gaged tomorrow, when further demonstrations are expected. "We can not give their names at this time," said Mrs. Robins. "We found it advisable in New York, and I am sure we will here, to keep the police guessing as to who our pickets are."

Although several tailoring establishments where strike breakers are being employed were stoned today, only a few persons were injured and there were no fatalities.

Strike Is Extended NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—No material progress was made today toward settling the strike of express employees, which has been in progress for nearly a week. The strike has resulted in a great congestion of express traffic and in much disorder.

There was rioting in many parts of Jersey City and in Manhattan today. For the most part, however, the outbreaks were quickly quelled by the police.

Arrests were made in nearly every instance and the arraignment of the prisoners called forth notice to rioters that more severe penalties would be dealt out in the future.

Hitherto most of the magistrates have been content to inflict small fines on such offenders. Two magistrates announced that beginning tomorrow any one convicted of disorderly conduct in connection with the strike would be given a workhouse sentence.

ARMED BANDIT ROBS MILK WAGON DRIVER

Jumps From Vacant Lot and Takes Eighty Cents

While driving his wagon past a vacant lot at Phelan avenue and Summerfield streets on his morning milk delivery yesterday Roy Holquist, 170 Highland avenue, was held up by an armed and masked man who jumped from the bushes and covered Holquist with two revolvers.

Holquist stopped his horse and held up his hands. The robber went through Holquist's pockets and secured 80 cents, and then ordered him to drive on without looking back.

Holquist hastened to the nearest telephone and notified the police. Policemen were sent to the neighborhood and searched for some trace of the robber but without avail.

Burglars Secure Jewelry John P. Sullivan, 726A Clayton street, reported yesterday that burglars entered his house early in the morning and stole jewelry valued at $462.20.

Other burglaries were reported as follows: Mrs. I. Wilson, 1236 Sixth avenue, watch stolen.

May Hathaway, 50 Webster street, articles valued at $45 stolen.

DOORSTEP DREAMER VIOLENT—Charged with the beating of Policeman William Desmond yesterday, John Howard told Judge Conlan when arraigned for being drunk that he was dreaming and thought he was fighting with a dragon when disturbed by policeman while sleeping in a doorway at Third and Clementia streets. Desmond said that Howard apologized and stated that he was suffering from nightmare, and the case was dismissed.

The Call's Orphan Fund Jumps High Above $10,000

Money for the orphans of Mount St. Joseph's asylum came in by tens, twenties and hundreds yesterday. The total at the close of the day footed up $10,504.02. Look at the list and see what the policemen did and the benefit generously given by the Valencia theater. It must be remembered that the price of admission to the Valencia was only one nickel.

Following are the subscriptions received yesterday:

HONOR TO GO TO OLDEST VESSEL

Bronze Tablet to Commemorate Schooner's Service in War of 1812

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Long deferred honor due to the Polly, a little two masted schooner said to be the oldest vessel afloat of American register, will be paid tomorrow, when the National Society of United States Daughters of the War of 1812 will unveil in the schooner's cabin a bronze tablet, which will serve to commemorate the service of the little vessel to the United States in battle.

Although the Polly is well past the century mark in age, having been built in 1806, it still is engaged in the coastwise trade. It was a factor of importance in the war of 1812 and passed through many thrilling experiences. At the moment war was declared it proceeded to sea, and at the close of hostilities had a record of 11 vessels captured as prizes.

After the war the Polly made six trips to California by way of Cape Horn, the first being in 1849. It has girdled the globe twice.

HERING'S TRIP SAID

Calhoun's Former Attorney Adds Seasoning to Indiana Cisco's Talk

Will Theodore Bell deny that his political spokesman, Frank E. Hering of Indiana, has a conference in the Palace hotel last Sunday with Earl Rogers, the attorney who defended Patrick Calhoun in the graft trials? Will Theodore Bell volunteer an explanation of the coincidence of Calhoun's arrival from the east Sunday morning with Hering's hurried secret abandonment of his political tour for a visit to San Francisco?

It was immediately after Bell's visit to San Francisco and the conference of Hering and Rogers that Hering went forth at Vallejo and raised another question at Hiram Johnson, namely: "Did you not receive money from Patrick Calhoun while you were prosecuting Ruff and Schmitz in San Francisco?"

The sequence of events Bell is asked to explain or deny is as follows: Calhoun arrives from the east Sunday morning. Soon after, Calhoun's former attorney, Earl Rogers, seeks out Frank Hering, Bell's attorney, and seeks out Rogers and a conference is held. Hering, before a Vallejo audience, spouts the fire obtained in Rogers' interview with Calhoun. Theodore Bell hurries secretly to San Francisco and every effort is made to keep the fact of his appearance here from the press.

It was Sunday morning about 11:30 o'clock that Hering, while talking with a school chum at the Palace hotel, is informed that Earl Rogers has been looking for him there. Hering abandons the school chum and told a page to hunt for Rogers. Learning that Rogers had returned to the St. Francis Hotel, Hering had him called up by the phone, and the conference was arranged.

MRS. LILY BALDWIN NAMED AS AFFINITY

Wife of Los Angeles Automobile Dealer Accuses Him of Consorting With Widow

Divorce Petition Filed While Court Hears Case of Turfman's Alleged Daughter

Howard was holding clandestine meetings with Mrs. Baldwin, who, the wife says, is "a woman of great wealth—having more than $1,000,000." The wife gives it as her opinion that her husband is constantly conforming to Mrs. Baldwin's wishes, demands and enjoyments.

The demurrer to the answer to the contest of Beatrice Anita Turnbull Baldwin for a two-ninths' interest in the estate of the dead turfman was argued before Judge Rives. This demurrer was to the answer filed by Mrs. Clara Baldwin Stocker and Mrs. Anita Baldwin McLaughrey, two daughters, though there is another of a similar nature to be argued to the answer of H. A. Unruh, executor of the Baldwin estate.

In the demurrer attorneys for Beatrice Turnbull deny the allegation of the opposition that the laws of Massachusetts prevent an adopted child from inheriting any property except from her parents, by adoption. Mrs. Turnbull's attorneys declare that this section of the Massachusetts law is no longer in effect. Judge Rives took the case under advisement.

MRS. I. LOWENBERG WRITES ANOTHER BOOK

The news that Mrs. I. Lowenberg, whose clever book, "The Irresistible Current," proved such a success last year, has written another book is of the greatest interest. The new volume, "A Nation's Crime," is now in press in New York and it is expected that it will reach here in about two weeks. The subject matter of the book has not been divulged, but it is said to deal with one of the vital problems of the day, and decided curiosity is felt as to what is discussed.

Advertising Talks

Do you know how long Bromo Seltzer has been on the market? Nine out of every ten persons would say a much longer time than is actually the case—but that is because it has been so extensively advertised. Bromo Seltzer first saw the light of day behind the counter of a little drug store in Baltimore. Dr. Emerson, proprietor of the drug store, knew that there was a big demand for a headache powder—so he manufactured a powder to meet that demand, and with clean-cut, creative advertising, made the people realize that Bromo Seltzer was the only powder that met the demand. At first he did a little advertising in Baltimore, built up a home trade first. Then he took it over to Washington and did a little more advertising—and pretty soon Washington was calling for Bromo Seltzer. Then to Philadelphia and a little more advertising; Philadelphia took kindly to the new headache powder, and the way it was advertised—and in a little while there was a well established trade among the Quakers. Dr. Emerson took this unknown article and by systematic advertising introduced it into every country in the world. When he first put it on the market he would have sold an interest in the business for a few hundred dollars. Since then it has earned and paid millions of dollars. Making or selling an article for which there is a widespread demand, and making people realize that that article does fill the demand, by systematic advertising, is the road to great wealth. In 1898 the National Biscuit Company began putting up crackers in a sealed box. There was no dearth of crackers in 1898, but the new company convinced the people that the Unedea crackers were the only ones to fill the demand for good crackers. Take Ivory Soap with its yearly sales of over nine million dollars—Royal Baking Powder, with its yearly dividend of nearly two million dollars, and the answer is the same in each case—an article which fills a widespread demand, backed by systematic advertising. What do you think, Mr. Non-Advertiser? Haven't you something to sell, services or goods, for which there is a widespread unfulfilled demand? Would not systematic advertising make the people realize that you can perform that service, or supply the article which will fill the demand? The Call offers you help, advice, suggestions and advertising copy. The decision rests with you.

ROBERT HICHENS The opening chapters of Robert Hichens' new story, "The Dweller on the Threshold," in the November Century, give promise of a story, in some respects, the most remarkable he ever wrote. This story is written around that strange influence which one human being sometimes exercises over another—an influence belonging to that other world which borders so closely our own and whose phenomena are so little understood. Robert Hichens' books are for more than the passing moment; they are literature. His new story is worthy of the long series of noteworthy Century serials. The November number is brought up to an unusually high fiction standard by the addition of short stories by well-known and popular writers, including Alice Hegan Rice and Ellis Parker Butler. CENTURY MAGAZINE 55 cents a copy, $4.00 a year. At all book stores, or The Century Co., Union Square, New York.
