

TRIUMPH SCORED BY MAUD ALLAN Theater Is Crowded and Scores Turned Away Unable to Secure Seats Voiceless Singer of Symphonies Will Return to Do the Salome Dance

By WALTER ANTHONY Compared with the triumph of Maud Allan yesterday afternoon in San Francisco, the success of Bernhardt, Patti, Sembrich, Schumann-Heink and Caruso were mere furies of sentiment. There were more than 2,000 people in the Garrick at the farewell matinee of the pantomimist, and how many were turned away from classical dancing is a statistical enigma at once puzzling and disappointing to the management. This voiceless singer of symphonies and dancer of concertos has done more business in San Francisco than any artist whose offerings have been merely vocal or instrumental. There is nothing to review in the performance. Everything that Miss Allan did yesterday she has done before at the Garrick. I doubt whether the uninitiated would know the difference between the Bach "Serabande" and the Chopin B flat mazurka. It is the music that makes the difference, but it is Miss Allan and not the music that draws. No sooner was the vast audience dismissed than it was rumored that Miss Allan's father had ordered an automobile to be in front of the Garrick at exactly 5 o'clock. So the curious waited. The machine was there and that was evidence enough. A crowd surged about the auto and the police kept it in order, though it lined up on the sidewalk in flanking columns to view the dancer as she stepped into the tonneau. Meantime the Princess audience was dismissed and added its quota to the throng. Across the street, on top of a plumbing shop, stood an old woman holding aloft a 2 year old baby, that she, too, might see this artistic interpreter of the music of the great masters. Never before was music honored with so much attention. Finally the pendulum of anything from a Bach fugue to the Strauss waltz came forth, radiant with success and enriched bountifully. The crowd adored mutely, the auto chugged and disappeared down Ellis street and then the throng dispersed. High art had had its inning. Miss Allan will return soon to do the Salome dance. It will be pulled off, as they say in the prize ring, April 23, and she will also appear once at the Orpheum at a special matinee. As a commercial proceeding it is matchless, this "classical" dancing, and Miss Allan made more yesterday afternoon than Bach did in any five years of his life. Which is to say that it is better to have danced Bach's music than to have written it. When fine music is enjoyed for its own sake there will be no room for a personifier. Beethoven's pastorals mean green fields and shepherds and a flock of grazing sheep—not a dancer behind footlights and little else. However, Paul Steindorff's orchestra was in superb condition yesterday and played the "Rienzi" overture so splendidly that it quite put to the shadows the "interpreted" music which followed. There is more spirituality in Steindorff's baton than in Miss Allan's feet, believe me.

DESERTS WOMAN WHO CROSSED SEAS TO MARRY Husband Leaves Note Wishing Her a Good Mate [Special Dispatch to The Call] STOCKTON, April 10.—Divorce proceedings filed in the local courts bring to light the shattered romance of Mrs. Conceicao T. Azevedo, who left her home in Portugal and crossed the ocean to become the bride of Manuel Azevedo. She kept her sorrows to herself for nearly a year before applying for her freedom. The complaint tells the whole story in this little note left her nearly a year ago: "Conceicao: From what you say you are not contented with me. I am going to Modesto to milk cows. Do not look for me again. May God send you a good husband, Manuel." She looked for him, but has been unsuccessful. FLORIDA SOUR ORANGE SEEDS UNDER BAN Carried White Fly Eggs, Declares Commissioner Jeffery [Special Dispatch to The Call] SACRAMENTO, April 10.—State Horticultural Commissioner Jeffery returned last night from Los Angeles, where he put the ban on sour orange seeds which were being shipped into Southern California from Florida. The seeds carried the white fly eggs, contended the state commissioner, and he informed the Los Angeles dealers that they either had to fumigate them or destroy them. The sour oranges are used to graft on old orange trees. In the future all such shipments must be made to the state horticultural deputy, who will fumigate them and then turn them over to the growers.
