

ROSEBETTS LAGS BEHIND ALL OF ROYALTY

While special trains were filled with officials and foreign representatives. Bluejackets dragged the gun carriage through a line of purple to St. George's chapel and there simple services were conducted by the archbishops of Canterbury and York, assisted by other prelates. King George, with Alexandra on his arm, walked up the nave behind the coffin with the German emperor and Queen Mary following.

During the service the widowed queen moved to the foot of the catafalque and knelt, and just before the coffin was lowered to the crypt King George placed on the coffin a royal standard.

Several of the royal mourners, including Archduke Prince Ferdinand of Austria and Prince Charles of Sweden, left London tonight, but the reigning monarchs remain and the king and queen had another notable dinner party at Buckingham palace this evening.

The state funeral was conducted in accordance with precedent, the pomp and ceremonial borrowed from the past being rendered more effective by a display of modern mourning.

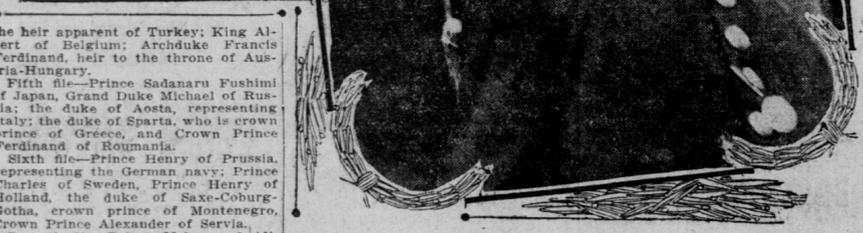

After having lain in state for three days the body was taken in stately procession this morning to Paddington station, where it was placed in a funeral car and removed to Windsor for burial.

Kings, princes and representatives of foreign governments followed the casket through the streets, which were lined with 30,000 troops that had to check the mass of humanity that from every point of vantage silently watched the pageant.

After the procession formed just before the hour scheduled for the start, court carriages halted before the door of Westminster hall. Emperor William, who was mounted and in line, recognized the occupant as the queen mother Alexandra. Quickly dismounting, he waved aside the jockeys crowded about and giving his hand to the widow of his uncle assisted her to alight and placed a kiss on her cheek.

RESPECT FOR DEAD KING MARKS RITUAL

Bishop Nichols Presides at Memorial Services at Trinity Episcopal Church. Acting Governor, Army Officers, Consuls and British Residents Express Sorrow.

ON THE DEATH OF EDWARD VII

By Edward Robeson Taylor. All England's far spread empire weeps today. O'er that imperial head death would not spare. And we Americans are proud to share. Our tears with them and let our words have way.

"O merciful God, and Heavenly Father, who hast taught us in thy holy word that thou dost not willingly afflict or grieve the children of men, look with pity, we beseech thee, upon the sorrows of thy servants, the people of the British empire, for whom our prayers are offered. In thy wisdom thou hast seen it to visit them with trouble, and to bring distress upon them. Remember them, O Lord, in mercy; sanctify thy fatherly correction to them; endure their souls with patience under their affliction, and with resignation to thy blessed will; comfort them with a sense of thy goodness; lift up thy countenance upon them, and give them peace; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

Memorial services for the late King Edward VII were held yesterday in Trinity Episcopal church, Gough and Bush streets. Bishop William Ford Nichols of the diocese of California presided and delivered the benediction. The church was filled with sorrowing British residents. Services were held in other churches with a uniform ritual.

ACTING GOVERNOR PRESENT. The services were attended by consular officials of the several nations, many of whom were in court dress; by acting Governor Warren Porter, by the United States army officers and officers of the national guard in full uniform.

The noble Norman church was heavily draped within with royal purple, and over the altar hung the American flag and the British standard. The services were filled with solemnity by the impressive reading of the lessons from the scriptures, the prayers of the ritual for the dead and the deep music of the church.

There was no eulogy pronounced, but the services expressed more deeply than a sermon could the respect in which the late king was held by his former subjects who now are American citizens.

UNIFORMS AND COURT DRESS. There was a display of uniforms and court dress which is rarely seen here. Bishop Nichols, who delivered the benediction, was in full canonical robes, with the scarlet hood to his vestments.

Consul General Walter R. Hearn and Consul W. Moore were in court costume and wore bands of crape on their arms and knots of crape on their swords. The Russian consul general, Pierre Rodjstevsky, was also in uniform, as were others of the consular service.

ORDER OF THE SERVICES. The services consisted of the reading of the psalm, "The Dead March in Saul"; scriptural reading, singing of the psalm beginning "Lord, let me know mine end"; reading of the lesson from 1 Corinthians, xv:20, by Rev. William Kirk Guthrie, pastor of the Presbyterian church; hymn, "Abide With Me"; the recital of the prayers of the ritual by Rev. Frederick W. Clappett, rector of the church; the hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past"; oration solo, "The Dead March in Saul"; the benediction by Bishop Nichols, and singing the national anthem of Great Britain and of "America" successively. The recessional was Chopin's funeral march.

PRAYERS FOR ROYAL FAMILY. The prayers recited by Doctor Clappett included those for King George, the queen mother, Alexandra, Queen Mary, Edward, duke of Cornwall and all the royal family, as they are used in the English church. The president of the United States, the governor of the state and the other officials were included also in the prayers.

The clergymen present in the chancel were Bishop Nichols, Rev. Frederick W. Clappett, Rev. William Kirk Guthrie, Rev. J. W. Graham, Father Sebastian Dabovitch, Rabbi Jacob Nieto, Rev. Frank Stone, Rev. Caleb Benham, Louis H. Eaton, organist, directed the music.

Among those present in the church were the consular general and consuls of all nations represented at San Francisco, consular officials and women of the consular corps, General Thomas Berry, U. S. A., and staff, Colonel Lundeen and staff, acting Governor Warren Porter, General Lauck, Colonel Wilhelm, Colonel Pippy, national guard, California, Supreme Court Justice Melvin and Shaw, Dr. Benjamin Ide Wheeler and former Mayor Edward Robeson Taylor.

DEL FIURGO GUERA CHARGED WITH FRAUD

Adventist Minister Sues for Recovery of Property. OAKLAND, May 20.—Suit charging fraud was filed today by Attorney H. J. Curran for J. D. Price, a Seventh Day Adventist minister, against P. L. E. Del Fiurgo Guera, the action being to force Guera to transfer back to Price property which he deeded to the defendant in exchange for paper alleged to be worthless.

According to the complaint, Guera presented himself to Price as agent for a millionaire named "Louis N. Harrison." Price had property in Oakland, Del Monte, Los Angeles and Santa Cruz and after some persuasion conveyed it to Guera, who displayed $15,000 in drafts and notes which "Harrison" had made on himself. Price accepted the drafts and Guera took the deeds.

The suit recalls other deals which Guera has been identified with and which resulted in involved litigation. Price declared that the drafts were valueless, inasmuch as he had been unable to turn them into anything like cash. The minister alleges that his confidence was won by the manner and representation of Guera and that he did not hesitate to transfer his titles to the agent for a "millionaire." Actions of the same character have revolved about the defendant's head before in other bay counties, all of a civil nature. Price asks for restitution of his property and costs.

FISH TRUST SIFT NOW COMPLETED

Prosecution Will Be Conducted Under the Cartwright Anti-Trust Law. Evidence Not on Record Being Held in Reserve for Time of the Trial.

Puccini put $1,500 into the firm, as did G. Gigi and A. Faenzi. Gigi did a crab and salmon business at Eureka and was able to undersell the trust at a good profit.

SUPPLY WAS CUT OFF. Puccini says that the firm opened with every prospect of doing a heavy trade. To supply all classes it in some approached the trust markets for soles and sand dabs, but were refused. For a while they got them through peddlers, but the peddlers themselves found that they were cut off by the trust.

Every day customers used to tell Puccini that they were sorry they could not buy of the Portola. The reason given in every case was the blacklist maintained by Paldini and Trapani.

Faenzi and an employe named Morongo used to deliver fish for the Portola. They seldom took it directly to a retailer, but they would find in some unsuspected place, where it might be picked up by the purchaser. But the trick failed.

The Western, which was just across the way from the Portola, in Mareham street, had a man named Borgote, whose duty was the trailing of the Portola's delivery wagon. This brought about the prompt censure of the offending retailer.

Borgote once went into the Portola market and frankly told what he had been hired to do by Trapani. It was a much easier job, he said, than working among the fish. The Western gave him a buggy for this pleasant duty.

The existence of the blacklist has been proven by retailers independently of the Portola people. Puccini, Gigi and Faenzi have now a $15,000 damage suit pending in the superior court against the trust, based on this very matter.
