

COST FIRST IN RESUMPTION OF STEAMSHIP CO.

Navy Records Show Corporation Hagged While Santa Rosa Lay on Rocks

Faria Told to Cut Towlines If Salvage Claims Were Too High

Although Captain J. O. Faria and Third Officer E. C. Thomas were officially on trial at the reopened hearing on the loss of the steamship Santa Rosa on July 7, the Pacific Coast Steamship company appeared as the real defendant before Local Inspectors Bolles and Bulger yesterday.

J. H. Cooper, assistant manager of the company, was on the witness stand, and the copies submitted by the company of the wireless messages exchanged between Cooper and Captain Faria on the day of the wreck were compared with the official copies provided by Captain H. T. Mayo, U. S. N., who controls the navy's wireless station at Point Arguello.

Anything to Save Money Many of the official copies revealed a hagging over the price of saving passengers even greater than that previously brought to light by earlier versions provided by the company.

Asked as to whether he had any seafaring men in consultation with him when he was sending these dispatches to Faria, Cooper said he was advised by representatives of the marine insurance underwriters and surveyors, who were in constant conference with him.

Before and after the reading of the messages disclosing the hagging over the price of help for ship passengers, Cooper denounced the press for its allusions to the hagging.

Third Officer Thomas preceded Cooper on the stand and after his former testimony regarding the sights, reports to the captain and other details, he admitted that he had not looked at all at the night order book the night of the wreck.

The last witness was Chief Engineer J. E. A. Miller, who retracted the written statement made to the inspectors, in which he said he had taken charge of things late in the afternoon when the passengers had to be saved.

The hearing closed after Miller's testimony. E. C. Hewson, brother of Second Officer Hewson, who was drowned; Captain W. A. Westcott of the Masters and Pilots' association; and Captain L. N. Hibberd, superintendent of the Pacific Coast Steamship company, paid close attention throughout the hearing.

QUAINT OLD GERMAN FESTIVAL IS PLANNED Auditorium Is Setting for Replica of Cannstatter Volkfest

Like a corner in a quaint old German village will be the harvest festival, which begins tomorrow afternoon at the Auditorium under the direction of the San Francisco Schwaben Verein.

The affair is better known as the Cannstatter Volkfest among the Germans and is one of the annual celebrations in southern Germany, where it occupies the same position in the life of the people as does the old fashioned country fair in America.

HARSH DRUGS NOW BARBARISM RELIC

Days of Nauseous and Smelly Concoctions Fast Going, Says Expert

More Lives Are Lost Than Saved Through Old-Fashioned Dosage

Continuously increasing interest is being aroused in San Francisco as a result of the "campaign of education" being conducted by Prof. James M. Munyon, the noted Eastern health expert.

"More people have lost their health by taking powerful and nauseous allopathic medicine than have saved their health through it. Strong, irritating, smelly drugs are today only a relic of barbarism in medical practice.

"Take the common ailment of stomach trouble, with symptoms of gas, bloating, palpitation of the heart, distress after eating, constipation, nervousness, headaches, dizziness and so forth. Many people have ruined their stomachs permanently through harsh, gripping medicines trying to cure this complaint, yet my gentle and effective treatment has relieved hundreds of these cases right here in this city.

"It is just the same with my treatments for other ailments—rheumatism, catarrh, kidney and liver trouble, blood diseases, nervous disorders, female complaints or general run-down condition. My simple, common-sense remedies have built a monument of triumph for themselves and are a living proof of the folly—I might almost say crime—of dosing the body with heavy, pungent, nerve-paralyzing medicines of the 'old school.'"

For supervisor vote for William G. Burke, former city attorney.

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND ON BEACH

No Marks of Violence and Police Believe It Is Case of Suicide

Autopsy at Morgue Discloses That Death Was Due to Submersion

Lying on a slab at the city morgue is the body of an elderly woman who was found dead at 12:30 o'clock yesterday morning on the ocean beach near the salt water pumping pier, and, despite the efforts of the morgue attendants and the police, the body remains unidentified.

An autopsy at the city morgue established that death was due to submersion. No marks of violence were found on the corpse.

The woman was about 48 years of age, 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighed about 160 pounds, and had dark brown hair, dark brown eyes, an upper set of false teeth, and was dressed in a gray coat which touched the hips, a green skirt with a flounce bottom, low cut tan shoes and wore a tortoise shell pin in her hair.

One of the effects found on the body may result in some one recognizing the woman. On her breast she wore a gold pin, interlocked with portions of human hair, evidently blonde. The pin is of a peculiar make, with cornucopia gold tips.

THE NEW ANGELUS GRAND PLAYER PIANO

The new Emerson-Angelus Grand Player Piano has arrived. It is a decided improvement over anything heretofore evolved in Grand-Player manufacture.

It is more perfect in detail, in action, in mechanical simplicity and especially in its musical qualities is it superior. It is the most perfect architectural example of Grand-Player construction, the case being in no way distorted, radical departure from conventional lines of grand manufacture having been artistically avoided.

The Emerson-Angelus Grand and the Knabe-Angelus Grand are the LAST WORD IN PLAYER PIANO CONSTRUCTION. Every Angelus feature is there. The "Melodant," which separates the melody from the accompaniment; the "Phrasing Lever," giving absolutely perfect tempo control; the Diaphragm Pneumatics, guaranteeing permanence and durability, and all other of the exclusive points of superiority are embodied in the new Angelus Grands.

The Angelus family now numbers five different types, THE ANGELUS PIANO, EMERSON-ANGELUS, KNABE-ANGELUS, EMERSON-ANGELUS GRAND and the KNABE-ANGELUS GRAND. They are the best, the most artistic player pianos in the world.

They cost no more than many inferior player pianos, and they may be purchased on easy payments. Your old piano taken at full value.
