MOODS OF NAPOLEON DESCRIBED IN MEMOIRS

Emperor's Peculiarities Amusingly Related

Wilhelm Foerster, the Berlin astronomer and privy councillor, has published his memoirs. He often visited Paris, and was there during the historic events of 1852.

The astronomer notes that he saw Napoleon III driving in the Champs Elysees a four-in-hand, which he managed with much elegance, whip in right hand and reins in left. The crowd cried: "Vive le president," and the prince returned a gracious smile. One group of young men shouted: "Vive l'empereur." Then the prince was pleased to incline his head, passed his whip into the left hand, and lifted his hat.

But at the same moment the cry was raised: "Vive la republique." At this Prince Louis Napoleon took the whip in his right hand, swished his horses, and drove in the direction of the Arc de Triomphe in a cloud of dust.

M. Foerster mentions in his memoirs an interview which his friend Henry Saint Claire Deville, the celebrated chemist, had with Napoleon 18 years after the incident of the progress in the Champs Elysees, noted so minutely by the astronomer. It was on the eve of the outbreak of hostilities between France and Germany. Deville went to St. Cloud, where he found the emperor in a brown study, and he complained of his health.

The savant, who was also a courtier, endeavored to reassure the emperor, and added that the victory to follow would compensate for the war. The emperor shook his head sadly. "No, no," he said, "we shall never meet again. Adieu, my dear friend, adieu."

NEW GERMAN BANK NOTES ARE NOT WELL RECEIVED

The new bank notes of 100 marks issued in Germany have not been well received by the public. The criticism of the design in the press has been lively. The scheme, according to the critics, is grotesque, and if it possesses any artistic merit, it is hidden. Another defect has just come to light, and it is said that in damp weather the blue tint comes off. The scorners seen rather pleased with this last discovery, for they argue that the government will now be compelled to retire the issue.

MAN'S MIND HAS BECOME A BLANK

Son of Buffalo Official Asks to Be Put Away as Insane

OAKLAND, May 29.—His mind a blank for several days and with no recollection of how he came to Oakland from Seattle, Jacques Ward, son of Francis Ward, who is commissioner of public works in Buffalo, N. Y., walked into the receiving hospital today and asked to be locked up as insane. His case is a puzzle to the authorities, and he is being kept at the hospital pending investigation.

According to the story he told Ward, Emory and Deputy District Attorney A. A. Rogers, he held a position in the department of streets of Buffalo until four weeks ago. He had a violent quarrel with his father, as the result of which he lost his position and started for Seattle with $90 in his pocket. He remembers reaching Seattle, but knows little of what happened after that. He had eight cents this morning and he had lost his suitcase and the clothes it contained.

Deputy District Attorney Rogers sent a telegram to the mother, Mrs. Christina Ward, at 676 Seventh street, Buffalo, after questioning the young man, informing her of her son's predicament.

Ward said that several years ago he had been in an insane asylum and that he often feared that he would lose his mind.

KIND WORDS PRECIOUS, ALTHOUGH NOT COSTLY

Faith of Emerson Exemplified by Actions

It was an article of simple faith with Emerson that kind deeds, kind words, kind looks, kind thoughts were immortal. Their influence was cumulative, progressive, imperishable. In his own pure life he illustrated the truth of his benign philosophy. He was very kind; even Thoreau could not disturb his perfect poise, and Thomas Carlyle, the "atrabillious" cynic at Craigenputtock, looked upon the serene face of the great American optimist and welcomed "as an angel." They cost so little and yet are of an immeasurable value—these kind words and looks.

R. N. CLARK DEAD—Oakland, May 29.—Richard N. He was a member of the Grand Army of the Republic. He left a widow, Mrs. Ella V. Clark, and a son, William.

From Thin to Plump—Girls

The expressions of happiness and gratitude of several of his young lady patients for whom he prescribed the recently successful flesh forming product, known as three grain hypo-nutric tablets, is related by a physician in one of the medical publications and it comes as a surprise to the ordinary layman to learn the heart throbs of distress which seem to affect so many young people who are abnormally thin. Also to know that the weight can be so readily increased by the use, regularly for several months, of this peculiarly named preparation, now obtainable of the best physicians and apothecary shops in sealed packages with complete instructions for self-administration.
