Quinnats Do Battle Outside Golden Gate

Rodsters at Eel, Truckee and Yuba Rivers and Other Places Happy

By FRANK O'DONNELL

Anglers on distant trout streams last week had nothing on local light tackle experts who have already had their annual fortnight of recreation in the mountains, for the big salmon outside the heads furnished plenty of sport for as many fishermen who cared to venture out on the briny, and excitement was not altogether lacking at places where striped bass fishing attracted knights of the split bamboo.

Sport with the big fish outside the Golden Gate showed marked improvement over the preceding week. The number of big quinnats actually brought to gaff last Sunday was greater than the total catches and near catches reported for the first week of the run. The fish were all big, too, running up to 40 pounds in weight, while there were very few brought in that weighed less than 25 pounds. Many of the catches were attended with the excitement that is to be expected when a man with a light-weight rod hooks up with 40 pounds of fighting fish, and more than one fisherman connected with something in that line that looks away before it was brought to the side of the boat.

Joe Deben, Will, and Jim Turner, Jack Duckell and Terry Evans manned a launch last Sunday and they accounted for eight of the big ones. The largest of the eight weighed 36 pounds and its capture was the achievement of Joe Deben. The fish weighed 34 pounds and was brought to the side of the boat.

High hook honors fell to the Shellville Rod and Tackle club, the membership being out in a launch. The members were Charles Raymond, Al Lawrence, Joe Garbarino, Joe Borrelli, Joe McVey and George Belbersheimer. They caught 15 fish, and they were among the first to put back into port. Doctor Christensen's party was close second to the Shellville outfit, their catch being 12 fish. The party included Doctor Christensen, Dr. J. C. Striven and Dr. A. P. Madison also took two fish, two of them weighing 34 and 28 pounds.

Fishing in the Eel river is improving in accordance with what regular devotees of that stream are accustomed to. The river has always been a late one, with sport at its best about this season of the year when the water head commencing running to the upper waters. Several fly fishermen are enjoying good sport at the famous mouth pool and the most effective flies according to the latest reports received are the Carson and the English royal coachman, professor, brown hackle with red tip and No. 10 blue tail.

About a week ago Wilder Taylor of Eureka, a guest at the Westmouth resort took 23 of the half pounders that have made the pool famous and also a steelhead weighing 5 1/2 pounds in one day. On another occasion the same fisherman took a 10 pound steelhead in addition to 17 of the smaller ones. The week ago yesterday, Cyril, red horn, who is teaming it with Taylor, took a five pounder and a six pound catch of small ones. Both Taylor and Cyril-borne caught their big fish on Carson flies.

A basket of 50 fish in three hours was the reward of Dr. C. T. Starr of Reno, who fished with flies on the Van Dusen pool, another famous trout hole on the Eel river. This catch was believed to be the record one for the season. William Hamilton and his two sons, who have been on the Eel river for several weeks, are still filling their baskets with steelhead, regularly. Frank Maskey is back in town after a delightful two weeks on the river during which time he creel-dumped hundreds of fish.

Charles W. Garrison wrote in from Boca at the close of last week saying that plenty of fish were being caught with flies on the Truckee. "Fly fishing on the Truckee, in our locality is still good," writes Garrison, "its continuing so this fall unless there is a great change in water conditions. The best flies are the beaver kill, red salmon, red ant and California royal coachman."

John Battin brought his family back from the Truckee a few days ago after a stay of three weeks. Battin fished up to the last minute and came away very well satisfied with his outfit, which netted him more limit baskets than he had ever had in any of his many previous fishing expeditions.

Ralph Friedman is still making things interesting for the trout around Boca, where he is taking enough fish to make a shipment to the city every day. Otto Klefer continues to find Salmon lake good for a limit of trout daily, and Mr. and Mrs. Will Fisher are rusticated at Spalding lake and on
