ONE ROUND ENOUGH TO WALLOP SEALS

Fifth Inning Chosen for Ten Run Slaughter of Kid Mohler's Crew

It wasn't a baseball game at Freeman's park, Oakland, yesterday. It was a tragedy, with the Oaks as villains and the Seals as the victims. In one awful spasm—the fifth—Wolverton's men gathered 10 runs. They never scored before or after this inning, but the 10 were quite sufficient, thank you. The Seals tried hard to do some good for themselves by dealing out three home runs, but they never figured to top that half score of tallies garnered by the Oakland boys in the fatal fifth. The best Mohler's men could do was to gather seven runs, and had not Slim Nelson slacked up the victory of the Oaks would have been even more decisive.

Frank Miller was the innocent victim of the slugging proclivities of the transbay outfit. Frank had been going along nicely, letting the Oaks down without either hit or run for four innings, when Wolverton gave his hirings the office to start something. They started it, and had not Miller been yanked from the box and Stewart substituted there is no saying what the result might have been.

Moving acquired a lead of one run in the third inning, and Miller holding the Oaks hitless, the Seals took their places in the field with a great deal of confidence in the fifth. They little knew what was about to happen. They did not know that Eddie Swander would slam out a couple of two baggers in that inning or that Willie Hogan had a nice double ready to cut loose. They never even dreamed that Bunny Pearce would pole the longest home run of the season over the left fence. But all of these happenings and a lot of other unexpected things took place. Sing this to slow music.

THAT FATAL FIFTH

Swander, the first man up, speeded one for two stations. Maggart walked and Pearce forced Swander at third. Then Slim Nelson appeared on the horizon and surprised the multitude by lining out a single. So the bags were densely populated and only one down. Cutshaw drove out a clean single, which scored Maggart and Pearce. When Wares dumped one in front of the plate everybody was safe again. Then up comes Willie Hogan with a corking double and Nelson and Cameron arrived at the pay station. Don Cameron was slipped transportation and the bags were again filled. Carroll stopped one of Miller's curves with his head and Wares was forced home and Swander's second double scored Hogan, Cameron and Carroll. This was too much for Mr. Miller and Mohler accommodatedly removed him from the box and sent Stewart in. Maggart was disposed of, Vitt to Tenant, but Pearce was yet to be ticked. Bunny hoisted it high over the left field fence, scoring Swander ahead of him. Nelson mercifully terminated the agony by fading away on three strikes.

PING BODIE'S HOMER

The Seals collected one in the sixth, but the Oaks had not stopped laughing by that time, and Nelson presented the run by tossing the ball over Cameron's head, when he had lots of time in which to walk over and present the pellets at the bag. Not at all daunted by the 10 runs gathered by the Oaks, the Mohlerites came back strong in the eighth and built up three runs. Ping Bodie's homer bringing in Williams and Lewis, which had reached the patch by singles. In the ninth Williams and Bodie both poked homers, but there were none on the sacks when the big wallop arrived. Williams' big dingle bounced over the left field fence, while Bodie's was a clean drive over the right field boards. Score:

HERE'S "DOPE" ON STUDENTS FATTEN EATING SULPHUR

Cartoonist Impales Johnson, Langford and Other Celebrities on Harpoon of Wit

By R. L. GOLDBERG

Don't get fussy, Eddie. We have to stick around here till Jim Corbett and Joe Choyanski pull off their little three round duel on Saturday afternoon. Then we will do a Barney Oldfield down to Rowdennan and look over every muscle in Jeff's body, from the pulmonary bullarabus to the una bone. The fight is more than three weeks away and that will give you plenty of time to add up your talk and divide by gray matter.

Corbett and Choyanski will present a little three round specialty in Louis Blot's new arena at Eighth and Howard streets, only two blocks away from the scene of the big battle that comes off on Independence day, as a delayed echo of their memorable battle of 21 years ago at 6 o'clock in the morning on a barge in Santa bay.

The exhibition itself will probably not bear expert inspection. But the spectacle of the two veterans in the same ring will bring many a large jump to the throats of the old boys who hide behind the Brussels sprouts. Every speck of sentiment left in the carcass of the confirmed fight fan will be pulled out from under the bed and memories of ye olden days will run rampant around the ring during the sacred exhibition. Just imagine yourself watching a game of checkers between George Washington and General Grant. That's the answer.

ARENA UNDER WAY

We took a good squint at the work so far done on the Jeffries Johnson arena. If any one tells you that the fight will not come off, we are willing to send him a picture of the battleground in its present state. It certainly looks like real legitimate business, and any one would be as crazy as a French juggler to make such a large investment without positive assurance that the deal would go through to the end.

The fight arena represents an investment of $25,000 and will accommodate 3,000 people—probably 32,000 if crowded to the limit. The average price of a seat will be $20, which brings the possible gate receipts up to over $600,000. Go to the drug store, get a large box of headache powders, lock yourself in your room and let your mind dwell on this fabulous layout. It's terrible, isn't it?

Tex Ricard has already engaged the brass band of 50 pieces to entertain the crowd before the principals enter the ring. The promoter says he will have no preliminary to the big battle other than the musical entertainment. He believes in the hollering of the spectators with the holiday spirit here bringing on the big show. Tex is some fellow.

SCRIBES FLOCK TO SETTLEMENT

Rickard is worried over the requests for seats that have come from newspapermen all over the world. The way the scribes are flocking into this settlement is fierce. You can't shake your fountain pen without spilling ink on the nose of a fight expert. Every scribe, from the sporting editor of the Hashville Rave to the agricultural statistician of the Budapest Egg, is on the job. The paper mills expect to be worked overtime from now until the big fight.

Al Kaufman did his initial work in Johnson's camp this afternoon. He went four rounds with the colored champion and gave the chocolate éclair a chance to use a little of his unexcelled science to good advantage. Although Kaufman is in the best of shape, Johnson used him like a big toy and let his golden smile illuminate the gymnasium uninterrupted. Kaufman is preparing for his fight with Sam Langford a week from Saturday. If the Boston cave man fights true to form Kaufman is looked upon as a sure candidate for the dark corner.

Corbett and Choyanski will come to town tomorrow, so Jeff will have to postpone his little nooked for bout with "gentleman Jim" until next week.

GARDENER STICKS TO ASSAULT STORY

Man Struck by Train Insists That He Was Felled on Track by Two Men

SAN RAFAEL, June 9.—Charles MacNaughton, the gardener who was seriously injured by a train at Kentfield, still insists that he was attacked by two strangers before the accident. Against his story is the statement made to the authorities today by J. T. Neal, a painter of the same place, who declares that MacNaughton attacked him in a lonely spot near the railroad track and fled when Mrs. Neal appeared on the scene with a revolver.

Although suffering from painful cuts and bruises on the back and thighs, MacNaughton told the following story: "I was walking along a dark roadway near the railroad tracks," he said, "when I met two men. They asked me to walk with them. We had gone only a little way when one of them seized me by the face, I broke away and started to run across the track. Just then something hit me a terrible blow on the back of the head. It felt like an iron bar or piece of pipe. I must have fainted. The next I remember is when they carried me aboard the train."

The gardener's mind is clouded on numerous subjects. Neal, a painter of good reputation at Kentfield, called on Sheriff Taylor this morning and asked to see MacNaughton. He was taken to the hospital, where he identified the gardener as the man who attacked him. Neal says that he was walking along the roadway when he saw a man sitting in the bushes. He asked him what he was doing, and the man replied that he was looking for his shoes. "But you have both shoes on your feet," said Neal. "So I have," replied the stranger. "Let me walk home with you."

Neal says the gardener waited for no answer to his request, but got up and walked beside him. "Suddenly," says Neal, "he turned and struck at me. I struggled with him and called for assistance. My home was near by and my wife heard me. She came to my assistance with a revolver, and at her approach the gardener fled."
