EASTERN MARKETS

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The activity in stocks toward the end of last week was notably extended today in the form of selling orders and a deep cut was made in the formerly prevailing level of prices in the course of the day's operations. Stocks were industriously pressed for sale from all sides, and as the demand was quite inadequate to absorb the sales there was a rapid decline in prices, with only occasional check, caused by the operations of professional bears. There was no striking new item of news to account for the apprehensive spirit reflected in the action of the market, but there was a pronounced growth of more spirit clearly manifested. This was due to a cumulative effect from misgivings felt for some time, while the influence on prices was aggravated by the sudden abandonment of a position on the long side of the market which had been persisted in by a speculative element. That element has been hopeful that the episode of last fall in the country's finances was due to causeless fears and misconception of the true strength of the banking position and that its effect on general trade and business was immediately to pass away, with the demonstration of the causelessness of the fears which prompted what was in effect a universal run on the banks of the country. It is a trial to the faith of those looking for this quick revival of industry when the money situation has become normal again to face the returns of continued shrinkage in railroad traffic, reduction of factory forces and general lethargy in demand for products. The resulting discouragement is having the effect of driving some of the former hopeful speculators to the other extreme, where they profess to see only gloom and prospects of an indefinite prolongation of the depression. Such a position is quite characteristic of a large class of speculative operators. The impression of hostile influences on the side of politics was heightened by the official recommendations for greater rigor in the collection of the stock transfer and franchise taxes in New York state. Declining railroad earnings brought into question future dividend disbursements. The shrinkage in profits also adds to the importance of the large financing which presses upon many corporations for settlement. The coming sale of New York city bonds is looked to as an important index of conditions in the bond field. A pronounced success for that issue at a liberal premium would be greatly reassuring, but the recent decline in the older New York bonds with the approach of the sale has affected confidence in the outcome. The decline in the older city bonds was arrested today in spite of the general weakness. The principal sufferers in the stock market were stocks which have been favorite mediums for a previous speculation for a rise. Most of the day's declines outside of these will be found moderate.
