Los Angeles Grand Jury Will Soon Indict Principals in Times Explosion

Larsen said today that he was ready to leave for Los Angeles to tell all he knows about "Smith" and the find of the dynamite and the suitcase. He says that Marshal Murphy still has the dynamite and suitcase in his possession.

INDICTMENTS TO FOLLOW EVIDENCE

Principals in Plot Will Be Named When Testimony Is Completed

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—The assembling of 50 witnesses from San Francisco and vicinity marked a phase of the grand jury investigation of the Times disaster today, for which the return of indictments is expected to follow the testimony within a week.

Three true bills are anticipated by the district attorney's office. There may be four and possibly two more. The three or four indictments will name alleged principals in the plot which resulted in the destruction of the Los Angeles Times plant October 1, and the death of 21 of its men.

The other two will bring suspected sides of the plot into the grand jury's view. Six witnesses were examined today. Among them were Earl Rogers, who directed the search for evidence in the north, and J. D. Zianini, a powder expert.

The foundation to support the allegation that it was a dynamite explosion which wrecked the Times plant was laid by the survivors of the disaster, who testified Friday and Monday. The line of inquiry taken by the jury today was indicated by the witnesses called to the stand this morning and afternoon. Besides Rogers and Zianini, these were: George H. Phillips, assistant manager of the plant; Bruce McCall, shipping clerk at the plant; and the "mystery" man, the name of whom was not given until the grand jury adjourned until tomorrow.

Secretary of State Curry Pleads for United Party Loyalty at Election

Republican Candidate Promises to Enter More Into Details in This City

By W. RUSSELL COLE

[Special Dispatch to The Call] SACRAMENTO, Nov. 2.—Before an audience of 8,000 persons, the greatest, probably, that ever assembled to listen to any candidate for office in the state of California, Hiram W. Johnson made a speech tonight that will rank as one of the most memorable of a memorable campaign.

In the most direct and forceful language he sketched the issues before the people of the state in the present political fight, and then in a sudden burst of passionate response to the vituperation that has been heaped upon him during the last few weeks, he answered in one sweeping denial the manufactured lies and innuendoes that have fallen from the lips of the democratic nominee for governor, and the speakers who are participating in his campaign.

Johnson's answer to his political and personal detractors was direct and all inclusive, and his denunciation of Bell's friend, Frank Hering, as "an imported scoundrel from Indiana" brought from the vast audience an uproar of cheers and applause that lasted for a long time and that surged again and again at every reference to the "scoundrel" and attacks that have emanated from the democratic camp.

In concluding his address Johnson promised that tomorrow night at the Dreamland meeting in San Francisco he would retrace the steps of the past eight months. The republican standard bearer's native city gave him a demonstrative ovation that surpassed everything that has occurred either during the campaign or in the past.

JOHNSON SCORES DETRACTORS DENOUNCES BELL AND HERING

HIRAM W. JOHNSON CHARLES F. CURRY

JOHNSON'S STATEMENT TO VOTERS HE REFUTES SLANDEROUS CHARGES

Hiram W. Johnson was in San Francisco for a few hours yesterday, on his way to Sacramento, where he spoke last night, and made the following statement:

When I left San Francisco Sunday, October 23, I warned the people that the interests seeking our defeat and lined up with the democratic candidate proposed to enter upon a campaign of even greater vilification and mendacity than any that had gone before. That warning was based upon information that could not be questioned and the people now are aware how well it was warranted and how fully it has been substantiated during the last 10 days.

Every possible lying means has been used to besmirch my reputation and character. It should be sufficient answer to point out the men and the newspapers who are responsible for these mendacious and slanderous charges, and I am confident that the alignment is fully understood by the people as a whole. In fact, the reception that has been accorded me on the tour that I have just completed beyond all question shows that the people are in no way deceived, either as to the character and purpose of the men making the charges or as to the mendacity of the charges themselves. The enthusiasm of the people as a whole has been tremendous and at every meeting democrats have come to me to express their full accord with the fight we are making, and their disgust at the vile means that are being used to distract the voters from the real object of this campaign.

It is not for any personal desire for office that this fight is being made; it is to secure political freedom and an unshackled state government to the people of California. And it is to prevent this political freedom and this breaking of the shackles that these vile personal attacks are being made. The people against whom this campaign of slander is being directed may be sure that the closing days of the battle will see no cessation on the part of the men who desire to accomplish our defeat. They are in the last ditch and they will use every despicable means to retain their corrupt hold upon the state.

This is my message to the voters at this time: Do not be disturbed and do not be diverted. The purpose of this campaign is to restore to the people the state of California. That purpose will be accomplished no matter how desperate the attempt to prevent it and how despicable the methods of the men who so long have held you in their thrall.

"The next governor of California," the great audience broke into a pandemonium of cheers. It was an ovation that brought from Johnson's lips the most sincere words of appreciation of the welcome accorded him.

Johnson Comes to Close Campaign

Hiram W. Johnson, chosen by the republicans of California to make their fight for free government, will come to San Francisco tonight to close his campaign. He will be accompanied by Secretary of State Charles F. Curry, Johnson's principal opponent, who is fighting shoulder to shoulder with Johnson for a free republican party and a free California.

Curry will preside tonight at a great Johnson mass meeting at Dreamland rink. This meeting will be the first of the series of San Francisco meetings with which Johnson will close his wonderful campaign. With Johnson and Curry on the platform tonight at Dreamland will be several hundred prominent republicans, leading representatives of the many party factions that have been united behind the first republican candidate for governor and the first republican ticket ever chosen by the direct votes of the republicans of California.

The meeting at Dreamland tonight will be the greatest rally of an epoch marking campaign. The doors of the big rink will be thrown open at 7 o'clock. Only the seats on the stage for the speakers and the republican candidates will be reserved. When the doors are opened all of the main floor and gallery seating will be at the disposal of the public while it lasts. The first of first come first served will be adhered to strictly.

The party managers in charge of the arrangements for the meeting have arranged for an overflow meeting in the adjoining park for the accommodation of the late comers who will not be able to gain admittance to Dreamland rink.

ticket, whom he mentioned by name, and with a glowing tribute to both President Taft and Governor Gillet. Curry discussed several of the national issues and compared the records of the republican and democratic parties in matters of legislation and administration, both in the nation and within the state.

BELL FORGETS BANKER BROWN OF CALISTOGA

Hearst and Hering Also Neglect to Mention Candidate's Connection With Case

Calhoun Weeps Not at Wails of Widows Left Penniless by Wrecked Bank

Theodore A. Bell, his man Hering from Indiana and his supporters in chief, Patrick Calhoun and W. R. Hearst, have barked themselves hoarse about Hiram W. Johnson's connection with the defense of J. Dalzell Brown of the wrecked California safe deposit and trust company.

They have endeavored to make the people infer from their carefully prepared questions that Johnson, whose course was commended by Judge Conley, actually shared in property that belonged to the depositors in the defunct banking institution. The facts that Johnson's client was advised to make a clean breast of the sorry affair; that he was sentenced to and served a term in San Quentin, and that Judge Conley, one of the biggest and cleanest democrats in California, has formally declared that Bartlett would not have been convicted had Hering not been for Brown's confession, have been overlooked by Inquisitors Bell, Hearst, Calhoun and Hering.

DISCREET SILENCE These features of the Brown case are not the only details of prosecution for bank wrecking Bell, Calhoun, Hearst and Hering have studiously avoided calling to the attention of the public. They have been discreetly silent about the wrecking of the bank of Calistoga.

They have raised no wails about H. H. Brown of the Bank of Calistoga, escaping punishment under two indictments because his attorney pleaded the statute of limitations. He was not charged with federal crimes and not offenses against the state law. They have not told the public about the property deeded by H. H. Brown to one of his attorneys subsequently compelled to disgorge it to the depositors to whom it belonged. Neither Bell, Calhoun, Hearst nor the Indiana Hering has told the public that Theodore A. Bell, sometime district attorney of bank county, conducted the defense of H. H. Brown of the Bank of Calistoga, who was chased across the continent and brought back from Washington, D. C., to stand trial for bank wrecking.

The wails of the widows and orphans of Napa county have inspired no gurgling yawns from either Bell or his special interest champions. Here is a bank wrecking story that Bell and his Hering consider unworthy of retelling.

BELL DEFENDS BROWN Theodore A. Bell defended H. H. Brown, president of the Bank of Calistoga, charged with looting the bank to the extent of some $75,000. H. H. Brown was indicted by the Napa county grand jury on three counts. He ran away from Calistoga; he was chased across the continent by Pinkerton detectives and brought back from Washington. The failure of the Bell to disclose those in the case of the California safe deposit and trust company. Brown, the president, it was charged, had used the bank funds to engage in multitudinous wild cat investments that met with the usual results.

After Brown was brought back, Bell was engaged as his attorney. Two of the counts were dismissed on demurrer. The demurrer was taken on the ground that the offense was against the national banking law and not the state law. Efforts are still being made to have the United States grand jury act in the case. Through the efforts of Bell, who formerly had been district attorney of Napa county, Brown was acquitted on the third count.

Some of the property which Brown got was deeded over to his attorney. This attorney was not Bell, but was associated with him in the case. Ever since the capture of Brown the stock holders of the bank have been endeavoring to recover this property. The attorney has been made to disgorge some portion of it. The result of liquidation and the stock holders have been paid thus far about 40 cents on the dollar.

In considering this case in connection with the case of J. Dalzell Brown it must be remembered that the Bell ringers charge that Johnson left the graft prosecution to engage in Brown's defense. This is absolutely untrue. Johnson publicly announced his retirement from the graft cases October 23, 1907. As a matter of fact, he had done nothing in the graft cases for some time. This was before there was any
