WARFIELD'S HIT
EVENT OF DECADE
"The Music Master" Continues to Be Greatest Attraction Presented in This City

David Warfield's hit at the Alcazar theater will go into theatrical history as the event of a decade. Of all the attractions that David Belasco has produced not one more convincingly proves his artistry than "The Music Master." The details of Von Barwig's struggles; the beauty of his big soul; the incidents of his search for his daughter, are told with a vivid picturesqueness that must be seen to be appreciated. "The Music Master" will conclude its first week at the Alcazar theater next Saturday night. There will be a Saturday matinee, but no Sunday performances.

VAN NESS
Pretty girls, clever comedians, a dozen song hits and great variety of costumes and scenery are to be expected in the musical play, "The Girl Question," which comes to the Van Ness theater next Monday night at the conclusion of the engagement of "The Man of the Hour" company. The latter play is drawing well this week. Paul Nicholson, a musical comedy star in the east, and Henrietta Tedro, also an eastern favorite, head the list of players in "The Girl Question."

AMERICAN
"The Bohemian Girl" is attracting large audiences to the American theater this week, and the familiar melody as sung by the principals are enthusiastically received. "Maritana," another old time favorite, will be revived by the Perse-Mason opera company next Sunday afternoon. During the days of Clara Louise Kellogg the opera was before the public constantly, but the forthcoming presentation will be the first in this city in many years. Edith Mason, who has been playing the role of Arline in "The Bohemian Girl" at the American theater, was ill yesterday and was unable to give the part. An understudy was signed to the role. Miss Mason's indisposition proved but temporary and the management stated late last night that the popular prima donna would appear tonight in the title role of the pretty opera.

PRINCESS
Ferris Hartman's popularity is not waning at the Princess theater. "The Wizard of the Nile" is making delightful entertainment for crowded houses at every performance. Victor Herbert and Harry B. Smith's musical play, "The Fortune Teller," will be given a beautiful production next Monday night and Hartman will repeat one of his former successes in the role of Boris. Christina Nielsen will make her reappearance in the role of the fortune teller.

ORPHEUM
The splendid program at the Orpheum this week is getting its reward of a crowded house at every performance. Even the Tuesday matinee, between two holidays, saw the house sold out. The bill for next week includes Charmion as headliner; Frank Gardner and Lottie Vincent in "Winning a Queen"; Fred Warren and Al Blanchard, comedy stars; A. O. Duncan, ventriloquist, and the two Pucks in songs and character costumes, besides the newest and best on this week's bill.

NATIONAL
The Finneys are creating a sensation at the National theater this week with their aquatic tricks. A better act has never been seen at the local vaudeville stage. The balance of the bill, including Eleanor Blanchard, the Pantzer trio, Jules Garrison, Kelly and Violette, are making good. For next week among the newcomers will be Laura O'Mears, Fagan and Byron Florence Medina and a half dozen others who will supply acts of interest and novelty.

CENTRAL
"The California Outlaw," by the late Carro True Boardman, is having satisfactory run at the Central theater this week. The leading roles, as played by J. Anthony Smith, Kathryn Wayne, T. N. Heffron, Clair Sinclair, Elmer Booth, Lottie Vincent, in "Winning a Queen"; Alice Condon and Frank Bonner, are realistically and cleverly handled and the melodrama is making a real sensation.

CHUTES
Tonight will be amateur night at the Chutes and a most ludicrous program is promised. At the matinee next Sunday an entirely new program will be given, consisting of the trans-Atlantic

Culinary Notes
Bracoleto—Take one pound of tender beef and chop very fine, mixing with it a little powdered cloves, a teaspoonful of olive oil and a little chopped onion. Add salt, pepper and parsley to taste. When well mixed, roll it out and form into small balls. Dip each one into butter and then in crumbs. Broil them over a good fire. Serve at once.

Jellied Veal—Cut up a knuckle of veal and cover it with two quarts of cold water, bring it slowly to boiling point and simmer slowly for two hours. Add two slices onion, a bay leaf, a few pepper corns, 13 whole cloves, and half a teaspoonful of ground allspice. Let it simmer for an hour longer. Take out the meat, remove all the bones and pick the meat into small pieces. Put into a mold, add salt and pepper. Turn over the meat and stand away for 12 hours or more to harden.

Valentin Rice—Chop fine two onions, fry in half cup of refined bacon. Do not let them burn. Take six tomatoes, pare them and cut fine. Wash two cupfuls of rice and put into saucepan, pour the mixture over and add as much water as will boil the rice well; then add two seeded green peppers, cut in quarters, salt to taste and boil until rice is soft. Take out the ends of the peppers. Serve with cold meat.

About Potatoes—The potato is a starchy food that contains enough moisture in its composition to cook the starch. This moisture is in the form of a watery juice, in which is dissolved the nitrogenous matter, the various salts, sugar and coloring matter. Cells are surrounded and penetrated by this watery bath. In cooking, the nitrogenous matter is coagulated, in part at least, by the heat, the starch granules swell and burst, and the starch absorbs the watery part of the juice. When this moisture is reached, if the moisture has been in the right proportion, all parts of the potato will present a light, dry, glistening appearance. Every one concedes that such a potato will not cause digestive disturbance. However, the moisture is not always in the right proportion. Ripe potatoes and potatoes grown on a well drained soil, in a light, sandy soil, are dry and mealy if properly cooked. Potatoes grown in a wet, damp soil as a rule contain a large amount of moisture for the starch. Old potatoes that are allowed to sprout will be watery, probably owing to the withdrawal of some of the starch for food for the growing sprouts.

Potatoes cooked in dry heat, as by baking in the oven, roasting in ashes, frying in deep fat, or steaming in their jackets retain all their salts and other constituents, and the flavor is more pronounced and savory than when cooked in water. Potatoes so cooked must be served just as soon as they are done, or they will become soggy and have a bad flavor.

The Toilet
Women who are obliged to exercise economy in dressing will be glad to note the popularity of the all black hat again this fall. A large shape which rolls at the side is becoming to almost any type of face, and trimmed with a wire pleated tulle and ostrich plumes is exceedingly attractive with any style or street or evening costume.

Four, Jack Golden and company; Margie Weber, balladist; Onida, a wire walker; Lucille Hall, monologist, and new moving pictures.

VALENCIA
The Valencia theater will open its doors next Saturday night with an elaborate production of "The Great Ruby." The event will be an important one in local theatricals, for it will mean the beginning of a season of high class, spectacular and well produced dramas with a cast of players not to be excelled in the west. Robert Warfield, whose playing with Katherine Grey at the Novelty theater has won him a reputation in this city, will be the leading man and the management of the Valencia states that the cast throughout and the settings to be given the productions will be the best.

Soft, fluffy transparencies, such as net and fine lace, make smart trimmings.

A gown with a detachable gimpie may be made to serve many purposes. When the gimpie is removed the costume becomes suitable for formal evening wear. The smart gown has a draped bodice of satin, cut rather low but filled in over the bust line with a band of Venice lace edged with piping of velvet, which forms a square décolletage when the gimpie is removed. The skirt has a ruffled, drapery edged with fringes. This fringe trimming is repeated on the draped oversleeves of the bodice.

Newport women have a fashion just now of wearing with their lingerie gowns, which are nearly always of white lawn or muslin, small bouquets of real flowers to match the flowers which adorn the hat that is worn. These cloth gloves, excellent wear, are draped over the waist belt or the front of the bodice, or sometimes carried in the hand.

The Sewing Room
It is a mistake to buy cheap, ready made underwear, if a woman has any time at all in which to make her own. These cloth gloves, excellent wear, and if bought in pieces of 12 yards is cheaper than if purchased by the single yard. Muslins, cambrics and nainsooks are also suitable for underwear and nightgowns. If the garments are to be sent out to laundries it is better to eliminate the ruffles, laces and frills, which make the garment that much harder to make and that much more expensive to have laundered. In place of heading many women have adopted a casing, which is made of a bias piece of sheer material through which a line of colored ribbon is run.

A school frock that has lower sleeves and yoke made separately and basted in so that they may be removed and laundered or renewed saves washing the whole dress. A net yoke will be found economical for this purpose, as it can be washed and ironed in place and dried over night and requires no ironing. In order that the yoke may not stretch and lose its shape when washed, bind the neck with a piece of narrow tape, and likewise the top of the sleeve. To prevent the collar stretching into a strip of heavy ribbon along the seam where it joins the yoke, if this is placed on the wrong side and both edges neatly hemmed down with fine thread, it will hold its shape and will not show through the net. A pleasing change can be secured by using lawn or muslin for the yoke, which combines nicely with any color, and another of net that matches in color the material of the dress.

Housekeeping in France
In France housekeeping is much simpler than it is in either England or America, and there are fewer servants. For instance, a French parlor maid is unknown, the one femme de chambre being lady's maid and housemaid. The housework, sweeping, dusting, etc., is done by men servants. The staying guest is also unknown, or practically so, which greatly lessens the work of a house; in fact, Parisian quarters are usually so small there is no room for the week end visitor.

The Coiffure
The pompadour will always be the friend of middle aged women, for it allows so many modifications that almost any type can be made successfully. For those whose locks are very scant, an artificial piece called the contour can be bought. It is built on the same plan as the Indian feather headdress, and in arranging it all the natural hair and shoulders, when the contour of hair matches the natural is tucked around the hair and then rolled back, preferably over the tips of the ears, and braided in the back. With this dressing the elderly woman wears a long comb with pliers or filigree top instead of the large ribbon affected by young matrons.

Styles for elderly women do not change so often nor so radically as the fashions for young matrons and girls. The present coronet mode of dressing is one of the few modern styles which, although it does not suit every type of face, it is generally considered to be the most becoming and an oval face, while it will not suit a round or a full face. In this coiffure the hair should be parted around the crown, then rolled back, preferably over the tips of the ears, and braided in the back. With this dressing the elderly woman wears a long comb with pliers or filigree top instead of the large ribbon affected by young matrons.

AUTOMOBILE TRIPS
CIRCULATE MONEY
Large Sums Expended Whenever a Holiday Is Enjoyed by Motorists

By R. R. Phommedieu
Considering the automobile from a purely commercial standpoint, it was shown during the five days' vacation just over that it is a factor in keeping money in circulation. From a conservative estimate, it is figured that at least one thousand automobiles were in commission during these days in the hunt for pleasure. Each car averaged five passengers, making a total of five thousand. Estimating the wear and tear on the motor cars, gasoline and oil consumption, with the other incidentals in upkeep, as well as traveling expenses, at least $5 a person, one thousand cars, averaging five passengers, spent $25,000 a day, or $125,000 for the five days' outing. Thus a large amount of money is continually changing hands. Taking these figures as a basis for the eight months of the touring season, about $800,000 will be put in circulation by automobilists in the vicinity of San Francisco. This money is scattered a radius of two hundred and fifty miles, and shows that the farmer and out-of-town merchant is getting a fair rebate on the money they sent to San Francisco.

PREPARING FOR ANNUAL SHOW
The principal business of the last meeting of the licensed automobile manufacturers was that connected with the ninth national automobile show to be held at Madison Square garden, January 18 to 25. The scheme of decoration, the details of which were presented by Chairman George Pope of the show committee, was unanimously approved. The scene of the show will be a very striking one, of great beauty and marked simplicity. The structural arrangements will provide a large amount of additional floor space, as well as a more effective and convenient arrangement of the exhibits. The recent aggressive policy of the association members prohibiting their dealers from handling unlicensed cars met with full support and will be vigorously continued. H. T. Clinton, who has been in charge of the agency as well as the publicity department, tenders his resignation, which was accepted. E. E. Chalfant, assistant general manager, will in future handle agency matters. Coker F. Clarkson, secretary of the mechanical branch, will handle the publicity.

MOUNTAIN GRADES OF HUMBOLDT AND MEDICINO
A. Waycott, who has been touring over the mountainous grades of Humboldt and Medocino counties in a big seven passenger White steamer, has returned. He reports that the heavy teaming of the late summer has made some of the roads almost impassable.

GYMKHANA GAMES POPULAR
Those who have insisted that to interest the public in motoring it was necessary to run thrilling track races might change their opinion had they been at the Wheaton county fair near Chicago on motor day, when 15,000 people spent two hours and watched a gymkhana with fully as much interest as they would have looked at high powered cars circle a horse track at a dangerous speed. The Wheaton fair showed that the people like to be amused as well as thrilled.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES
W. J. Whittier called on the Studebaker Brothers company of California recently with the information that the 30 horsepower limousine which he recently purchased from the company was the first limousine car to reach the top of Mount Hamilton. Whittier said that when he reached the observatory everybody there gazed in amazement, as they thought it impossible for a closed car to make the trip. Whittier says it was made with ease, the driver having no trouble in negotiating the short turns, with this closed car.

It is predicted that the speed test made this week over a section of the Los Angeles-Pasadena highway for the purpose of demonstrating the qualities of a special pavement will attract the attention of motorists and road experts throughout the state. Walter Fage, director of the Federal good roads bureau, who will represent this country at the Paris conference, will be asked to include in a large collection already obtained a photograph of a White steamer going at the rate of 65 miles an hour, showing the dust raised by the macadam road. The car was driven by Jack Hoyle and carried, among others, Colonel Fanner, Tracy R. Noble, county surveyor; John Orman, city engineer of Pasadena; and Senor Enrique Ornelas, Mexican consul at San Antonio, Tex., who is studying different phases of the good roads problem.

L. H. Bill, manager of the local branch of the Thomas R. Jeffrey company reports the sale and delivery of a four cylinder, 32 horsepower Rambler runabout to E. F. Covell of Modesto; a four cylinder 40 horsepower Rambler touring car to Frank Atteberry of Winters, and a two cylinder 22 horsepower Rambler runabout to George F. Weston of Taos.

W. F. Culbertson of the Mobile carriage company reports the sale and delivery of a 10 horsepower six cylinder Pierce Arrow touring car to E. F. Dalton of San Francisco.

On June 30, this year, there were 588 taxicabs in operation in Berlin. On the same day there were 3,125 taxicabs in operation, which is 27 times as many as on March 31 of this year. There were also 153 motor buses in operation.

Golden West Hotel Now Open

This handsome six story structure, built of steel and brick, faced with terra cotta, is thoroughly in keeping with the high class construction of the newer and greater San Francisco, and is so designed that each of the 150 rooms will receive a great amount of sunshine and fresh air, and its interior appointments are those of the most up-to-date caravansary. Individual phone service, private baths and steam heat throughout.

A spacious lobby and lounging room, finished in mahogany and replete with costly leather upholstered chairs, bespeaks an air of comfort and elegance—and here, as in the old establishment, the genial Fred P. Plegemann will play the part of host to the miner, rural Californian or eastern tourist who seeks the hospitality of the Golden West.

As proprietor and manager, Mr. Plegemann has given much time and thought to the appointment of the new hotel.

His wide experience and good judgment in this work are well shown, for the new Golden West compares favorably with the best in the city.

Each room has an individuality of furnishing—some are complete in mahogany, others in birdseye maple, weathered or golden oak, with rich, soft carpetings to match.

In its location, corner Ellis and Powell streets, this hotel possesses many advantages; being opposite all the steamship and railroad offices, convenient to all the street car lines, close to shopping and wholesale districts, it affords an ideal stopping place for the commercial man or tourist.

The Golden West will be conducted on the European plan; and through service and appointments are of the highest class houses, the moderate rates of $1 and upward will obtain.

To mark the spirit of hospitality that exists in the Golden West, a high class buffet will be conducted, under the management of Mr. Hogan. A fine stock of high grade liquors is on hand and none but first class goods will be dispensed.

In about thirty days the new cafe will be opened in the basement. This beautiful dining hall will rank among the best in the city, both in appointments and cuisine. A first class barber shop is on the ground floor.

In finish it is in perfect harmony with the up-to-date hotel, and present indications point to a very successful future to this the successor of the well known and well liked Old Golden West Hotel.
