third Saturday of the month for the purpose of amending the bylaws. Heretofore Wellmer, Emil Elsdorf, George Winterford, P. Guderley, Antone Wahl, Emmett Fritch and Edward Hoffman were appointed a committee to select grounds for holding a picnic in the name of the union Sunday, May 8.

FEARS DEATH MAY BEAT VERDICT HERE
Aged Nevada Lawyer Asks Federal Court to Grind a Bit Faster

Thomas Fitch Urges Decision in Saki Case Ere His Life Ends

Thomas Fitch, the veteran Nevada attorney who has thrilled hundreds of audiences and many courts with his eloquence, stated to the judges sitting in the United States court of appeals yesterday that he would ask that the court would hand down a decision in the Saki case as soon as possible, as he had long passed his seventieth milestone and he felt that his ship was fast bearing toward the golden shore. Attorney Fitch explained that his partner had passed away since the case was started and that he would like to see the matter settled.

Attorney Fitch appears as counsel for the importing firm of T. Komada, which has brought suit against the United States government to recover money paid as duty on Saki during the past six years. The Saki case was brought before the circuit court in 1906, but the case was not decided and was yesterday brought before the court of appeals for a final decision.

The content of the government, as stated by United States Attorneys Devlin and McKinley, is that Saki is an alcoholic beverage and that it might well be classed under the section of the statute providing for a tax of $2.50 on spirituous beverages, or of a still wine, on which the tax is 50 cents a gallon.

The question now before the court of appeals is whether the duty now collected by the government is correct or whether Saki should be taxed at a lower rate. Saki, according to the evidence given by chemists and wine experts, greatly resembles several kinds of grape wine, and Attorney Devlin argues that the difference between the Japanese drink and American wines was hardly noticeable. Judges Gilbert, Ross and De Haven presided yesterday.

The Coming of the Fleet

A second article relative to the coming of the big fleet of battleships appears in the February Sunspot Magazine. It is written by Naval constructor Evans, and is a good inside story of the manner in which the fleet will be maintained on the coast. There are 30 or more engravings picturing Mare Island and Bremerton navy yards.

MANY ARE VICTIMS OF PETTY THIEVES

Pickpockets, Burglars and Room Robbers Show No Abatement of Activities

Barth Buttery of 410 Harrison street was attacked by two unidentified men at First and Folsom streets late Saturday night and robbed of a silver watch and $2 in coin.

A thief entered the room of Mrs. A. L. Heavy, 2033 Sutter street, Saturday night and a gold watch, a ring with rubies and pearls, an unset cameo, a fraternity pin and $3 were stolen.

Miss C. J. Benschmidt, 2320 Sacramento street, while standing at Clay and Dupont streets Sunday afternoon was relieved of a purse containing $1, a pair of eyeglasses and some papers.

While J. R. Ware of the Central hotel, Third and Townsend streets, was in a room at a Turkish bath place Saturday night a gold watch, double chain and locket with a small diamond were stolen from him.

The wife of T. Kanaaki, 1833 Geary street, saw a man coming downstairs Saturday night with her husband's overcoat, valued at $35, over her arm. She was afraid to raise an outcry and the man made his escape.

A man representing himself as a collector called at the home of Mrs. A. Bonden, 374 Duboce avenue, Saturday night and while she was absent from the room stole her purse, containing $2.50.

ATTORNEY ASKS $25,000

Trial of a suit for $25,000 attorney's fees brought by Louis Goldstone against the West Coast oyster company, the Darbee & Immel oyster and land company and the Pacific oyster company was begun in Judge Trout's court yesterday. Goldstone represented the defendant in long drawn litigation over the big oyster beds near San Leandro, said to be worth $500,000.

REVEALS VERY LAX TEACHING METHODS
Charges Against Webster Lead to Discovery at Commercial School

Board of Education to Delve into Squabble That Stirs Department

Growing out of the charges of using his official position to advance his private business interests which were made last week against Assistant Superintendent of Schools R. H. Webster, an investigation will be begun by the board of education tomorrow morning. The saki case was opened according to his defense of the charges yesterday. He says that the record he is accused of having sent pupils of the Metropolitan business college, of which he is president, to copy was the census report and, therefore, not the interests of the laws of the state, to any citizen.

Webster's declaration that the charges were sent forth by C. H. Murphy, principal of the Commercial evening school, in order that deficiencies in the scholarship of pupils in his school, which Webster had uncovered, might be covered up, has brought about the investigation of the work of commercial school pupils, according to Webster the investigation has revealed some very lax methods of teaching.

Webster, the supervisor of evening schools, James Ferguson, Murphy and a number of assistant teachers in the Commercial high school have been subpoenaed to appear at the board's meeting tomorrow morning, when the entire matter will be threshed out. Webster said yesterday that the meeting was called, not for the purpose of conducting the trial against him, but for the purpose of discovering why but 14 out of a class of nearly 200 of the Commercial high school seniors was graduated at the close of the term just past.

School Director David Oliver, who has strongly advocated pressing an investigation of Webster's conduct, said that both matters would be given consideration.

"Something is radically wrong," said Oliver. "The work of the Commercial high school has certainly been very lax if Webster's report, which is corroborated by that of Inspector James Ferguson, be true, but the office of the superintendent of schools is answerable for this, and even if the more serious charge against Webster of trying to get a public school pupil into a private institution is unfounded some one should be made to answer for the injustice done to the children who attend the Commercial school. The affair will be gone through to the bottom and we will endeavor to explain away everything that has been said against him."

LEGACY FOR CARE OF DOG IS DECLARED VOID

Judge Hunt Invalidates Devise of Nathan Brackett Graves

The legacy in the will of the late Nathan Brackett, setting apart the income from $1,000 for the care and maintenance of his dog Pup was invalidated by Judge Hunt yesterday, sitting for Judge Coffey. Graves, who left an estate of about $12,000, the bulk of which was willed to his brother, Maurice A. Graves of New York state, and his sister, Mrs. Mary E. Strong of this city, stated in the document that if Mrs. Strong would care for the dog she should have the bulk of the money, but that if she did not care to undertake the responsibility the dog should be placed in other hands and the interest from the $1,000 be used solely for its maintenance.

Judge Hunt held that no such legacy could stand, and it was agreed that the $1,000 should be thrown into the residue of the estate for distribution between the heirs. A decree of distribution of the estate was signed yesterday in connection with the settlement of the estate and told Judge Hunt that the dog is in her possession and that she will care for it to the end of its days.

SUBTREASURY CASHIER GETS HONOR POSITION

Thomas Burns Placed by President on Commission of Coin Test Experts

Thomas P. Burns, cashier at the sub-treasury, has been appointed by the president to the commission which annually examines the country's mint coins reserved by the mints. A notice of the president's appointment was received yesterday by Cashier Burns. The commission will meet in Philadelphia February 12. Senator George C. Perkins recommended the appointment of Cashier Burns. The commissioners examine and test the fitness and weight of coins reserved by the several mints in the United States and the result of their examination is reported to the treasurer of the United States.

The treasury department rules governing mints provide that one coin from each thousand shall be set aside and sent to Philadelphia to be examined and tested. The government takes this method of learning the exact standard of the metals used in the mints, and the report of the commissioners is frequently accompanied by recommendations. Cashier Burns is recognized as an authority on metals and he is also known as a handwriting expert, having frequently been called before the courts to give opinions.

Gossip of Railwaymen

When Henry T. Scott received his 1908 annual from the Southern Pacific the grave gasp which he uttered in pain. He read and reread the pastebord, but it was as plain as day. He could not use his pass on the ferries. He could not use it on a number of trains, and worse than all he could not use his annual between San Francisco and San Jose.

"What's the use of this pass, I would like to know? Why, I can not use it between here and my home at Burlingame," he grumbled.

"Then it means," said a sympathetic clerk, "that you will have to buy a book of commutation tickets." The clerk lives in Alameda, and, being poor, he pays his way.

"It strikes me," answered Scott, fixing a glittering eye on the clerk, "that you are getting uncommonly bright nowadays. If it continues you will have to be taking a holiday, at your own expense."

The more Scott thought of that annual the more irritated he became. He determined to have his revenge, so he sent for one of his telephone annuals and made out a pass for E. E. Calvin which read thus:

"Not good anywhere for switches between the hours of 6 a. m. and 12 midnight. Not good for switches within the city and county of San Francisco at any time."

"That," murmured Scott, as he surveyed his handiwork, "will bring home to the Southern Pacific people that others can be as mean as themselves."

During the life of the 42 foot car rule, the west bound transcontinental tariff "one G" the carriers, at their convenience, furnished cars of larger dimensions and the auditing departments assessed charges on such cars 25 per cent additional to the minimum weight on cars 42 feet and under. Claims have been made by shippers for refund of the amount collected on the additional weight. The auditing departments have been insisting that such claims must go to the interstate commerce commissioner before being allowed. The attorneys of the Pacific coast lines, however, do not agree with the auditing departments and have ruled that such claims can be paid without consulting the interstate commerce commission.

He is chief clerk in a large railroad office and is strict in his attendance to duty. He is ever on time himself, and having cultivated the punctual habit is insistent that others shall follow his good example. Whenever a clerk is late he promptly sets to work to figure out if that practice were continued how much time would be lost to the company and how much the company would be robbed.

His boss is a large man and abhors pettiness in all things, and so when the chief clerk was dilating to him on his account in bringing home to the underlings the enormity of their crimes by showing figures how much time they lost he was surprised to hear:

"That is very well, Mr. Busybody, but I have been also calculating how much time you lose by your figuring. If you attended more strictly to work you would not have to waste so much time after hours catching up. It is just as well to be lenient when the offense is light."

According to the office of H. R. Judah, assistant general passenger agent of the Southern Pacific, the picnic and excursion business for the coming summer will be as large as at any time in the history of the railroad company. The picnic season opens about the middle of April and lasts till September 1. The Southern Pacific has five places where these outings are held and every place is booked for the entire season, which means that there will be five picnics held every Sunday from April to September.

E. E. Calvin, general manager of the Southern Pacific, received a formidable message yesterday, written on several scraps of paper, informing him "and the rest of the bunch" that unless the writer had thrown off to him at the station of Sprig 10,000 bucks in gold "you are in danger. If I catch you out I will kill you and the rest of the bunch." The writer went on to say that he would "be perfectly safe," as he defied any one to catch him after he had slaughtered the general manager and "the rest of the bunch."

W. H. Simpson, who looks after the general advertising of the Santa Fe, is here from Chicago. He says his company has been distributing all through the west numerous folders illustrative of the remarkable rehabilitation of the city.

The condition of James Patterson of the Chicago and Northwestern is causing serious anxiety to many friends. Patterson is ill with pneumonia and his doctors say that he is in a dangerous condition.

T. R. Connell, manager of the tourist service of the Santa Fe, arrived from Chicago yesterday and will be on the coast for a short time.

J. C. Stubbs, traffic director of the Harmon lines in Los Angeles and is expected in this city shortly. This is his regular winter visit to the coast.
