"Luck of Roaring Camp" Is to Be Feature of Eagles' Big Convention

Voting Contest for "Marshal" of Mining Town Has Been Inaugurated

In order to stimulate further interest in the "Luck of Roaring Camp," which is the official name given to the chief amusement feature of the big national convention of Eagles which meets in San Francisco next month, a voting contest has been started by the local series to determine who shall act as "marshal" in the "camp."

The balloting has commenced and will not end until August 15, the day before the convention opens. Several popular members of the different series have been entered for the honor and a lively campaign is predicted before the polls close.

It has been announced by the committee in charge of the "camp" that in addition to the historical features, which will be of interest alike to easterners and Californians, there will be a number of twentieth century attractions. Side by side will be offered the amusements of the early mining camp and those of a modern novelty park.

STATE LABOR BUREAU REPLES TO JUDGE

Executive Committee of Federation Records Its Attitude on Loewe Injunction

Denial of Its Counsel of Remarks Attributed to Him Is Accepted

Following a long discussion by the executive committee of the California State Federation of Labor of Judge Van Fleet's action making permanent the injunction issued by Judge Morrow in 1905, prohibiting the state federation from boycotting hats manufactured by the Dietrich E. Loewe company of Danbury, Conn., the executive committee yesterday passed the following resolution:

Whereas, Judge Van Fleet, in the circuit court of the United States at San Francisco, on July 25, 1911, in a decision making permanent the injunction, originally issued by Judge Morrow in 1905, prohibiting the state federation from boycotting hats manufactured by the Dietrich E. Loewe company of Danbury, Conn., used the following language:

"If the suggestion of counsel at the oral argument were intended to advance the idea that the individual defendants are protected from the consequences of their act by the fact that they were acting strictly within the rules and regulations of their organization, the obvious answer is that the individual and laws of the country are still paramount to the rules of any private association of men, and it is to those laws that we must look in determining whether the rights of one citizen of California are violated by the acts of another."

Whereas, our counsel, James G. McArthur, has organized the secretary-treasurer of this federation a written recital of his remarks to the effect that the injunction issued by Judge Van Fleet, as follows:

"I made the oral argument on behalf of respondents in the case of the California State Federation of Labor and Judge Van Fleet, who is a well understood me, if he understood that I intended to advance the idea that the individual defendants are protected from the consequences of their act by the fact that they were acting strictly within the rules and regulations of their organization."

"I did not claim that they were in any manner, or to any extent, protected by the rules or regulations of their organization. What I did contend for was that, in all that they were shown to have done, they were acting strictly within the rights, under the laws of California as interpreted by the supreme court of the United States in the Parkinson and Pierce cases."

"I entirely agree with Judge Van Fleet and his opinion, but I am having ever expressed or held any contrary opinion that the constitution of the California State Federation of Labor is still paramount to the rules of any private association of men," and "Resolved, that in the foregoing statement, Mr. Maguire has correctly and unequivocally set forth the attitude of this federation and of the labor movement in relation to the state and in the acts of this federation; further Resolved, that notwithstanding the injunction in the Loewe case, the right and the duty still remain to refrain from purchasing hats which do not bear the label of the United Hatters of North America, which right and duty we earnestly urge on all members and friends to observe in the future as in the past."

TEXAS ARMY FORCES REDUCED TO BRIGADE

Brigadier General Hoyt to Relieve General Carter

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Brigadier General Ralph W. Hoyt will succeed Major General William H. Carter in command of the Texas army.

General Carter will come to Washington to resume his duties as assistant chief of staff, relieving General Arthur Murray, who will take command of the department of the west, with headquarters at San Francisco.

The large reduction in the number of troops in the Texas army has caused the abandonment of the original plan to rotate the various major generals in tours of duty there. At present only a brigade of troops is being maintained in Texas, and while it is not contemplated to reduce considerably the present force, the brigade is scarcely of sufficient importance to justify the assignment of a major general to command.
