

PROSECUTION COMPLETES ITS CHAIN OF EVIDENCE AGAINST PATRICK CALHOUN

Former Cashier Says Boondoll Fund Was Not Used in Business of United Railroads

Far from giving any testimony yesterday to prove a legitimate use of the $200,000 taken from the mint, Dahler admitted circumstance after circumstance and fact after fact to prove the utmost contentions of the prosecution. Not only was it shown that the money did not pass through the usual channels of business and that its presence in the offices of the United Railroads was never known to the officials of the treasurers' and cashier's departments, but also that the cash books of the company containing entries of all funds used in the company's business during the period in question were spirited away from this city and out of the jurisdiction of local courts at the time the investigation of the trolley bribery was begun.

NEVER SAW CURRENCY

Dahler testified on direct examination that during the months of May, June, July and August, 1906, there were three safes in the offices of the United Railroads that had access to these safes every day and that he never saw any large package of currency in any one of them. He declared that the regular business of the company was transacted through five local banks and that the usual method was to keep all gold received in the safes at the company's offices and to deposit all silver and currency each night in one or the other of these banks.

NEVER SAW CURRENCY

"Did you ever in May, June, July or August, 1906, receive $50,000 or any other sum in currency from T. H. Williams?" asked Assistant District Attorney O'Gara.

"I never did," was the answer.

"Did you ever receive any currency from any source, except that turned in by Dahler?"

"No, I did not."

"Do you ever make a payment of any sum to Abraham Ruef, or did you know of any money being paid to him at any time?"

"I did not."

VOUCHERS ALSO REMOVED

The same thing was true of a number of vouchers. All claims against the company and all salaries paid with voucher checks made out by Dahler, and all salaries and wages of employees were paid in gold and never in currency. Dahler said that Norris had taken away some of the voucher checks at the same time he removed the cash book. He could not remember whether any receipt had been given for these voucher checks, but admitted that he had made a search for one without finding it. He stated that he could remember no voucher for either $50,000 or $100,000.

GRAND AND GREEN RIVERS ARE FOUND NAVIGABLE

Exploration in Utah and Arizona by Federal Engineer

LOS ANGELES, May 7.—Lieutenant L. C. Easton, assistant to Captain Fries, government engineer here, returned today from an exploration of the Grand and Green rivers in Utah and Arizona.

Accompanied by Lieutenant Leeds of Captain Fries' office, Lieutenant Easton explored the Grand river for 65 miles and the Green river for 125 miles, and today he says that the two waterways are navigable many miles above their junction with the Colorado river for vessels of high power and low draft.

The government doubtless will declare the two streams navigable as a result of the forthcoming report.

MURDERER LAWFESS SENT TO AN ASYLUM

Jury Finds Slayer of Bagnasco Was Irresponsible

[Special Dispatch to The Call]

NAPA, May 7.—The jury summoned to examine into the sanity of Sidney Lawless, who killed Joseph Bagnasco with an ax two months ago in this county, rendered its verdict late yesterday afternoon. The verdict was "insane," and Lawless was committed to the Ukiah state hospital. Dr. E. E. Stone and the murderer's wife, Mrs. Ada Lawless, formerly a resident of San Francisco, gave testimony which showed that Lawless was now rational and intelligent, but might have an outbreak of epileptic insanity, or a brainstorm, at any time.

GOLD ONLY ONCE

That this was a subterfuge pure and simple was brought out by Hency with a single question on redirect examination. He forced the witness to admit that all the big payments brought to him by Starr were made in exchange from the east; that checks were made out to cover all of them; and that Starr never brought him gold in a sack except on this single occasion. The money referred to is alleged to be the approximate amount, on cross examination, which was very brief, Stanley Moore asked the witness if millions of dollars a month did not pass through the United Railroads offices in the months immediately succeeding the fire, and if it were not true that Starr turned over very large sums to him. To both questions he received affirmative answers.

RUEF'S SISTER TESTIFIES

George H. Meyer, a newspaperman, testified that he was present at the meeting of the board of supervisors on May 14, 1906, when the trolley permit was passed to print, and that it was never introduced until that day during a meeting of the board. Mrs. Henrietta Sittenfeld, Abe Ruef's sister, cor-

Greece and in Venice and deals entirely with heredity. She declined to change it, however, and held it until more sympathetic publishers were found.

"The Lion of Braganza" is a historical romance dealing with the period of the dawn of the renaissance in Europe and is founded on a story which has never been written in fiction, although it is one of the best known love tales of the Iberian peninsula.

The story of Miss Bogue's interest in this was aroused by a lecture she attended during her school days in New York.

Elmendorf was lecturing on Spain and Portugal and among the lantern slides which he exhibited was one of which he seemed to know but little, but which fascinated Miss Bogue. This was the coronation of Inez de Castro, who was executed six years after her death and crowned.

The picture showed the ghastly, withered form on the throne by the side of the king, while above was displayed the lion of Braganza. For years during her travels in Europe and elsewhere Miss Bogue searched for all possible material regarding this tale, but not until last winter did the plot of its presentation in the form of a novel come to her.

Miss Bogue says that all of her writing is done in the "wee small hours" as her brain seems clearer then than at any other time.

"The Strength to Yield" she wrote during the hours between midnight and 2 o'clock.

Beyond this there is no system to the young authoress' methods of work.

Has a Delightful Modesty

"I am lazy," she said, "but when I make up my mind to do a thing I don't say much about it; I just get in and do it and I have a great deal of perseverance."

She has read and studied widely, but in regard to her achievements she has a delightful modesty.

"There is really no credit due me if I do know anything," she said, "because I have such a wonderful memory. If I read a thing once I never forget it. Once I thought I had lost the manuscript of my book, but I found I could repeat nearly all of it, word for word."

"I like to think," she went on, "that the distinguishing characteristic of my writings are imagination and color."

This love of beauty and color are predominating influences in Miss Bogue's life and have guided her in her tastes. Her favorite periods of history are the Italian renaissance, the golden age of Greece and the renaissance in England; her favorite poets Keats, Shelley, Byron, Rossetti, Swinburne and D'Annunzio; her favorite French writers Balzac and Guy de Maupassant; modern novelists, Maurice Hewlett and William Locke; playwrights, Alford, Bernard Shaw, Wilde and Augustus Thomas; actors, E. S. Willard and Duse; with Ethel Barrymore as the representative of the light society type; and her favorite city in all the world is London, but she loves California in the spring.

"I love London best because there are so many interesting people there," she declared. "Paris I do not care for. It seems to me just an American colony. When I stay there just a short time I find myself getting blasé, skeptical, tired, and then I go to London and I am like another person. I love the English atmosphere."

Miss Bogue has traveled widely and has had some interesting and unique experiences. She and her brother made a walking tour of Switzerland, making an average of 20 miles a day. She has gone through all manner of wild and inaccessible portions of Portugal on a riding trip and spent much time in Spain. Although she was born in California most of her life has been spent elsewhere, as her father, Virgil Bogue, is a famous engineer who has built many railroads both here and in South America. She is brilliantly educated and speaks French, Italian and Spanish with greatest fluency.

Miss Bogue has a distinctive personality and her tastes are in many ways unusual for a girl of her age.

Helena at Mr. Colton's direction for the purpose of taking out the articles of incorporation.

While the precise object of the new company can not be ascertained, it is generally understood here to be a move on the part of the Harriman system to head off the Northern Pacific and the Great Western railroads along the water grade from Stipes up the Clearwater river and enable it to throw out surrounding parties into the contested territory.

MOST NORTHERLY SHIP CANAL IN THE WORLD

Connects St. Michael Island and Mouth of the Yukon

SEATTLE, Wash., May 7.—Construction work on the most northerly ship canal in the world will be resumed by the United States government next month.

A crew of engineers under W. S. Wheeler will leave Seattle on one of the first boats for St. Michael to direct the work, which will be completed this year.

The canal, 17 miles long, will open up a deep channel between St. Michael island and the mouth of the Yukon river. Work on the waterway was begun last year.

BURNS BUYS BLOCK OF STOCK FROM ZINKAND

Believed That Veteran Turiman Has Outwitted T. H. Williams at His Own Game

Story of California Jockey Club Factional Strife Causes Decided Sensation

Now that the battle between Thomas H. Williams and Colonel Daniel M. Burns for supremacy in the affairs of the New California jockey club has become public through the exclusive story published in The Call yesterday morning, stray bits of news overlooked in the heat of contest have begun to appear here and there with tidings that Colonel Burns, despite his protestations of neutrality, has been gathering his forces for the fray.

BURNS BUYS ZINKAND'S STOCK

It developed yesterday that the colonel some time ago quietly added to his holdings in the club, securing from Charles S. Zinkand a notable block of 200 shares. Morris Meyerfield Jr., manager of the Orpheum theater, and now in Europe, also disposed of his stock in the club recently, and it is presumed that Colonel Burns reinforced himself with this block also.

Williams, who is president of the club, was offering to purchase stock at this time, too, but had not yet come out with the letter to the share holders, acquainting them with the fact that he was ready to buy all they wished to offer for sale.

What changes have taken place in the ownership of other shares is not known at present, and this fact gives the battle the zest of uncertainty. Moses Gunst, now in Europe, Frank Daroux, Al Broyer of Auburn and Herbert Walters of New York, all possess stock in the club, and whether or not they have disposed of any of it is a question of momentous interest in the fortunes of the club.

Either of the two jockey club generals may determine the victor in the battle.

MYSTERIOUS RESERVE FUND

Meanwhile the question regarding the size of that mysterious reserve fund held in the club's coffers continues to hold the attention of all the stock holders. Williams has been asked by a stock holder concerning its magnitude and has answered that he would rather not state, at this time, just how large the sum is. And that has increased the burning curiosity regarding it, for if the fund be as large as it is popularly supposed to be, the stock for which Williams is bidding must be worth much more than it will command if the reserve proves of little consequence. The real estate value of the two racetracks owned by the club keeps the stock at par, and if the reserve fund is of respectable size, the shares will advance in proportion to the financial reinforcement.

Williams declined to discuss the matter at all yesterday, on the ground that it was private business.

CONSTIPATION

SALE OF REDLICK'S $150,000 STOCK

BEGINS MONDAY AT SOUTHWEST COR. ELLIS AND FILLMORE STS.

Redlick Bros., the big merchants of the San Joaquin valley, planned to open a department store in the Odd Fellows Building, to be erected at the corner of 7th and Market streets. Big orders had been placed for merchandise for that purpose. Recently, however, the project has been abandoned. That leaves Redlick Bros. with a vast quantity of goods on their hands and more is coming. This stock will be disposed of at this great sale which begins Monday, corner Ellis and Fillmore, in Alfred Lillienfeld's old store. Redlick Bros. are prepared to take a big loss. They are going to sell these goods for less than the eastern manufacturers' prices. Therefore, you will secure a bargain which has never been equalled in San Francisco. The stock includes wash goods, muslins, sheetings, ladies' cloaks and suits, skirts, petticoats and waists, silks, hosiery and underwear, notions and neckwear, etc. This $150,000 stock is all new and fresh, but must be disposed of no matter what the sacrifice, and quickly at that. Therefore, prices are a mere fraction of the real value of the goods. For further details of the tremendous bargains that will be offered watch tomorrow's paper.
