

CHICAGO RANKS AS FOURTH BIG CITY

Illinois Town Passes Tokio and Berlin From Standpoint of Population

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The population of Chicago is 2,185,283, an increase of 486,708, or 28.7 per cent, as compared with 1,698,575 in 1900.

Chicago has almost doubled its population since 1890, when the figures were 1,095,850. Its increase in population during the last decade was not so great proportionately as that of New York.

Chicago has jumped from sixth to fourth place among the big cities on the globe. It is following close on the heels of Paris, whose population by its last census in 1901 was 2,714,065.

It takes precedence over Tokyo with its 2,085,160 inhabitants, and Berlin with 2,040,448.

The population of New Orleans is 328,675, an increase of 51,971, or 18.1 per cent, as compared with 287,104 in 1900.

New Orleans has lost its position of twelfth in the list of the country's largest cities and now occupies fifteenth position.

Detroit, with a 62 per cent increase; Milwaukee, with 51 per cent, and Newark, with 47.2 per cent, have passed ahead of New Orleans.

Holyoke, Mass., has 67,730 people, an increase of 12,918, or 26.3 per cent, as compared with 45,712 in 1900.

Lowell, Mass., has 106,294 people, an increase of 11,225, or 11.9 per cent, as compared with 94,969 in 1900.

Pittsfield, Mass., has 32,121 people, an increase of 10,355, or 47.6 per cent, as compared with 21,766 in 1900.

The bureau's statistics show that of the 35 cities which in 1900 had a population of 100,000 and more, 24 are given and to these are added five which have attained the 100,000 mark during the last decade.

The aggregate population of these 29 cities now is 13,596,819, as against 10,278,012 in 1900, and 7,904,140 in 1890.

The absolute increase between 1890 and 1900 amounted to 2,411,572; between 1900 and 1910 to 3,220,507.

The percentage of increase for these aggregate population show very little change in the rate of growth during the two decades, being for the earlier 21.4 per cent, and for the latter 31 per cent.

Of the seven cities whose rate exceeded 40 per cent, two, Newark, N. J., and Bridgeport, Conn., are eastern; one, Atlanta, is southern, and four, Detroit, Denver, Kansas City and Columbus, are western.

GAS STOVE STARTS SPECTACULAR FIRE

Three Houses Badly Damaged by Big Blaze on Filbert Street Hill

A spectacular blaze on the hill at Leavenworth and Filbert streets yesterday afternoon destroyed the rear portions of three houses and threatened to wipe out a block of closely built wooden structures.

The fire started from a gas stove in the home of Mrs. D. E. Andreis, 2110 Leavenworth, and spread rapidly to the rear of the three flat building of N. D. Valvaies and the two flat house of Mrs. M. Winters, destroying property valued at $5,000, most of which is covered by insurance.

Mrs. Andreis was preparing supper on the gas stove which stood on the rear porch. It is believed that the wind swept the flame against the coal bin at one side.

When Mrs. Andreis entered the house she detected the odor of fire and turning saw the rear porch ablaze. Her screams brought Mrs. Tapliss, a downstairs tenant, and after an ineffectual attempt to put the fire out, the alarm was turned in.

The house stands next to the corner. Both adjoining houses caught fire. Valvaies, 2104 Leavenworth street, was sick in bed when he heard the cries.

In the rear of his home was a hand-somely furnished study just fitted for $900, which was completely destroyed. F. W. Kroll and family live in the lower flat, but escaped with only slight injury. Miss M. O. Carniglia in the lowest flat returned to find her home upset, but uninjured.

On the other side of the Andreis house is the home of Mrs. Winter, 2112 Leavenworth street. The back rooms of the upper flat, occupied by N. E. Dorman of the Bank of California, were partly burned. Mrs. Dorman was away at the time of the blaze.

The steep hills on all sides made it hard for the fire companies to reach the scene.
