

NEIL AND ATTELL READY FOR 25 ROUND MILLS. American Bantam Weight Title Will Be Settled This Afternoon at Coffroth's

By WILLIAM J. SLATTERY. Monte Attell and Frankie Neil will battle for the bantam weight championship of America this afternoon at the Mission street arena.

The betting last night favored Neil at odds of 10 to 8. Despite the great work which Attell has been doing for the last year the fans are apparently ready that Neil can come and beat him.

The winner of the contest undoubtedly will be classified as the American bantam champion. At that time ago this honor was bestowed upon Johnny Coulon of Chicago, but when he was absolutely unable to meet him at the weight, Neil was substituted and, in the meantime, the fans forgot such a person as Coulon ever existed.

Neil has not fought in this city for more than a year. His last stand was against Abe Attell. At that time Neil looked like a man on the pugilistic totem pole, but he was fairly and squarely and without a shadow of an argument. At that time Neil looked like a man on the pugilistic totem pole, but he was fairly and squarely and without a shadow of an argument.

Attell has been sailing right along in the victorious channel for the last year. Every man he has met has been his victim. He trimmed Jimmie Reagan, Jockey Bennett and Harry Dell and made quick work of each of them.

Intense hatred prevails between Neil and Attell. The latter's brother beat Neil in a fight in California, and the victim is now bent on getting even with Monte, who is absolutely certain that he can get even with Neil as his famous brother did. There is no chance of any love being wasted between the pair when they clash this afternoon.

The other two fights look good on paper. George Green, the once great middle weight, is expected to get back into form and will try conclusions with Kid Kranz of Seattle in a 10 round affair. It has many times been said that he will be able to take the measure of his younger opponent and thus win back some of his former credit laurels.

Frankie Smith and Jeff Perry, the boys who fought such a tough fight at the Nelson-Hyland East affair, will do the ring warming act for the fans. The last decision was in favor of Smith, but Jeff Perry hopes to come back and turn the tables on his man this time. The wagering is 10 to 1 in favor of Smith.

At Neil is in the going again. He will be in the ring at the Grand field, Ore., on the night of July 3. Neil will appear on the steamer Plant this afternoon and will be put on exhibition at the Novelty theater, Steiner and O'Farrell streets, tomorrow afternoon, under the management of Bob Russell and Jack Grace. The show will continue for three days, with two afternoons and three evening performances daily.

The printed pictures of the great Neil-Hyland fight arising from New York yesterday and will be put on exhibition at the Novelty theater, Steiner and O'Farrell streets, tomorrow afternoon, under the management of Bob Russell and Jack Grace. The show will continue for three days, with two afternoons and three evening performances daily.

After the conclusion of the local engagement the films will be shown in Oakland for a week, and then Russell and Grace will take them to Los Angeles, where arrangements have been completed for a one or two weeks' run. The films will then be shown at the Seattle fair.

Fighters of Three Classes Match Skill This Afternoon. Main event—FRANK NEIL vs. MONTE ATTELL, 25 rounds; Billy Roche, referee; 3:15 p. m.; American bantam weight championship.

STOCKTON ANNEXES EVITABLE JINKS. A LOP SIDED STILL FOLLOWS CONTEST. Invaders Are Badly Beaten by Big Fellow, as Usual, Loses a Millers in Worst Exhibition of the Season

It was a scream—the contest Oakland put up against Stockton yesterday and the good sized crowd that was on hand expecting to see another exciting game dwindled down to half its original proportions before the game had been fairly under way, on account of the aspect of the early innings.

The inevitable jinks which has been following Pitcher Wiggs all over the circuit ever since the season started would not be denied yesterday afternoon, and for course the Angels won. Of course, it was an extra inning affair, going no less than 12, and of course, Oakland lost by a mere run, the score at the finish being 2 to 1.

Everybody in the lot was pulling for Oakland, and there was a general feeling of regret when the southern champions put the winning fall across the rubber. Wiggs pitched magnificent ball, but at the same time, he will be forced to shoulder the major portion of the blame for the defeat. He tossed a bloomer which let the final tally keep track of them.

Tripplet, formerly of San Jose, was brought out to do the honors, and he had not passed over the first inning when it could be seen that he was in for a hard time. After Spence had died, Farrell singled and came home a second later when Mertes hit for three bases. Mertes followed Farrell home base. Schwartz threw wildly to the home plate in an effort to catch Mertes when he tried to extend his hit.
