

OLDFATHERS ARE GIVEN DEGREES

Honorary Titles Conferred on Dr. Willey, President Hadley and Seven Others

Class of 1905 Dedicates Chairs to President Wheeler and Professor Stephens

The chasm of the half century was bridged yesterday morning when Dr. Samuel Hopkins Willey, founder of the old College of California, stood with the young University of California graduates on the stage of the Greek theater in Berkeley and received the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

Eight other distinguished citizens shared in the honorary title of doctor of laws. President Hadley of Yale, who had come to the coast to deliver the public address, was selected for special recognition. The other awards went to men identified with the original College of California. They were: Prof. George Davidson, scientist and geographer, who has served both as regent and professor at the university.

Prof. William Henry Brewer, professor of chemistry in the College of California in 1863 and 1864; since then a professor in Yale. Prof. Williams Phipps Blake, professor of mineralogy and geology in the College of California in 1864, since 1894 professor in the University of Arizona.

John R. Glascock, graduate of the College of California in 1865, at one time member of congress and later mayor of the city of Oakland. The Hon. Albert J. Hadley, member of the first class that entered the College of California and graduated in the class of 1864.

Gardner Fred Williams, graduate of the College of California in the class of 1865, general manager of the De Beers mining company in South Africa. Clinton Day, graduate of the College of California, designer of buildings at Stanford university.

HIGHEST IN SCHOLARSHIP Of the 410 students completing their undergraduate course, Clinton C. Conrad was adjudged highest in scholarship and was awarded the university medal. He had combined his engineering studies with classical pursuits, attaining the highest standing in the college.

EVERY KNIGHT TO BE ASKED TO BUY STOCK Royal Arch Committee Plans Endless Subscription Chain

At a called meeting of the special Panama-Pacific International exposition committee of the Knights of the Royal Arch yesterday it was voted to ask every affiliated member to send his pledge to subscribe and have each such member ask a friend to take stock and in that way form an endless subscription chain.

As soon as congress shall have declared in favor of San Francisco sub-commissioners will be appointed to make a personal call on every knight who has not subscribed.

Members of the state university class of 1905 yesterday afternoon marked the spots where two marble chairs will be located—one dedicated to President Wheeler and the other to Professor Henry Morse Stephens of the history department. The Stephens chair will be located in the Greek theater and the other under the senior oak on the lower campus in Berkeley.

scene of the reunion of the class of 1894, and a good time was held by the graduates of 16 years ago who spent the evening in recalling class and university history.

The most brilliant reunion of the classes was that held by 1905 in Unity hall, Berkeley, which was largely attended. Special Halley's comet "stunts" and a banquet were given.

KNOX STATESMANSHIP LACKING, SAYS BABCOCK After praising the scholarship, the keen insight and ability of the late secretary of state, John Hay, who, he declared, had, like former President Roosevelt, a true feeling of the "historical spirit," President K. C. Babcock of the University of Arizona, in his Phi Beta Kappa address, declared that in sweeping contrast was the lack of the historical spirit as shown by the present secretary of state, Philander C. Knox.

Babcock did not call Knox by name, but he declared that the author of the Zelaya note in the recent Nicaragua controversy had little of the knowledge of statesmanship displayed by the man who formerly held his position.

In the presence of a large audience President Babcock made a plea for a study—a realization—of the events of the past, the historic spirit, he termed it. He said that only by an understanding of the historical spirit was knowledge attained and progression sure.

He said that Roosevelt seemed to have the historical spirit more than most men of his day, and that the breadth of his understanding could be measured by the famous pigskin library he took with him to Africa.

Doctor Babcock quoted statistics to show that the laboring man had in the last 100 years cut down his hours of daily labor 100 per cent, and that the wage earner of the future would probably work but four to six hours a day. The most vital problem for them in the future would be a solution as to what should be done with the extra hours of leisure each day, for in the leisure hours character was formed.

AFTER 32 YEARS IS GIVEN DEGREE

Student of '78 Is Graduated in 1910 From University of California

Charles Dana Burrage Forgiven for Pranks He and Classmates Played

After a delay of 32 years, Charles Dana Burrage, a wealthy attorney of Boston, was graduated yesterday from the University of California with the degree of bachelor of arts. The case is one of the most celebrated in the annals of the college and from year to year at each commencement the story has been told how Charlie Burrage was denied a diploma because of the practical jokes he was wont to play upon the professor of French.

But his fellows of the class of '78, with which he was affiliated, have labored incessantly in his behalf. And now the faculty has relented and Burrage, the father of boys at Harvard, was given his degree yesterday with lads and lassies less than half his age.

HEACOCK RETIRES AT END OF JUNE New Appointee Will Hear All Cases in Equity in Circuit Court

H. M. Wright, attorney in the Foxcroft building, and a resident of Berkeley, was appointed yesterday to succeed E. H. Heacock as standing master and examiner in chancery in the United States circuit court. The oath of office was administered by United States Circuit Judge William W. Morrow, and Wright will take office July 1, the time Judge Heacock's resignation goes into effect.

This still leaves the office of United States commissioner open, which Judge Heacock has held for 16 years, since he has been master in chancery. The two offices go together, although the commission appointment comes from the United States district court. It is understood that District Judge John J. de Haven will also appoint Wright, although Armand B. Kref, attorney at law, and for many years chief clerk to the commissioner, has been urged for the place.

H. M. Wright Who Is to Be the Federal Master in Chancery

HEACOCK RETIRES AT END OF JUNE

New Appointee Will Hear All Cases in Equity in Circuit Court

H. M. Wright, attorney in the Foxcroft building, and a resident of Berkeley, was appointed yesterday to succeed E. H. Heacock as standing master and examiner in chancery in the United States circuit court. The oath of office was administered by United States Circuit Judge William W. Morrow, and Wright will take office July 1, the time Judge Heacock's resignation goes into effect.

This still leaves the office of United States commissioner open, which Judge Heacock has held for 16 years, since he has been master in chancery. The two offices go together, although the commission appointment comes from the United States district court. It is understood that District Judge John J. de Haven will also appoint Wright, although Armand B. Kref, attorney at law, and for many years chief clerk to the commissioner, has been urged for the place.

For many years the office of master in chancery has paid very poorly in San Francisco. It is understood that after Attorney Wright takes office the scope of the master is to be enlarged and all of the cases in equity in the United States circuit court are to be heard before him. In this way the circuit court will be greatly relieved and the crowded calendar of that court will be cleaned up. This has been the practice for years in the east.

Attorney Wright will occupy the same chambers as occupied by Judge Heacock in the postoffice building at Seventh and Mission streets. Attorney Wright was formerly associated with the law firm of Titus, Wright & Creed. He was the medalist of the class of 1894 of the University of California, and afterward graduated with honors from the Harvard law school. He is a lecturer on corporation law in the University of California. He is 38 years old.

93 WOMEN MIX DRUGS IN STATE

Fifteen Per Cent of These Registered Pharmacists Are Owners of Stores

California Pharmaceutical Association to Elect Officers Today

The second day's session of the California pharmaceutical association yesterday was taken up with the reading of papers on various topics. F. E. Seaford spoke on "Drug Store Advertising," in which he told of the best methods of catching the attention of the public by window dressing and newspaper advertising. He declared that advertising by circulars and booklets is a waste of energy and money.

INSURANCE DISCUSSED. In a paper on "Interinsurance," J. S. Pauley of Los Angeles explained the plan of operation by which druggists can insure themselves and save the money to the state instead of sending it outside of its borders, and called attention to the fact that the insurance commissioners had in the past few years opposed mutual protective insurance plans, and it looks as if he favored the big corporations instead of protecting the people in the matter of insurance.

Miss Clarissa M. Roehr, secretary of the alumni association of the California college of pharmacy, read a paper on "The Status of the Woman Pharmacist." From this it appears that California was the sixth state to graduate a woman pharmacist and that there are now 93 registered pharmacists in this state, 15 per cent of whom are owners of drug stores.

G. H. P. Lichtwardt, city chemist of Sacramento, suggested a standard color card for the use of druggists, so that preparations will have uniform color labels. Professor Flint read a paper by E. J. Maloney on the relations of the clerk to the proprietor, and Val Schmidt discussed the relation of the proprietor to clerk.

"Serum Therapy," by Dr. G. S. Badger, and "Amputees," by R. R. Rogers closed the literary part of the exercises.

WOMEN ON AUTO RIDE The entertainment feature yesterday was an automobile trip in the morning for ladies only through Golden Gate park. In the afternoon the women enjoyed a reception at the St. Francis. In the evening there was a card party for the women in the white and gold room of the St. Francis, while the men enjoyed a smoker in the Palmont. Today there will be a business session, which will close with the election for officers and the selection of the next place of meeting.

OAKLAND TO ENTERTAIN The chamber of commerce will entertain 200 members of the State pharmaceutical association Saturday afternoon. They will be taken on a trolley ride to Berkeley and other points of interest. At Piedmont luncheon will be served.
