his compact with the Evening Post. When he answers the question if Calhoun is with him and says in reply that he doesn't know, you can understand the worth of that answer when you see the Post night after night. You understand, as well as I do, where it comes the alliance with the Evening Post. You know of the alliance of long standing between Hearst and Herrin. Johnson referred to the night on which Herrin was shot as one of terror for Herrin and the Examiner, who called in detectives to guard them from the rising wrath of the people. "For a time they were quiet," he said, "but then growing bolder and bolder, the alliance became more and more open, until it was visible to every one—the understanding between the Examiner of Hearst and Herrin of the Southern Pacific. Now this combination is trying to assassinate a character that it has taken 44 years to build. I want you to know that all the power of Hearst, the wealth of Herrin, the wealth of Calhoun and the craftiness of Ruef can not break the fighting spirit of one man in the state of California."

MARITIME NEEDS OF THE
COAST TO BE DISCUSSED
Merchant Marine League Plans for Congress

The maritime needs of the Pacific coast, including a merchant marine and Pacific coast naval defenses, are to be thoroughly discussed during the session of the Pacific coast congress called by Governor James N. Gillett and to be held under the auspices of the Merchant Marine League of California, and the commercial organization of the state November 17, 18 and 19 in San Francisco. The first day of the session will be devoted to showing the debates of the night of the city, and in the afternoon at 2 o'clock the congress will be formally opened, speeches of welcome being made by Governor Gillett and Mayor McCarthy. The evening of November 17 will be given over to a reception in the Palace hotel by the California club and the society women of the city. The merchant marine will be discussed the morning of November 18, and during the afternoon of the same day the subject of having a permanent Pacific coast congress will be taken up and also the matter of adequate naval defenses for the Pacific coast. The official part of the program will conclude with a banquet Friday evening given by the commercial organizations at the Palace hotel, and the subject of the addresses will be Pacific coast expositions. Saturday will be spent in excursions to various parts of the surrounding countryside.

SIR HARRY RAWSON—London, Nov. 3.—Admiral Sir Harry Rawson, who was promoted to the rank of admiral in 1909, died today. He was born in 1842.

George W. Lane Supports Johnson
Democrats Who Uphold Principle

By declaring that the man who really believes in the avowed principles of either the republican or democratic party must vote for Hiram W. Johnson, George W. Lane explains the motive behind the great tide of thinking democrats to Johnson. George W. Lane of San Francisco is one of the most prominent of California's young democrats. He is a brother of Franklin K. Lane, and so highly was he regarded by the democratic state central committee that it offered him the democratic nomination for attorney general and to make his campaign. Here is Lane's own statement of his reasons for supporting Johnson:

By GEORGE W. LANE

My ticket will be well scratched, but I believe in principles above parties and persons, and I am going to vote for Johnson. I am going to vote for Johnson because I believe in the principles of the democratic party. This may seem strange, especially in view of the fact that the platforms of both parties are much the same. But the fact is that there is no way of registering one's stand for the principles involved in this election, whether found in the republican or democratic platform, except by voting for Johnson.

Johnson's vote will be substantially one for principle and will be a fair index of the feeling of the people of California on the main issue here involved.

On the other hand, the vote for Bell can not be anything of the kind. It will be a complex and sad mixture. This is said without the slightest reflection upon Mr. Bell.

There is no getting away from the fact that the man who believes in the avowed principles of either party and wishes to vote for those principles must vote for Johnson, otherwise his vote for principle will be lost.

BAPTISTS REPORT ON CHURCH WORK

Splendid Progress Along Various Lines of Endeavor Is Shown by Committees

[Special Dispatch to The Call]

SANTA CRUZ, Nov. 3.—Baptists from all sections of California are attending the convention at Twin lakes, and the program today was one of exceptional interest. A devotional service led by Rev. George E. Burlingame opened the session.

The report of the educational board showed clearly that the Baptists of northern California are accomplishing along educational lines. The report of the committee on religious literature also was highly satisfactory.

The greater part of the morning was given to addresses. Fred E. Morgan spoke on "Modern Phases of Christian Education." Addresses also were given by E. A. Woods and C. A. Woody, the latter taking for his theme "Approaching Tasks."

The afternoon session opened with a report from the Sunday school board, showing great progress. The report of the committee on women's work was given by J. M. Brough. A part of the evening was occupied with a business session, there being a report from the committees on foreign missions and the Edinburgh conference. Following the committee reports there was an address by A. W. Rider.

Samuel Arena, Michael Angelo di Vittoria and Salvatore di Cola will serve terms in a federal prison for counterfeiting. It took a jury 10 minutes to reach this verdict in the United States district court yesterday morning. The maximum penalty on each count is 30 years, so that each of the counterfeiters could receive a sentence of 90 years, as there are eight counts. Judge de Haven will sentence the men this afternoon.

Assistant United States District Attorney Benjamin McKinley argued the case for the government. The men were captured in a raid on the little shack at 122 Manchester street, where they were at work making the illicit coin. BANKER HEADS CHAMBER—New York, Nov. 3.—A. Barton Hepburn, president of the Chamber national bank and former controller of the currency, was today elected president of the chamber of commerce to fill the vacancy caused by the death of J. Edward Simmons.

Advertising Talks

Speaking of banks and advertising— Banks in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Missouri and certain southern cities are getting deposits from the north, east and west. Why? Because they are asking for them in the right way. They advertise to the people, tell them about their institutions, let them know what they can do for them, tell them what percentage they will pay for deposits, explain the advantage of having a savings account, explain the advantage of dealing with a sound, progressive bank. They are getting new deposits every day, because they give the information the people want. Because they have learned that personal recommendation and the personality of their directors are not far reaching enough. Because they know there is nothing undignified in explaining the functions of a bank to the people who want to know. Because they know it is not undignified in fostering the spirit of thrift and saving in the people. Because they know it is not good policy to leave thousands of people whom they could benefit in ignorance of the many powers of a trust company or savings bank, simply because the people don't come to them and ask. Because they know that the people are waiting for those who know how to speak. Because they know that an institution founded for the benefit of the public has something important to say to the public. Because they know there is nothing undignified, unethical, and unbusinesslike in telling the people of their many unfamiliar powers and ways of helping through the advertising columns of mediums of character. Because they know that where personality gains one customer, there are thousands of people of high intelligence whom they can convince through publicity in mediums of high standing. Because they know that many desirable accounts are lost to banks on account of silence. Because they know that the public is interested in the information they give about their banking institutions, because they have shown that they are disposed to furnish it. Is there any wonder, then, these banks are growing, that they are gaining in influence, that new deposits are coming to them, not only from their home towns, but from other sections? Mr. N. B. Burnside of the firm of Rankin & Burnside, dealers in coal and wood, Schenectady, N. Y., wrote the following letter: "Gentlemen: We have used your ad service in the Evening Star, and feel that we have made a wise investment. We started in business December 1, 1909, and with 25 dealers already in line, and consider that many of our customers came to us only through the daily advertisement in your paper. Your catchy illustrated advertising service has certainly brought us an exceptional summer trade, and we have no fear about the coming winter months. The "daily advertisement in the paper" and "catchy illustrated advertisement" always do bring an exceptional trade to the advertiser, winter or summer, whether that business be coal and wood, pianos, hardware, jewelry, paint, groceries, clothing, furniture, banks, hats, laundry, shoes, tailoring, real estate, insurance, confectionery, dyeing and cleaning, haberdashery, gas, building, electrical, millinery, florist or optical. Of course the goods and services offered must come up to the advertisement, or even a little beyond it. And whatever business you are in, you need have no fear of the coming months if you advertise it daily, advertise it well, advertise it honestly and interestingly in the newspapers that everybody reads. If you would like to see this service a telephone call will bring a call representative to you. Phone Kearny 86.

JEWISH WOMEN OBSERVE
COUNCIL'S ANNIVERSARY

Impromptu Speeches Delivered at Breakfast

The local Council of Jewish Women celebrated its tenth anniversary yesterday with a breakfast in the Colonial room of the St. Francis, with the president, Mrs. Frank Neuman, presiding. More than 100 members of the club were present and many impromptu toasts and speeches were given. Masses of pink caryanthemums and leaves of autumn coloring adorned the eight long tables around which the guests were gathered. They commanded a perfect view of the president's table on the platform at the end of the ballroom, from which the little personal after luncheon talks were delivered. Mrs. Neuman led the toasts with her speech of greeting, and she was followed by Mrs. Myra Friedman, Mrs. Louis Hertz, Mrs. Joseph Weissman, Mrs. Harry Spiro, Miss Jeanne Levy, Miss Natalie Wollenberg, Mrs. V. Wood, a singer and a score or more of others. A musical program also was given under the direction of Simon L. Hellbron.

HYNES TO ADMINISTER
THE ESTATE OF CORBIN

Wealthy Pennsylvanian Owned Spring Valley Water Stock Application for letters of administration on the estate of Thomas G. Corbin, a wealthy Pennsylvanian who died in Philadelphia December 17, 1901, was made yesterday here by Public Administrator Hynes. This was made necessary from the fact that the estate owns 2,000 shares of Spring Valley water stock, worth nearly $100,000. The stock has been in the hands of the administrator Hynes, since the late Corbin died. He desires to sell the shares, and the law requires that letters of administration be granted this state for that purpose. Among the heirs of Corbin are vicomtesse de Damperre, a niece; comtesse de Montmar, a grandniece; and comtesse de Polignac, grandniece, who all reside in France.

Cottolene
COMES FROM THE LAND OF SUNSHINE
The very source of Cottolene inspires confidence in the product. It is pure. It comes from the cottonfields of the Sunny South and from cottonfield to kitchen human hands never touch the oil from which Cottolene is made. Being a vegetable product, Cottolene is pure—and just as digestible as the purest olive oil. You can never be sure of this when using lard, which is simply hog fat—an animal product. Cottolene is immeasurably superior to lard from a health standpoint. It makes pure, digestible, nourishing food, and food which any stomach can digest. The careful, once-posted housewife will use Cottolene in place of lard every time. Made only by THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY
