

BURNING SAN MATEO MENLO PARK ON SAN LEANDRO HAYWARD BAY

FEARFUL RAZE HOUSE DEVOTED TO INFIRM

Eighty-Four Aged and Infirm Persons Are Homeless by Burning of the Altenheim

The Altenheim, East Oakland, Burns and Inmates Are Rescued With Difficulty

OAKLAND, July 2.—Eighty-four aged and infirm persons, several of them bedridden invalids, were made homeless by a fire which razed the Altenheim, a German old people's home, at Hopkins and Halsey streets, in East Oakland this evening, destroying property worth more than $125,000 and driving the occupants panic-stricken and homeless into the open.

Many of the aged inmates, who had become as little children with decrepitude, were borne out of the burning structure after they had rushed wildly back with the purpose of saving personal belongings. Others who were in bedfast, when the flames began their work were carried out in arms and shelter was provided for them in the homes of nearby residents.

When the fire broke out, near the eaves at the northeast corner of the building, almost all the inmates were at supper in the dining room. There were more than 75 of them on the first floor seated at tables and when the cry of "Fire" resounded some one rang the fire bell and the matron, Mrs. Eva Behnken, began rushing the patients out of the building.

TAKE INVALIDS FROM BEDS The fire then had been burning for some time and it had spread from the corner where it started to run and over the entire third floor. The invalids confined to their beds were all on the second floor and from there were carried to safety. Had any of them been in beds on the third or top floor there undoubtedly would have been casualties among the old folk.

The fire was first discovered by Fritz Sandow, the janitor. He walked out of the rear door while supper was being served and saw smoke rising from the rear of the three-story structure. He and Fritz Steuch, a waiter, ran through the building crying "fire" and hastened up to the third floor, thinking they would save the patients. On the third floor they were driven back by flames beating in their faces. While Steuch ran to the first floor to aid in clearing the building Sandow telephoned to the Fruitvale fire houses.

In a few minutes Fritz Sandow and No. 2 was at the Altenheim with hose and an engine. At the gate is a new hydrant recently placed there by the city of Oakland after a small blaze which started in the same part of the roof as the disastrous fire of this evening.

HYDRANT WITHOUT WATER The Fruitvale firemen coupled to the hydrant, but found that the water gate in the pipe had never been opened by the water company. There was no water for the engine to draw and it was found necessary to couple to another hydrant some distance away.

The new hydrant was not available for use until after the arrival of Chief Williams of the Oakland department. His force had been summoned by an alarm and arrived a few minutes after the Fruitvale company.

Much valuable time was lost in getting the defective hydrant to operate. By the time the water was going on, in the second floor Mrs. Woertz, 75 years old, was lying in her bed, too ill to be at supper. Her husband, Frederick Woertz, nearly 80 years old, and also an inmate, was roused by the cries of "fire" and climbing to the room of his aged spouse, helped her down the stairs just before the fire reached the corridor.

There were four others befeast, all of whom had been carried out. Mrs. Radamsky, occupying a front room on the third floor, fought with Franz Sandow and Fritz Steuch while the fire and smoke filled her room, and had to be rescued by force. She is 65 years old.

REMOVED ON STRETCHERS Carried out on mattresses used as stretchers were Mrs. Schneider, 80 years old, an inmate since her last relative died a year ago; Miss Luders, 70 years old, formerly of San Francisco, and Miss Jourg, a native of Germany who was 82 years old.

The last of the invalids to be carried out of the structure, and one who was saved only a minute before it would have been impossible to reach him, was Adolph Schraubstadter, 75 years old. He was lifted in the arms of attendants, Sandow being among them, and carried out of the side door on the first floor, to which the fire already had burned.

Mrs. Mary Peterson, the nurse in charge of the invalids, was dragged from a mass of blazing timbers when the rear porch fell upon her. She had climbed to her room after helping in the rescue work, and she had tried to rush out of the side door, through which a few minutes previously Schraubstadter had been carried. This doorway like the front one, had taken fire, and she stepped on the porch roof.

RESCUED FROM DEATH'S JAWS The woman dropped to the floor and immediately firemen from the Fruitvale company threw aside the burning boards and lifted Mrs. Peterson through a window to the outside. Embers on her garments beat out. Only her hair was singed. Rescued from the jaws of death, she at once began about aiding in the work of caring for the patients and others who required aid.

Two invalids, Dr. Haas formerly a prominent German physician of San Francisco, and H. Dams, were taken to the home of J. Vogt, 732 East Thirty-second street.

The fire began at the top northeast corner of the structure, where it is thought there was a defective flue. The flames followed the chimney downward and then spread through the third story to the front of the building. The bricks walls made it impossible to reach the fire.

Less than three months ago a fire broke out in the same corner and probably from the same flue. At that time the loss was slight, the Fruitvale fire department conquering the flames.

BUILDING COST $125,000 The German old people's home, or the Altenheim, as it was better known, was almost 15 years old. The cornerstone was laid on August 20, 1893, and the building was occupied for the first time early in 1894. The structure cost originally about $125,000 and was insured for $50,000, according to C. C. Volberg, vice president of the society, which owned and conducted the institution.

The building was of wood, with three stories, a high street and a brick basement. It contained about 100 rooms, nearly all of which were occupied.

MCDONALD DENIES HE IS MARRIED

But Young Newspaperman and Miss Emma Gregory Said to Be Secretly Wedded

BERKELEY, July 3.—Is Herschel McDonald, the popular young newspaperman, married or not? He emphatically says he is still enjoying single blessedness, but his friends say otherwise. They tell the story that he married dainty Miss Emma Gregory at Santa Ana last January, but has kept the secret all these months.

The couple were married, say these same friends, in the south, while both were presumably on their vacations. The knot was tied in the southern city, and then McDonald and his bride returned to their respective homes in this city, the secret only becoming known today.

Mrs. MacDonald is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gregory of 1814 Addison street. Her brother, Charles Gregory, is a deputy county auditor. She is a sister of Mrs. Otto Putzker, wife of an automobile dealer of Berkeley.

The groom has lived in this city all his life and is well known in social and fraternal circles. He is a member of the Elks and Masonic orders and has been associated with various newspapers about the bay for the last 10 years.

HAISEY STILL ILL Theodore V. Halsey, the official of the Pacific States telephone company whose trial for bribery was interrupted nearly a year ago by an operation for appendicitis, is still too ill to be brought into court. His case was on Judge Dunne's calendar yesterday to be reset for trial, but by consent of both sides a continuance to July 18 was ordered.

The cases of Mrs. W. Coffey and Andrew M. Wilson, who were charged with receiving a bribe, were also continued to June 18 by Judge Dunne for arraignment.

departments of Fruitvale and this city found it difficult to get within fighting distance of the flames. The defective hydrant and the poor water pressure also made the work of the fire fighters inefficient.

The officers of the society which managed the Altenheim are: President Charles Hanson of San Francisco; vice president, C. C. Volberg of Alameda; secretary, Charles Volken; treasurer, L. S. Rose. Among the directors are Theodore Gier and P. W. Sohst of this city, Mrs. Louise Westhof, Mrs. E. Bahg and Fritz Habentich.

President Hanson is ill at his home in San Francisco. In his absence Vice President Volberg and Colonel Gier took a hand in directing the disposition of the burned out inmates of the home this evening. Many of the old people had friends who, when they learned of the destruction of the Altenheim, took the homeless ones to their own firesides.

Theodore Gier was active in providing quarters for those who were homeless and helpless. He sent many of them in automobiles to homes of his friends and the invalids to local hospitals.

A two-story house located west of the Altenheim, which was purchased by the society shortly after the San Francisco fire, was made use of this evening by Matron Behnken as a temporary shelter for many of her charges.

"Speaking of what the directors of the society might do, Vice President Volberg said:

"Personally, I am in favor of immediately erecting a temporary building on the grounds to house the old folks. The weather is mild now and probably will remain so for several months. In that time we can have a new and substantial building well under way.

"I believe that we could call upon wealthy Germans of California tomorrow and in a few hours raise $50,000 with which to start the work. We are inclined to attribute the fire to a defective flue. The fire started at the top of the building near the northeast corner. It was in exactly the same location that a fire broke out several months ago. At that time the flames were put out before much damage had been done.

"It was fortunate that the fire occurred when nearly all the inmates of the home were on the lower floor at supper. Had the building taken fire in the night, after the old people had retired to their rooms on the upper floors, some lives certainly would have been lost."

FORBIDS RANCHER TO WANT ANNEXATION

Assign Property AND WITHDRAWAL

OAKLAND, July 3.—Eugene Lindley, a wealthy Yolo county rancher, was restrained today by order of Judge Harris from disposing of any of his property, consisting of 300 acres of growing barley, 4,000 shares of mining stock, money in bank, and many head of horses, sheep and hogs, pending the trial of a divorce action brought against him by his wife, Elizabeth. The court also considered a motion made by Lindley for a change of venue to Yolo county, but continued it a week.

Mrs. Lindley accused her husband of extreme cruelty. She alleged that he made false accusations against her and struck her. She asked the court to award her $150 a month alimony, $500 attorney fees and $75 costs.

ALLOWS WIFE ALIMONY Judge Melvin ordered J. L. Moore, a druggist, to pay his wife $100 a month alimony. A divorce suit is now pending between the Moores, the wife having accused the husband of cruelty. When they were married, she said, Moore told her that she was a spoiled child, and that he would have to train her in the proper way of living. Accordingly, she alleged, he told her that she was a failure to provide foolishly; she had to eat just what he prescribed, read the books he selected for her mental improvement, and wear the gowns and hats he picked out. When she was married, she said, Moore offered her the divorce papers, but she declared, and made her swallow it. Once, she said, a piece of limburger cheese was so forced down her throat.

The case was heard in Judge Melvin's court. Moore and his wife were married in Vallejo three years ago.

OBJECTS TO MARRIED LIFE "Married life is repulsive to me," wrote Bella A. Smith to her husband, Harris, according to the tale he told Judge Melvin. He was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce on the ground of desertion.

The following new actions for divorce were begun today: Joseph P. Meyer against Virginia Meyer, desertion; Carrie Rose against Joe P. Rose, cruelty and failure to provide; Jessie Potter was granted an interlocutory decree against Jared C. Potter on the ground of desertion. Potter left his wife, who is an employee of the Sunset telephone company, and went to Grants Pass, Ore.

WILL BUILD FINE CHURCH Italian Residents of North Beach District Purchase Lot

The Italian residents of the North Beach district soon will have a church of which any part of the city would be proud. A lot 137.6 by 160 has been purchased in Filbert street between Powell and Stockton and plans have been prepared for the erection of a noble edifice. The Italians are noted for the beauty of their buildings, and if report speaks truly the new Italian church will be one of the most beautiful in the city. The lot cost $47,500. Father B. C. Radahan, the pastor, will personally superintend the new Mission of the church, to which will be attached a handsome hall.

It cannot be definitely said what the church and hall will cost, but as the Italian colony is extremely liberal and progressive their church will undoubtedly be built without regard to cost.

DYNAMITE STOLEN FROM MAGAZINE

Authorities at Sea Over Theft of 74 Sticks of Explosive Near Ocean View

The local police and the sheriff of San Mateo county are investigating the thefts of large quantities of dynamite, fuse and caps from the magazine of Dodge & Co., graders for the San Mateo county, a hill near Ocean View about 500 yards south of the county line and is surrounded by trees.

On Tuesday night the magazine was broken into by forcing the locks off the door and 24 sticks of dynamite, 50 feet of fuse and nearly a boxful of caps were stolen. The following night the magazine was again visited and 50 sticks of dynamite, 80 feet of fuse and a boxful of caps were taken.

Detectives L. C. Murphy, Gaughan and Goff were detailed by Captain Kelly to make an investigation, and they reported yesterday that they were unable to obtain information as to the offenders. He had questioned Harry Davis, superintendent in charge of the magazine, who expressed the opinion that the guilty persons were boys living in the locality. Sheriff Kirkpatrick of San Mateo county was unable to give them any information.

Captain Kelly said yesterday that he had fifteen men working on the case, as he was determined to sift the matter to the bottom. There were, he said, a great many people in that locality who were grading their own lots and as they would have to give a bond to secure dynamite it was his opinion that they had adopted this means of supplying themselves to avoid the necessity of paying for the explosive or supplying bonds. That was only a theory. It might have been the work of boys who wanted to have a supply of explosives to celebrate the fourth, but it might have been the work of men who had an unlawful purpose in view, but Kelly hoped the mystery would be solved soon, as it was a danger to the community to have such a large quantity of explosives around.

MRS. FISKE LAUDS PLAYS OF IBSEN

Actress Decries Time Honored Customs of Stage and Declares Stars Mar Art

BERKELEY, July 3.—Time honored customs, tricks and habits of the stage were condemned this afternoon by Mrs. Minnie Madden Fiske, the well known actress, who before an audience in Herat hall upheld Ibsen as the playwright who started the upbuilding of the American stage in the right direction.

Mrs. Fiske especially condemned emotional acting and melodramatic plays, which she characterized as a "false appeal which took the highest form of immorality on the stage." She said that emotional acting was strained, unnatural and debasing.

"The old fashioned society emotional play is as milk and water compared to Ibsen," said Mrs. Fiske. "The former is revolting, immoral and unnatural; the latter noble, grand and impressive. We are beginning to have a truer idea of the play. The old fashioned idea of having the heroine weep bitter tears and tear down the hangings at the end of the fourth act has disappeared. Bloodshed now is a rarity and tears few, for we are doing better acting."

"The artistic aim of the producer of a play is perfect harmony. How can this be attained in a so called star play, which debases the talent of the dramatic writer, distorts all the scenes, disarranges the entire play and plays for the purpose of protecting a single player and casting him into the limelight? It can be compared to an orchestra in which four pieces are in tune and the other instruments in discord.

"There are no star plays in Shakespeare and Ibsen. The latter has reached the limit of the modern drama and he has revolutionized the modern play in every country."

Declaring the public knew little of plays, Mrs. Fiske closed her reading with an appeal for a better understanding of plays and playwrights and the hope that plays of the future would represent the true ideal of dramatic art.
