

HENEY SAYS GRAFT IS CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Prosecutor Willing to Sacrifice Business to Carry On War if Elected District Attorney

Unable to Accept Nomination, as Name Must Be Written on Petition Signed by Voters

...the democratic or the independence league party, notwithstanding the fact that a majority of the members of each of the parties who voted at the primary election announced their desires to have my name appear as their candidate.

The only way in which I can become a candidate is by petition signed by a certain percentage of the voters who did not vote at the primary election, requesting that my name be placed on the ballot at the general election as an independent candidate.

A petition of this purpose will be circulated by some of my friends and the voters of San Francisco will then be given an opportunity to express themselves at the general election upon the question as to whether they want the graft prosecutions to be continued or not.

The issue has already been made as to Patrick Calhoun and his criminal associates. This will be no escape from it. The prosecution, so called, does not need vindication at the ballot box. It has accomplished a great task by exposing the corruption which existed and by the conviction of Schmitz and Ruff, not to mention Glass and Coffey. San Francisco does not need vindication, however, from the often repeated charge that her citizens prefer a corrupt government.

I do not want the office of district attorney I can ill afford to take it at my age, but I am determined to give the good people of San Francisco an opportunity to save the city's good name. I am grateful to those members of the democratic and independence league parties who voted for me at the primary election, and equally grateful to those republicans who recorded their allegiance to the cause of justice by writing my name upon their ballots.

I feel confident that a great majority of the voters of San Francisco will declare in favor of the enforcement of the criminal laws against general election fraud. The corrupter is worse than the corrupted. The rich and influential criminal must be punished with the same certainty as the poor and friendless one. This republic can not long survive if any man or any class of men is above the law.

Henev is at present hunting big game in the Coast range, 26 miles south of Newport, and he expects to reach San Francisco September 1, to take up the Calhoun trial.

600 BLUEJACKETS TO BE SENT FROM NORFOLK

Sailors Coming Here to Join the Pacific Fleet

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Arrangements have been made to send from the navy yards at Norfolk this week about 600 enlisted men of the navy for service on board vessels of the Pacific fleet.

They will be sent to San Francisco in two trains, one leaving Monday and the other Friday.

With the exception of barracks and officers' quarters for marines it is not likely that any work will be done in the way of building construction at the new naval station at Pearl Harbor, Hawaiian islands, for at least a year.

The contractors for dredging the entrance channel and constructing the drydock have about three years in which to complete their work and it would be useless to complete the buildings such as repair shops, store houses, etc., until vessels can be floated into the drydock.

Veteran Member of Noted Firm Succumbs to Ravages of Bright's Disease

Death closed the career of James B. Stetson, pioneer merchant, street railway magnate, railroad builder and millionaire, at his home, Van Ness avenue and Clay street, yesterday morning at 2 o'clock. For several days the veteran businessman had been stricken with Bright's disease, but Friday night a change for the better was thought to have come over the patient. Yesterday morning, however, he began to sink and died at 2 o'clock. His son, Harry N. Stetson, and his nephew, William R. Wheeler, manager of the Merchants' exchange traffic bureau, had been close watchers at his bedside during the last hour.

The funeral will be held Monday morning at 10 o'clock from the residence in Van Ness avenue. The services will be read by Rev. Bradford Leavitt, pastor of the First Unitarian church, which Stetson attended. The remains will be cremated at Odd Fellows' cemetery.

PROSECUTOR WANTS BRADBURY IN JAIL

District Attorney Boyd Sends Protest to Governor Against Executive Clemency

SAN RAFAEL, Aug. 21.—While William B. Bradbury's friends and attorney are making every effort to gain his pardon from Governor Gillett, District Attorney Boyd, as prosecutor for the people, is doing everything possible to prevent such an act of clemency.

Boyd received a telegram from the governor today saying that Gillett would not act on the plea for a pardon until he had thoroughly investigated the district attorney's protest and the evidence which has been sent him. Boyd has sent the governor a formal protest against the granting of a pardon, citing many reasons why the aged millionaire should not escape from serving his one year sentence in San Quentin.

As to Bradbury's statement that he would not outlive his term of imprisonment, the district attorney says that the same plea was made, three years ago, at the time Bradbury was sentenced and yet the millionaire is alive and in good physical condition.

Bradbury was visited at the county jail today by Attorney James W. Cochrane and Miss Lenore Van Sickle, the old man's favorite niece.

"Mr. Bradbury is a nervous wreck from the strain of these last few days of waiting and uncertainty," said his attorney. "We are going to make a determined effort to save him from San Quentin, as I am positive that it would mean his death."

Five champions in Bradbury's cause will leave on the steamer City of Topeka for Eureka at 10:30 tomorrow morning to plead with the governor. They are Miss Van Sickle, and Attorneys Charles H. Fairall, James W. Cochrane, Nat. Coghlin and T. C. Kierulff.

That his slate may be as clean as possible, Bradbury paid another bill today. Recently he paid Dr. Victor G. Veckl $252, on a judgment secured against him several years ago in order, as he said, "to avoid further trouble at this time." Today he paid a claim of $10 which was in the hands of a local collection agency.

ROW AMONG GARDENERS ENDS IN LIVELY FIGHT

Dispute Over Bunch of Carrots Causes Stabbing Affray

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 21.—A small bunch of carrots, worth about 5 cents, caused a row and a free fight between an Italian and several Japanese gardeners at the Los Angeles market, Ninth and San Pedro streets, early today, resulting in four men being taken to the receiving hospital with stab wounds, and the Italian suffering a severe beating and a dislocated thumb. One of the Japanese may die.

The gardeners, who comprise many nationalities, gathered at the market early and began dicker among themselves for vegetables. The Italian, whose name is S. Batista, purchased 5 cents worth of carrots from a Japanese gardener, but took six bunches instead of three for his money. Efforts to recover the vegetables were ineffectual and a fight started.

The Japanese, reinforced by his friends, attacked the Italian with boxes and other improvised weapons, and the latter wielded a long knife.

MRS. EDDY IS NOT COPYRIGHT OWNER

Christian Scientists Surprised by Contents of the Will of Edward A. Kimball

Chicago Man Was in Control of Publications by Noted Religious Leader

[Special Dispatch to The Call]

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Christian Scientists throughout the country were surprised today by the disclosure that the copyrights on 14 books from the pen of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy—practically all she ever wrote—were owned by the late Edward A. Kimball of Chicago.

PRESERVATION OF HOME

Believers in the faith were pleased when, with the filing for probate of the Kimball will, it became known that provision for the preservation of the Eddy home, Pleasant View at Concord, N. H., has been made, but the source of the fund for that purpose was a surprise even to men well toward the leadership of the organization.

TRANSFER OF COPYRIGHTS

The will provides that the copyrights shall be transferred to John Carroll Lathrop, a New York Christian Scientist, on condition that he will convey the proceeds of a trust fund for the maintenance of Pleasant View.

It does not state how the valuable rights came into the possession of the testator and great interest in this phase of the subject was manifested because it generally had been accepted that Mrs. Eddy's books were the source of her private income.

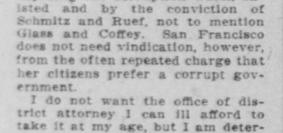

ESTATE TO WIDOW

Kimball's will was filed by Nathaniel C. Sears. The will first gave to each of two children—Wallace D. Kimball and Edna Kimball—$1,000, and then the only provision, preceding that for the disposition of the copyrights, is that the entire estate, with the exception of those legal rights, shall go to the widow, Mrs. Katharine Davidson Kimball. The value of the estate has not been made public.

highlighted only by the doorway and a window with immovable sashes. There was no ceiling. The pointed roof showed on the interior the under side of the thatch, black with smoke and soot. The floor was of large flat stones, irregularly laid in the dirt. On the hearth smoldered a pile of turf. At one side of the fireplace, in the corner, was a rough framework, immovable, which served as a bed. A dresser held a few dishes. There were two chairs.

Neatness in Cramped Quarters

Another house. Noticeably neat, this one. The stone floor swept, the table scrubbed, the dishes and pans gleaming. True, two calves lay in a corner, undergoing the process of weaning, and a setting hen with an unfriendly eye brooded over her eggs in another. Yet the place was clean and had an atmosphere of decent comfort. On the dresser stood two mugs filled with bright wild flowers from the hedgerows.

Out of the gloom by the fireplace stepped a young girl, 18 years old perhaps, with blue eyes and dazzling teeth. Her bright print dress did not reach her bare ankles. Her hair, unbraided, fell in black waves over her shoulders. Her pretty face was brightened by a contented smile.

Eager for New Home

"My mother is at market," she explained, "and I am looking after the house and the children. I am very glad to see you."

"And how are you getting along?" was the official question.

"As well as may be, sir," answered the girl. "We are doing the best we can until the board helps us do something better."

"Well, now," said the official visitor, "don't you think it is time that you should put us ahead? Don't you think that if the board gave you a little help you would like to have a comfortable house, with buildings outside for the cattle?"

"Indeed, I do, sir," cried the woman, eagerly. "We live like this because we could not help it. We have tried so hard to get along, but in all the years we have never been able to lay by anything to put us ahead. You strangers, with their big windows and their fine concrete floors and all, and I know we'll have a home to be proud of. Father is away in England at the harvesting, and the biggest boy is working for the board in the river. They'll both be ready for the work when you can get us the new place. When will it be, sir?" she added, wistfully.

Cheery Assurances

"Soon, now," was the cheery answer of the official, "and you must be planning how to make your new home comfortable and pretty. You strangers to have flowers in your own yard then and these calves will have a fine stable to live in instead of taking up room in the house."

"But I am sure you will make the best of your opportunities, for I see that you are keeping this house as clean and comfortable as you can."

As we turned to the door the official remarked again: "I am glad to see so pleasant a place."

The girl swept him a courtesy. "Thank you, sir," she said. "I am entirely pleased with your company."

It was a quaint expression, and carried a very pleasant savor of graciousness and sincerity.
