Thomas Agrees to Meet Winner Kelly-Ketchel Bout

LOS ANGELES, July 17.—A right swing to the jaw in the twentieth round ended one of the wickedest lightweight fights ever seen in this city and proclaimed Phil Brock of Cleveland the victor over Frank Carsey of Chicago.

It took another vacation in the safe till last winter, when Promoter Luke Marisch fell for it, had it all polished up like a new pair of shoes, and then upon Abe Attell as the original, the real McCoy, and the affidavit that Abe was the bona fide feather weight champ of the land that boasts the stars and stripes.

However, complications arose and Abe got in so bad with Marisch that Luke decided he would hold it out on the little Hebrew and pass it to some other champ of a more appreciative nature.

It was wise up to the fact that Coffroth had glaucoma, so he demanded back the belt or the price. Coffroth did not feel like paying the price, so the change guards once more.
