

COOK DIDN'T CLIMB MOUNT, SAYS MINER

Jacob Suter Declares Wall of Ice on McKinley Makes Ascent Impossible

McCarty Brothers of San Francisco in Party That Saw Explorer Turn Back

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Oct. 24.—Jacob Suter, well known as a miner and mountaineer in Alaska has issued a statement in which he says Dr. Cook never reached the top of Mount McKinley and that the explorer was forced to abandon his attempt to gain the summit after climbing 8,000 feet, a wall of ice barring his further ascent.

Suter professes to have witnessed Cook's performance through a pair of field glasses and says that owing to the nature of Mount McKinley it never will be ascended.

SAW PARTY TURN BACK

Suter's statement follows: The McCarty brothers of San Francisco, Sam May of this city and myself were on the mountain when Cook and his party arrived. We saw them start up the Yetha river and they came back because the route was too difficult. Then they went up the Shushitna river and got up to the wall of ice on Mount McKinley which is many miles from the top.

Through the glasses we saw them turn back and come down. I have personally all over the base of Mount McKinley and have been to the point reached by Cook. Several others have been that high on the mountain and they have not seen any wall of ice.

On that trip Cook did one of the most inhuman acts I ever saw in my life. He left four horses in the river to starve to death. The horses were safe until the winter snows fell and after that there was no chance for them. We never saw the horses after Cook abandoned them.

Cook was entertained here today by the officers at Fort Snelling and by Dr. J. C. Nelson, Danish consul at St. Paul, together with a large number of Danish Americans.

FOREIGN ROOSEVELT AIDS AFRICANS BY SLAYING LIONS CONGO RUBBER COMPANY ACCUSED OF ATROCITIES DEMONSTRATIONS IN SPAIN AGAINST OLD POLICY

FORMER PRESIDENT HAS GOOD SPORT

Roosevelt Kills Man Eating Lions and Bull Elephant With Enormous Tusks

NAIROBI, British East Africa, Saturday, Sept. 25.—Colonel Roosevelt, accompanied by his son Kermit, Edmond Heller and R. J. Cunningham, left for Nyeri in the early days of August with the intention of getting a bull, cow and calf elephant. Although better elephants are obtainable in the Nile country of Uganda, Roosevelt wanted to get an elephant in the Kela district so that Heller could have a better chance in the cooler climate there of saving the skin in good condition.

Major Mearns and Loring were to go to Nairobi and send off their bird and mammal collections to New York and then equip their caravan for the expedition to the snow line of Mount Kenya (18,200 feet). They started September 2 and 4, respectively, and made their first camp at Kamiti ranch, which belongs to Hugh H. Heatley. They in 1906, which proved fruitless, over the Ruto river, the Ndarugu river (which was the scene of a diamond rush in 1903, which proved fruitless), over the fine concrete bridges at the Thika and Chania rivers, where they would see the beautiful falls at the junction of those two rivers, thence past Punda Miller (zebra), which is the fine farm of Swift and Rutherford, and to Fort Hall (native name Maragana).

GETS BULL ELEPHANT

Meanwhile Roosevelt was not idle. He got a fine bull elephant, with tusks weighing about 80 pounds each. Elephant hunting is no child's play, for one must creep up to within 20 feet of them or even nearer and, of course, if they get the wind or hear the hunter, the chances of his escape are small. There is something very fascinating about elephant hunting, for the chances are about even for the hunter and the hunted.

After getting his elephant Roosevelt went toward Mweru, where there is good game shooting. A sportsman recently came into Nyeri from Mweru (which is less than a day's march from Nyeri) who had encountered a charging man eating lion, a charging rhino and an elephant all within 20 paces of each other. He shot the lion dead with his first shot and then the rhino charged and fell dead to a good shot. Then, to his amazement, a bull elephant appeared and he shot it dead.

HUNTER'S STRANGE EXPLOIT

Many strange things happen on the chase in British East Africa. When Sekus and McMillan were out hunting, accompanied by Judd, the professional hunter, they were after lions one day and Judd was following Selus on a mule. Suddenly his mule nearly stepped on a huge lion and as the mule made a lunge to jump over him with the rifle and almost simultaneously the mule bucked him off and he landed, almost touching the lion. He thought his mule had come and from leaving make a lunge for his life, but to his surprise the lion did not move. Then he suddenly realized the beast was dead. He got up and inspected it and found that his shot had entered the eye and killed it instantly without leaving a mark on the skin. McMillan has taken the skin home to have it set up.

On the road to Mweru and Nyeri man eating lions have been playing havoc, so that at last the government was forced to close the road to traffic. It is estimated several hundred natives have lost their lives to these man eating lions. Roosevelt, therefore, does the hunter a special service with every lion he kills.

BANK OF ENGLAND RAISES DISCOUNT

Increase of Rate Attracts the Attention of the Entire Financial World

Loans to New York and Decrease of Exports Among the Reasons Given

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The Bank of England has commanded the attention of the whole financial world in an unusual degree during the last week with its third successive advance in its official discount rate in two weeks, doubling the rate in that period. Ominous intimations come from the English money center at the same time that additional protective measures will be resorted to, if necessary, to avert further inroads on London's banking resources.

Coming in a period of assurances of the ample resources of the money markets, this action furnishes evidence of a wide miscalculation of the situation. On what may be the elements in that miscalculation opinions differ, but there are certain of the factors in the problem which are clear. One of these is the fact of extensive American borrowings in the London money market.

Critics in London allege that an unbridled speculation in the New York stock market is primarily responsible for the condition. Borrowing from foreign money markets through the summer is a usual proceeding on the part of New York.

One of the principal elements in the miscalculation of the autumn money market undoubtedly lies in the abnormal state of the country's foreign trade. Not only have its imports enormously increased, but exports have decreased. The discrepancy here shown is sufficient in itself to account for much of the scarcity of exchange to provide remittances abroad. Another element in the delay in the issuance of new bonds by the great corporations, for which important foreign subscriptions were expected, which would serve to take up part of the maturing foreign indebtedness of more temporary nature.

The action of the stock market has shown the contest going on against the unfavorable influence of the money situation. The brilliant business outlook encourages the obstinate holdings of stocks, even while the narrowing money resources reduce the demand. The rapid rise in foreign exchange rates last week showed plainly, however, that foreign lenders of money here were insistent upon repayment of maturing obligations. The movement of the interior exchanges meanwhile showed that the demand for currency was not yet justified.

PROPOSES DEBATES ON CENTRAL BANK

Congressman Fowler Issues Challenge to Senator Aldrich for Public Discussions

New Jersey Representative Opposes Alleged "Cure All" for Financial Problems

ELIZABETH, N. J., Oct. 24.—Charles N. Fowler, congressman from the fifth New Jersey district and former chairman of the house committee on banking and currency, today addressed an open letter to Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island, chairman of the monetary commission, created by congress, and also chairman of the finance committee of the senate, challenging him to a joint debate in one or more cities, on the subject of a central bank.

Fowler writes that he is opposed to the establishment of a central bank, under existing conditions, because, with it would come most discouraging and disheartening favoritism and the ultimate destruction of our purely individual and independent form of banking.

LETTER TO ALDRICH

The letter follows: Just before you started for Europe in August, it was stated in the press that as a result of a meeting of the monetary commission, of which you are chairman a central bank was to be advocated by your commission, and upon your return from Europe you would proceed with a view of instructing the people upon our financial and currency needs and recommend as a "cure all" a central bank.

After your departure, there was an evidently inspired and well organized propaganda in favor of a central bank conceived and carried on for the purpose of preparing the way for your home coming, and your arrangements to swing around the circle and initiate the people of the United States into the mysteries of your central bank plan.

CHALLENGE TO DEBATE

Inasmuch as I am convinced that the one thing above all others that this country does not want is a central bank because it will not effect nor accomplish the necessary reforms, but in the meantime will make our financial condition measurably worse, therefore, in order that the American people (who I know will decide this most important question) may be fully presented and considered and determination right, as they did that of the gold standard, if only they be given an opportunity of having both sides of it fully presented and thoroughly discussed) may be informed as early as possible—

I now challenge you to a joint debate upon the following proposition: First—A central bank will not effect nor accomplish the necessary reform of our finances and currency, is unsuited to our condition, will accentuate many of our present evils, and precipitate and develop other evils of a most serious nature.

PROFPHY OF FAVORITISM

I assert you can not successfully and beneficially superimpose a monarchical form of banking upon nearly 25,000 individual, independent, free banking institutions, which have grown up and developed in harmony with the principles of our republican form of government and are themselves republican in form and character.

To establish a central bank in this country under existing conditions would be undemocratic, unrepresentative and inimical to the general welfare of the people, because with a central bank will come a most discouraging and disheartening favoritism, the gradual breaking down and ultimate destruction of our purely individual and independent form of banking.

I will meet you in joint debate upon the above propositions, at 100 or more of our leading cities up to 100 or more of them, if you choose, at such times and upon such conditions or terms as may be agreed upon by us hereafter.
