

GLAD HANDOR ROOSEVELT AT LUXOR STATION Man From San Francisco Is Among Those Who Greet Former President Unusual Honors Will Be Shown Distinguished Guest on His Arrival at Cairo

By JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN (Copyright by the Tribune Company, Chicago, 1910.) [Special Cable to The Call]

LUXOR, Egypt, March 21.—"All Iowa wants you back in the White House," was the greeting of an Iowa man to Colonel Roosevelt as he descended from the train today after the long, tiresome journey from Shallah. Colonel Roosevelt shook hands with his adherent and smiled, then turned to greet another tourist.

"I am a Nebraskan," the latter exclaimed. "I am glad to see an Ak Sar Ben even if it is so far from home," replied Colonel Roosevelt.

"I'm from San Francisco," cried another. "Good," said Colonel Roosevelt. "I have many recollections of your city. I made an address there."

"I heard it," said the Californian. "I would like to see what you shot," he said, and he pointed to the camera which he intended to send the University of California," Roosevelt announced.

All others pressed around, bringing up their families. English and Egyptian officials extended official greetings, and on enthusiastic admirer presented Mrs. Roosevelt and Ethel with a bunch of flowers on behalf of America. American Consul General Iddings of Cairo followed a gold laced dragoon who pushed his way through the crowd and warmly greeted both as an official and as an old friend the former president on his return to civilization. The carriage furnished by the Italian consul was first used by Roosevelt since his arrival in Cairo and conveyed him and his wife to the hotel, where, after dinner on the veranda, he gave an informal reception to a hundred Americans.

One after another shook his hand and said that he was glad to see him back looking so well. Then they gave three cheers. "What's the matter with Roosevelt?" they shouted. "He's all right," was the answer. "I have remarked," smiling characteristically, "is that I'd like to give three cheers for each of you from California through Idaho and Nebraska and Iowa and Illinois and Texas and Missouri and for the states wherefrom you hail."

PAIS VISIT TO KARNAK Accompanied by his wife, Miss Ethel Kermit and Director of Antiquities Weigal he then visited Karnak.

Roosevelt was here 37 years ago, when Luxor was without hotels, and he described it then as a scene of barbaric beauty. Tonight the recollection faded before the magnificence of the sight. A half moon, occasionally obscured by the clouds, the first Roosevelt had seen in months, shed the ruins in soft light, lending a fairy touch to the scene. "It is a beautiful scene," Roosevelt exclaimed, as he stood in the temple of Memnon, which is considered the superb creation of an age peculiarly noted for its architectural creations.

He will stay here tomorrow and Wednesday, visiting various ruins, also addressing the members of the mission station. He will arrive in Cairo Thursday, where he will have a constant succession of engagements. The khedive of Egypt will pay the unusual honor of sending his state carriage to convey Roosevelt to the palace. Mrs. Roosevelt, accompanied by Mrs. Iddings, will call on the khedive.

Various dinners and receptions, the former by the khedive, will be given among them the English, native officials, missionaries and a few tourists. Speaking characteristically in one conversation he said: "There is only one way a man can be permanently helped and that is by being a help to himself." He told a missionary who belonged to the Dutch Reform church that by inheritance one feels stronger in the ethical and scriptural side of Christianity than by dogma.

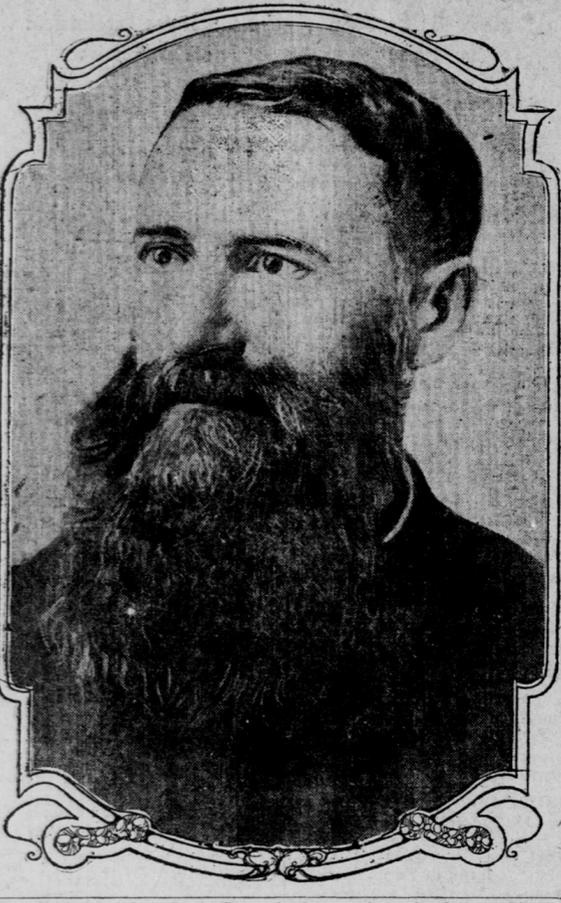

He was joined on the train by President McClenahan, head of Assouan college, with whom he discussed missionary work in Egypt and the capacity of the Egyptians to govern themselves and general conditions. They were quiet while the train steamed across the desert.

DID NOT MEET PRICE Roosevelt learned at Luxor that Prince Eitel Frederick, son of the kaiser, was to arrive at Luxor soon and he immediately sent a telegram expressing his regret that his arrangements prevented him from seeing him, as he would like to tell him of his hunt. He asked the prince to convey his regards to the kaiser and their imperial majesties. At Karnak Roosevelt spent more than an hour inspecting the ruins, and was particularly impressed with the avenue of sphinxes, the giant pylons and Cleopatra's needles.

Heroic Priest Visited San Francisco Twice

Rev. Father Lambert Louis Conrardy, brave priest who devoted his life to aiding lepers and is now dying, a victim of the dreaded disease.

Rev. Father Conrardy, Who Is Dying in Canton Lepers Colony, Well Remembered Here

Rev. Father Lambert Louis Conrardy, the Roman Catholic priest who dedicated his life to the relief of the sufferings of lepers, is well remembered in this city, where he has made two extended visits in behalf of his mission. The priest received from China that the heroic priest is dying from the disease which he fought so desperately against in Belgium. Father Conrardy visited San Francisco in 1888 and again in 1896. On each visit he spent considerable time at the leper hospital in this city, studying the conditions, interviewing the patients and administering to their physical and spiritual needs. As close a student of the disease as he is devout in his religious profession, Father Conrardy's stay in San Francisco did much to brighten the lives of the isolated victims of the terrible scourge of leprosy.

COLLECTED FUNDS HERE During his visit to San Francisco Father Conrardy devoted some of his time to the collection of funds with which to further his work among the lepers. Both in 1888 and 1896 he gave lectures for the benefit of his fund.

Prominent Catholic families entertained the priest while he was in this city. Father Conrardy came of a noble Belgian house, but forsook the luxury of his home to administer to the most lowly, miserable and unfortunate, the lepers of the Hawaiian islands and of China. His first work in that field was with Father Damien, the illustrious Belgian priest. Father Damien came of a peasant stock, but in the field of sickness and distress the noble effaced himself and followed obediently the peasant priest until Father Damien died.

Later, when the United States government took over the control of Molokai and the living conditions of the lepers were improved, Father Conrardy turned his face bravely toward a still more distressful community, the leper settlement near Canton, China.

Before finally burying himself in the pitiful environment of disease and filth Father Conrardy made a last tour of civilization to arouse interest in his humane work and collect funds for the eradication of the degradation in which the Chinese lepers lived. It was during this tour that he last visited San Francisco in 1896. He spent the fall months of that year in San Francisco and on the coast.

While on the coast Father Conrardy gave an interesting talk on leper conditions, which was published in The Call of December 6, 1896. "Leprosy," said the courageous priest, "is an infectious, though not contagious disease. In certain types of the disease it is communicated to any person who exposes an abraded surface of the skin to contamination. Father Damien contracted the disease while administering to the afflictions of a young boy. Father Damien had severely bruised his hand, but he continued his work in spite of the injury. He took ordinary precautions to prevent infection, but they did not avail him and he became afflicted with the disease.

ADULTS LIVE SIX YEARS "The average life of an adult leper patient after his infection is six years. With children the end comes more quickly." At that time Father Conrardy bravely scouted the idea that he might become affected with the disease, although he expressed his realization of the dangers he faced in entering upon the work among the terrible conditions in which he had found the Chinese lepers.

The Call of September 2, 1896, tells of Father Conrardy's visit to the leper hospital in this city and his interest in the patients and the Goto cure which was being tried at that time at the institution.

JURY INDICTS BIG PACKING COMPANY

Government Files Suit Seeking Dissolution of Chicago Meat Corporation Beef Trust Will Fight to Finish According to Statements of General Counsel

CHICAGO, March 21.—Eight weeks after it had begun its investigation for alleged violations of the Sherman anti-trust law, the federal grand jury today returned indictments against the National packing company and 10 subsidiary concerns. Immediately upon announcement of the indictments before Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, the government filed a suit seeking the dissolution of the packing company. The suit is one in equity and besides those indicted, 16 firms and individuals are made defendants.

The company was organized in 1902 in a statement issued on behalf of the National packing company, Ralph Crews, its general counsel, tonight gives some inkling of the determination to fight the government to the limit. His statement follows: "The company was organized in March, 1902, for the purpose of economizing in operation of certain subsidiary corporations named jointly with it in the indictment returned today by the federal grand jury for the northern district of Illinois. Its organization was directed by the best counsel obtainable, who then believed and now believe its organization and the operation of its subsidiary companies in no way transgressed the provisions of the Sherman act; and in this respect it is practically similar to nearly all the large corporations of the country. "The total percentage of the business done by this corporation controlled by the National packing company forms but a small part of the whole volume of the packing industry.

"This proportion could not constitute a monopoly in any sense of the word. The defendants are the owners of the trade of its subsidiary companies, as alleged in the indictment, it is a fact the companies have all shown a healthy increase since the formation of the National packing company is operated by its officers purely as a competitive and independent factor in the trade. "The indictment today returned and the bill in equity today filed by the district attorney are directed at the organization and operation of this company. These operations have, at all times, been frank and open, and we are confident that the courts will sustain our contentions on their legality. "The defendants are the National packing company, G. H. Hammond company, Hammond packing company, Omaha packing company, Anglo-American provision company, Power packing company, United dressed beef company, St. Louis dressed beef and provision company, Western packing company, Colorado packing and provision company, New York butchers' dressed meat company, Continental packing company, Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Morris & Co., Edward Tilden, Louis F. Swift, Edward F. Swift, Charles H. Swift, A. Carlton Frank, A. Fowler, National Order Armour, Arthur Meeker, Thomas J. Connors, Edward Morris, Thomas E. Wilson and L. H. Heyman.

The total was 1,289,413 cubic yards and the daily average was 47,757. Steam shovel 214 also broke all records for the daily average of 2,203 yards, while on one day shovel 211 made another record by taking out 4,009 cubic yards of rock and earth.

BATTLESHIPS COULD BE BUILT ON GREAT LAKES Navy Secretary Submits Opinion Asked by Resolution WASHINGTON, March 21.—The navy department reported to the house today it knew of no reason why all types of vessels could not be built in the great lakes. This replied to a resolution asking for the navy's view on that point, and Secretary Meyer's opinion is based on the assumption that the only "obstacles," a term used in the resolution, are physical ones, and a sufficiently deep waterway from the seaboard could be constructed eventually.
