MAN AND MOTORISTS TO VISIT THE CITY

Los Angeles Enthusiasts the Latest to Plan Run North During Portola Festival

By R. L. L'HOMMEDIEU

The local automobile associations seem to appreciate the signs of the times. It has been announced that the enthusiasts of the Sacramento valley are preparing to come to the Portola celebration, 600 cars strong. This has excited interest in plans in other sections of the state to follow the same example.

The Los Angeles motorists are planning to be here when Gaspard holds his merry court. At a recent meeting of the automobile dealers of Los Angeles it was decided to start from the south on October 17 and make Santa Barbara the first night, Paso Robles the second night and come on to the city on the evening of the 19th. The run has been placed in the hands of Alvin M. Young, President Hamlin of the Dealers' association has proposed that they carry a message of good will from the mayor of the southern city to the mayor of San Francisco. The dealers and owners are still undecided whether to make it a social run or an endurance contest. This question will be settled later. Fifty owners have signed to the committee, that they will make the trip. Taking this early entry into consideration 100 automobiles can easily be expected.

The Portola celebration is going to make history for the automobile in this city and it will be a question whether if ever again so many automobiles will be seen here at the same time. Something has to be done to receive these visiting motorists. If nothing else to save the reputation of the city as the home of the automobile on the Pacific coast. The officers of the Automobile club of California, the California state automobile association, the San Francisco motor club and the Automobile dealers' association of California must get together and appoint a working committee—a committee that will do some work to receive the visiting motorist whether he be a member of a club or only an owner of an automobile. The San Francisco motor club has a clubhouse. This, however, will not be large enough for the occasion. Quarters should be secured where the visitors can go to get all the automobile information. Time is short and this subject should be taken up at once. The local organizations have led a very quiet life the whole season and to become active will not overwork any of them.

James Gilson, vice president and sales manager of the Mitchell motor car company of Racine, Wis., and Joseph E. G. Ryan, of the noted automobile dealer of Chicago, who have been visiting the city for the last week, left last night for home, going by way of Seattle, where they will stop off to visit the fair. This was Ryan's first visit to the coast and he was more than enthusiastic over the land that is washed by the waves of the Pacific ocean and just before he is on the way west again.

The Pierce-Arrow sales company last week received two handsome Pierce-Arrow cars. They were the landaulet and the suburban, and the latter of which is on the order of the limousine. Both are the six cylinder 48 horsepower chassis. The suburban is finished in black and deep wine color and is the classiest looking vehicles that has been seen this year.

A FEW WORDS WITH THE LADY OF THE HOUSE

EVERY DAY
The morning hangs her blossoms out
Fresh every dawn;
Yesterday's blossoms lived out their little hour
And then were gone.

So live today with patient, steadfast will
And loyal heart;
Then shall tomorrow find thee truer still
To bear thy part.

And if no tomorrow ever comes to thee
Be thou content;
For but today has borne its very best
Before it went.

MURDERED HIS VICTIM WITH BASEBALL BAT

[Special Dispatch to The Call]

REGARDING CROQUETTES

These dainty, toothsome morsels are regarded by many as too tedious and difficult to prepare. There could be no more mistaken idea; every woman should learn that there is no other way to use leftovers so daintily or deliciously.

Meat, fish, fowl, macaroni, potato, rice, hominy, cheese and many other articles make fine croquettes when used with a thick, highly seasoned white sauce as a base. A little salt may be used in the meat croquettes in place of milk. The following recipe for croquettes is very satisfactory: one pint of chopped meat makes about 16 good sized croquettes. The other ingredients are one rounding teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth a teaspoonful of pepper and a dash of cayenne. Let the butter heat, add the flour, cook these a minute, then add the milk and cook until thick, add seasoning, lift from the fire and add the egg, slightly beaten. Return to the fire to cook the egg, use a strainer. Add the pint of fine chopped meat, mix well, and turn out to get very cold, when the mixture is rolled in one egg, slightly beaten, with two tablespoonfuls of cold water. After egg coating carefully so that every particle is covered, roll in sifted bread crumbs and fry in deep fat heated to about 365 degrees Fahrenheit.

Drain on soft blotting paper, garnish and serve.

Some people like cutlets; if you fancy these, use the same mixture and shape like a chop, using macaroni (cooked) for the bone. Serve with a paper frill on the bone.

Mold the croquettes as fancy dictates. If using dark fowl's meat a good way is to simulate a drumstick, and use macaroni for the bone. If you have a good imitation of a chicken leg. Or, have round ones like a ball, or pyramidal, or nest shape, or depress one end of the round ones and insert a clove, put a small brown twig through the other end, and there you have an apple. At an Easter luncheon there were baby chicken croquettes shaped by deft fingers. As to blends there is no end; chicken and sweetbreads are a happy combination; chicken and veal, or mushrooms, are another fish and potato, chicken and potato, meat and rice, meat and macaroni, and so on ad infinitum. All croquettes are enhanced in flavor by serving with a good sauce.

A few combinations may not be amiss:

With veal croquettes serve tomato sauce or a highly seasoned white sauce, to which has been added one raw egg yolk for each cup of sauce.

With fish croquettes serve tartare or tomato sauce.

With chicken croquettes in a border of peas serve brown or white sauce.

With hominy croquettes serve cheese sauce, a white sauce to which grated cheese has been added.

Lamb croquettes are fine with parsley or caper sauce.

Beef and rice croquettes are good with tomato sauce poured over them.

Bread croquettes are good as a dessert with wine sauce.

Apple croquettes are good with roast duck and goose.

These last two varieties are not made with a foundation of sauce.

Director of Foreign Commerce Comes Here to Build Up Country's Trade

Maurice Huet, director of foreign commerce of France, who is on a special mission, representing the French government to establish a commercial agency in this city, arrived here yesterday from Seattle and registered at the Fairmont. Huet is president of the French exhibit at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition at Seattle, and he said yesterday that outside of the Japanese and Canadian exhibits France's easily surpasses the countries of the world.

The principal object of Huet's visit to this city is to establish a commercial agency.

"We have no such general office for the encouragement of commerce on the Pacific coast," Huet said yesterday at the Fairmont hotel. "We have one in New York. At present France ranks fourth among the nations of the world in the amount of trading done in the Pacific. We are anxious to build up that trade, so the minister of foreign affairs, Pincho, delegated me to establish an agency in this city to stimulate trade. We will also open an information and publicity bureau for the assistance of Frenchmen coming to this city."

"San Francisco's rapid growth after the fire amazes me. I congratulate the citizens upon their intrepidity and their energy."

Huet will return to France by way of Japan, China, India and Egypt, where he will also establish agencies.

Edward Martel, president of the chamber of commerce of Cognac and a senator of France, was to have been with the party here, but remained at Seattle. Yves Colombat, secretary of the delegation and a companion of Huet, is one of the largest dealers in champagnes and burgundies in the world.

Huet was formerly chief of the cabinet, when Waldeck-Rousseau was prime minister of France. A reception will be tendered to him by the local French colony.
