

Gets Former at St. Louis and Casts Latter at Nebraska Statesman

"Cant of the Demagogue" Is Characterization of W. J. Bryan's Criticism

ST. LOUIS, May 4.—President Taft's five days' trip to the middle west ended here today and he left late tonight for Washington, where he is scheduled to arrive early Friday morning.

It remained for St. Louis to give Taft the heartiest demonstration of his present journey. The city was gayly decorated and there were cheering throngs wherever the president went.

The apparent warmth of the reception here seemed to affect the president and when on the benches of the Businessmen's league late in the afternoon President Walker Hill praised him for appointing Lurton and Hughes to the supreme court Taft launched into a vigorous speech, paying his respects to Bryan for his reported criticism of Governor Hughes.

The president said: "The constitution of the United States was made by the people of the United States and we have a right to demand that the government must impose limitations upon themselves, so the views of the majority should be embodied in law and in national policy."

There is in the division of power that executive branch and legislative branch have given to the supreme court and the subordinate tribunals to be established by congress certain powers, which, interpreted by Marshall and those who followed him, make the court unique in the tribunals of the country.

The supreme court was constituted to preserve the rights of the people and the rights of the individuals against the people themselves whenever, in the heat of emotion or temporary aberration, the majority measures deprive the individual of his just rights under the constitution.

I do not mean to say men by their habits of life may not acquire political opinions, but I mean to say that it is not proper to select for the highest tribunals men who have no such bent, but I do mean to say there is in the public journals and in what I may call the cant of demagogues, a disposition to change the kind of a man in favor of corporate wealth and corporate greed and corporate monopoly when such change is unjust.

Earlier in the day the president spoke on the Panama canal at a breakfast at the Commercial club and addressed the farmers' union on conservation.

Some of the labor unions in the city protested against the visit of the president to the American league game, as the grand stand in Cleveland was built by nonunion men.

FAMILIAR FACES IN CANINE CAGES

Miss Jennie Crocker's Terriers Attract Usual Share of Attention

There was one little exhibit at the Golden Gate kennel club's dog show at the Auditorium yesterday afternoon which was true to part. It was the Boston terrier Endcliffe Dandy Yankee.

Had there been a prize given for the best sustained character Dandy Yankee would have won. He did what all Boston dogs should do.

There were Irish setters at the show, but none of them whistled. The wearing of the Gigan, there were Russian wolf hounds, but not one threw a bomb.

Such assiduous study on the part of a dog should mean honor from the judge, though Dandy Yankee probably will not have the opportunity of showing what he knows about Prometheus bound or the adventures of Iove and some mortal maidens who would better have been darning socks and milking the herds that grew fat on the slopes of Olympus.

It happened that Dandy Yankee was fortunate beyond all others for his young mistress left her high school books in his cage.

Three hundred and twenty dogs entered in various events and representing 34 breeds made the Auditorium at Fillmore and Page streets yesterday sound like the Seal rocks on a Sunday afternoon.

The next best fun at the dog show, after viewing the dog, is to view the exhibitors and guess what variety they exhibit. Every man looks like his dog and every woman, too, is an axiom of the physiognomists.

and worry of the world in the mazy retreat of their own coats, and pert and pugnacious bull terriers with ears trimmed to the vanishing point.

For the lovers of the freakish there is a full line of "toy" dogs that look like anything you want to name from poodle, chrysanthemums to four legged spiders.

And there is the Boston terrier which studies high school textbooks, or at least keeps his library near at hand.

There are some famous dogs in the show, dogs that have won prizes where they have been exhibited. One of the choice beauties of the bench is E. J. Jordan's champion Endcliffe Advance, a $1,000 animal.
