

THE GOLDEN WEST AT EXPOSITION

Grand Parlor Launches Plan to Make Exhibit Best Fraternal Display on Ground

Resolution Indorsing Project Is Passed and Enthusiastic Support Pledged by Order

[Special Dispatch to The Call]

SANTA BARBARA, June 17.—The Native Daughters of the Golden West will have a special building at the Panama-Pacific international exposition in San Francisco in 1915, if the plan launched today at the session of the grand parlor is carried out.

By an enthusiastic vote the daughters of California pledged themselves to carry out the ambitious plan of Grand President Emma Witte Lillie to make a most interesting exhibit in 1915. While the scheme outlined in the resolutions adopted today is but tentative, still the alacrity with which the delegates acted upon the recommendations of their grand president proved that the thousands of women in the order will make every effort to have the best fraternal exhibit in the grounds.

EXPOSITION SPIRIT STRONG

Grand President elect Mamie G. Peyton, who was chosen tonight to head the order during the coming year, will work as earnestly for the cause as has Mrs. Lillie, and when the grand parlor meets next year it is believed that a definite plan of action will be presented for the consideration of the order.

The following is the text of the Panama-Pacific international exposition resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, that the grand parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, at Santa Barbara, is in full sympathy with the project of the Panama-Pacific international exposition to hold a fair in the city of San Francisco, Cal., in the year 1915 and hereby resolves the same and joins in the appeal of all loyal Californians to the legislature of California and to the congress of the United States, asking for such appropriation for money and such other assistance as shall insure a worthy celebration of so momentous an event.

ADOPTS LEADER'S REPORT

To support and amplify the sense of the resolution which had already been passed by the majority of the subordinate parlors, the grand parlor adopted as its controlling act in the work for the Panama-Pacific exposition the following clause of Mrs. Lillie's report: "The purpose for which the committee of 1915 has been organized is to act as advance agent of the Native Daughters' interests in the exposition, to secure space on the grounds for an exhibit or for a clubhouse, or for whatever purpose may be deemed best for the interests of the occasion, to aid the exposition managers in their publicity plans, to work in conjunction with each grand president to help to carry out whatever plans the head of the order or the grand parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, may desire to put into effect, and, through its district chairmen or vice presidents, act as an advisory board or helping hand to the subordinate parlors in their plans to make the celebration successful. Grand President Lillie reported the appointment of the following as the 1915 committee of the order: Mamie G. Peyton, grand vice president, Joqui parlor, Stockton; Laura J. Frakes, grand secretary, Amapol parlor, Sutter; Susie K. Christ, grand treasurer, Yosemite parlor, San Francisco; Alison V. West, grand reporter, Manzanita parlor, Grass Valley; Mary E. Tilmann, grand trustee, Vendome parlor, San Jose; Olive V. Bedford, grand trustee, Camelia parlor, Eureka; Mary E. Tilmann, past grand president, Minerva parlor, San Francisco; Cora B. Sifford, past grand president, Buena Vista parlor, Sutter; Emma G. Galt, past grand president, California parlor, Sacramento; Ella E. Caminetti, past grand president, Uru parlor, Sutter; Ariana W. Stirling, past grand president, La Esperanza parlor, Los Angeles.

Engineer Says That Capacity Could Be Increased to 110,000,000 Gallons

That the capacity of the whole watershed and storage plant of the Spring Valley water company could be raised to 110,000,000 gallons was the surprising statement of Hermann Schussler last night in a lecture on the future water supply of San Francisco in Starr King hall, at Geary and Franklin streets. Schussler went into the Spring Valley plant in detail and showed a number of stereoscopic views of the company's various dams and reservoirs, as well as methods of construction. At one point in his speech he stated that the capacity could be increased to 150,000,000 gallons with development. With maps and charts of drainage areas he indicated the lines such development would have to take. He said that the principal increase would be from the building of dams and reservoirs in the region of the Calaveras water shed and the enlarging of the Crystal springs dam. He laid particular stress upon the overflow of the latter, showing a number of views of it. He said that when the dam was built it was so constructed as to make an addition of 40 feet or more possible. He dwelt on the engineering technicalities of the construction, highly recommending the type of dam built of interlocking concrete columns.

CONFERENCE REGARDING EQUITABLE LIFE COMPANY

J. P. Morgan Will Name Three New Trustees [Special Cable to The Call] LONDON, June 17.—Affairs of the Equitable life assurance society were settled here this week during some remarkable conferences. Paul Morton, president of the company; J. C. Rockett, the European representative, and George T. Wilson, vice president, held three long conferences with J. P. Morgan just before Morgan sailed on the Adriatic. The agreement whereby trustees shall vote the stock of the company expired two days ago, but Morgan is under pledge to renew the agreement. There is great curiosity manifested in financial circles as to who will be the three new trustees. Morgan will reach New York Monday and it is reported that on his arrival he will name the trustees and also indicate other changes in the management of the company.

ABANDONED AT NOON

In honor of Bunker Hill day the grand parlor adjourned at noon today to the tune of "Yankee Doodle." It is expected that the grand parlor will adjourn finally at noon tomorrow, and the delegates from the north will continue on to Los Angeles. A special rate has been secured from the railroad company. The results of the election of grand officers of the Native Daughters of the Golden West were uncertain at midnight except as to those who had no

SECOND PRINCE OF INDIA IS IN TOWN

Oriental With Retinue and His Long List of Titles Lands From the Siberia

His Jewels, Left at Home, Rank Among Largest of World Collections

Maharajah Sir Sayji Rao Gaekwar, sena khar khel shamsah bahadur of Baroda is in town. He arrived yesterday from India on the liner Siberia, accompanied by his wife and daughter, and attended by a secretary and aid, a cockney valet, a maid and four servants. In India the Gaekwar is a prince, the second wealthiest in the empire. His wife, Chinnabai, bears the title of maharani and his daughter, Indraraj, rates as a princess and looks the part.

During the voyage the maharani and princess wore their native costumes, tightly, dimly obscured by clouds of fluffy white drapery. They went ashore from the Siberia in rustling silks. The Gaekwar's complexion was the only mark of the orient about him. His small, erect figure was the frame for a suit of well tailored tweeds and he wore a dicer instead of a turban.

GAEKWAR RANKS SECOND There are 500 princes in India. The Gaekwar comes No. 2 on the list. The royal party is on its way to London to visit King George, the new emperor of India. On the way, however, they will visit Harvard, where the Gaekwar's son, Prince Jaisingar, is a sophomore. The prince, as heir to an annual income of something like $12,000,000, is sumptuously housed, but is said to be exceedingly democratic.

The maharani wears the caste sign, a little round, vermilion dot in the center of her forehead. She is a dignified looking woman and her daughter, the princess, is as pretty as a picture. The princess was educated in England and speaks the language fluently.

The Gaekwar is one of the semi-independent princes of India who are privileged to make laws, levy taxes, mint coin and maintain standing armies. Although when traveling the Gaekwar assumes the dress and follows the custom of western civilization he has with him the jeweled and gold trimmed silks in which he will appear at the court of King George.

He is a very important individual in his own country. He travels about his own domain on a huge elephant with an escort of gaudy troopers. He rates a salute of 21 guns. At the great durbar he sits near the viceroys. He owns the most famous diamond necklace in the world.

He ascended the throne of Baroda in 1875 and his reign has been good for the land and marked by the establishment of many schools and hospitals and a vast improvement in the sanitary condition of the towns. BEGAN LIKE MOWGLI The Gaekwar began life like Mowgli, as a herder of water buffalo. He was a poor boy in an obscure village when the death of the then reigning Gaekwar left him the next in line to the throne. The connection was distant, but established without difficulty, and one day a pompous priest came to the village, told the boy of the throne that awaited him, and with much pomp and circumstance conducted him to Baroda, where he has been "it" ever since.

Being "it" in India means money in the hands of the ruler. He displays as the western world never sees. The Gaekwar's collection of jewels is said to be the most magnificent in the world. His palace is defended by artillery, and his treasury is filled with the bullocks that draw his royal artillery wear golden caps on their horns and gold and silver bangles around their shins.

HAS SOME DIAMONDS The rajah's diamond necklace is valued at $12,000,000. It is composed of 200 diamonds, each of a large size. He left it at home, and with it a famous colicore which contains 500 diamonds, including the "star of the south," the second largest diamond in the world. In his palace he has a rug, four yards square, the pattern of which is worked in diamonds, pearls and rubies. His people pay all his household expenses and he has nothing to do with his enormous income but spend it on himself.

FRUIT MERCHANTS SUE THE BOARD OF HEALTH Object to Concreting Washington Street Buildings In order to test the validity of the order of the board of health that the fruit and produce commission should construct concrete walls between the buildings they occupy, as well as concreting the basements and the sidewalks, Hunt, Hatch & Co. of 216 Washington street yesterday began suit to restrain the board from the police department from tearing down the premises.

It is claimed that as the buildings are of only a temporary character, it would cost more than they are worth to obey the order of the board of health. Following the refusal of the commission merchants to concrete the premises the board threatened to demolish them.

Judge Trout issued a temporary injunction returnable next Friday. Mastick & Partridge are the attorneys for the plaintiffs.

MEDIATION IN SOUTHERN ROW SAID TO BE FAILURE Conditions Imposed by Ecuador Not Accepted LIMA, Peru, June 17.—It was rumored today that the attempted mediation between Peru and Ecuador had failed, owing to the conditions imposed by Ecuador as a basis for the peace negotiations.

Both countries began, several days ago, the withdrawal from the frontiers of the troops which had been massed when the outbreak of hostilities was believed to be imminent. The withdrawal was in accordance with the insistence of the mediating powers when the United States, Brazil and Argentina undertook to act jointly in arbitrating the boundary disputes between the two republics which, it seemed obvious, could be otherwise settled only by war.

Nevertheless vague reports that Ecuador had qualified its consent to mediation have been circulated here until now they appear to be gaining credence.

GUNBOATS SAIL FOR ALASKA—Seattle, June 17.—The gunboats Wheeling and Petrel, sailed from the Bremerton navy yard today for the Alaskan coast via the Suez canal and will stop at Dutch Harbor, Alaska for coal. The gunboats may be called upon to join the revenue cutter Albatross in the hunt for the Japanese poachers, who are swarming the north Pacific, have been scared away.

DEAN OF RADCLIFFE—Cambridge, Mass., June 17.—The election of Miss Mary Coes, secretary of the Radcliffe college, as dean of that institution, instead of Miss Agnes Irwin, who resigned a year ago, was announced today.

WRITER NOT FOND OF THE NIPPONESE

Author Homeward Bound Has His Own Ideas About the Far Easterners

Harold MacGrath, the writer, was among the Nippon Maru's passengers released from a week's quarantine on Angel Island at the Pacific Mail wharf yesterday. Here he entered with his wife on the last leg of a world tour of three years, with material for more of his entertaining stories, which he will complete after arriving at his home in Syracuse, N. Y.

During his travels the author of "The Man on the Box" developed some decided views on questions of interest to the Pacific coast. He took a decided dislike to the Japanese, formed a poor opinion of the Hindus and yesterday put himself on record against Governor Gillett on the prizefight question.

JAPS ARE COCKY "What do I think of the Japanese?" MacGrath repeated. "Well, I was some time among them and feel certain the war with Russia did them no good. They have grown 'cocky' since the war. The old desire to appear amiable has disappeared. In its place they go to the other extreme of trying to make the foreigners uncomfortable. All classes, from the coolies up, display their animosity openly. They made things very unpleasant for myself and Mrs. MacGrath."

"I certainly am converted to the movement to keep the Hindus in their own country. They are a dirty people, clammy and nonassimilative. They can bring us no good. Antipathy to dark races is natural among us and instinctive to self-preservation. "There is a gulf between the east and west we can never span. The Japanese, you will hear the boast, believe that they have learned in 30 years from us all that we have taken centuries to acquire. They can't see the difference."

SORRY ABOUT FIGHT Upon the subject of the fight, he observed: "I am sorry to hear the big fight will not be held here. It is too bad. There was great excitement over it on ship, many of the men intended to remain to see it."

Mr. and Mrs. MacGrath expressed pleasure at being back in the United States, although enjoying a delightful trip. Their most pleasant recollections relate to their stay in Belaggio, on the shores of Lake Como, Italy. Before returning to their home, they will tour California. The author had not seen his newest book, "A Splendid Hazard," in print.

FUGITIVE BANKER TO SURRENDER TO JUSTICE Plea of Guilty to Wrecking Institution Promised BELLINGHAM, Wash., June 17.—H. J. WOMAN IN COURT FOR ASSAULT TO MURDER Case of Mrs. Hannah Welsh Continued for Week Mrs. Hannah Welsh, 120 Ripley street, who shot Deputy Sheriff John A. Barr Thursday morning while he was trying to serve her with a writ of attachment, appeared before Judge Weller yesterday on a charge of assault to murder. At the request of the prosecution the case was continued for a week to be set. The police have learned that Mrs. Welsh purchased the revolver and ammunition from Kruse's hardware store, Twenty-third and Shotwell streets, June 9, the day after Barr tried to serve her with the writ but failed. Dr. Louis W. Allen, who is attending Barr at St. Luke's hospital, says that Barr will recover unless unforeseen complications arise. The bullet went clear through his head.

PALADINI HIDES FINGERLING BASS

Fish Trust Stable Raided by Vogelsang Yields Big Illegal Catch

Undersized Fish Found Hidden Under Blankets, Wagons and Buggies

Chief Deputy Vogelsang of the fish and game commission had his deputies spring a surprise yesterday on the fish trust. For some time past Deputy E. G. Borey has been closely watching the movements of A. Paladini, the prime mover of the fish monopoly. His efforts were rewarded yesterday and accompanied by Deputies E. M. McMillan, G. E. Wood and W. M. Purves, the stables of A. Paladini at Battery and Green streets were raided.

At first the raid looked as if it would bear no fruit, as there was not a sign of fish to be seen. So cleverly, and even cunningly, had the Paladini employees hidden the prize that the deputies were on the point of leaving, when a fish basket was noticed under one of the wagons, heavily covered with buggy robes.

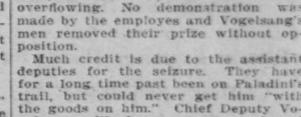

On examination it was found to contain striped bass far below the legal size. A further search was made and box after box was found, each one cleverly hidden from view behind wagons, buggies and in every conceivable place that it was thought no trace of the fish could be found. A total weight of 3,253 pounds was discovered and seized by the deputies.

This catch represented almost 1,200 fish, and the average weight was found to be less than half a pound. At the present time the season is closed for striped bass and the season proper does not open until July 1. The legal weight of striped bass is three pounds, and had the catch been the legal weight the correct poundage of the catch would have been in the vicinity of 20,000 pounds. Such fish as were seized should have been returned to the depths of the sea the minute they were caught and given a chance to grow, and when of legal size such a catch, if properly handled and not used for the glue works or dumped overboard, would do considerable to ameliorate the conditions of the high fish prices now existing.

The striped bass are often caught weighing well over 10 pounds and sometimes considerably more than that. There have been rare instances of this variety of bass being caught weighing over the 30 pound mark.

At the time of the seizure there were very few employees round the stable at Green and Battery streets, but before the deputies had been on the scene many minutes the stable was filled to overflowing. No demonstration was made by the employees and Vogelsang's men removed their prize without opposition.

Much credit is due to the assistant deputies for the seizure. They have for a long time past been on Paladini's trail, but could never get him "with the goods on him." Chief Deputy Vogelsang will have a warrant issued early today and Paladini will in all probability be under arrest before noon.
