The Smart Set

HISTORY makes strange selections. There are the mayor and the czar. Their relative importance in contemporary life is perfectly well established. But history is perverse. The mayor will be recorded, and a czar will be left to the mercy of memoirs.

It will be just the same with the governor and Emil-Bruguiere. No present reason for these reflections beyond the passing of a mayor into history. Still, they may be continued without purpose into vagaries of fame.

A man, it seems, may write poetry all his life and win no more renown than Beatrice, in the end, who was only wistfully beautiful and purely negative, less distinguished than a thousand girls Dante might have met. And Mona Lisa—the whole world talking about her centuries after her death, and half of it not remembering whether Raphael painted her or Leonardo da Vinci. The most unfair of all is this reflected fame.

Not always desirable, either. Take the case of the Dyers. Mr. and Mrs. George Dyer of London, a century ago, would have preferred oblivion any day to the place they hold in literary annals. They were commonplace people, who lived commonplace lives, and died commonplace deaths, and their names on an English tombstone ought to be the only record of them. But the mediocrity of the Dyers is perpetuated to posterity through an inadvertence of Charles Lamb. He had written a play, and in letters to Leigh Hunt described it. The letters are in any library, and will tell of a drama "just completed, whose language is as simple as George Dyer and the plot as plain as his wife."

There is something in the thought that the Dyers never knew it, but how can any one be certain of escaping fame when their case is considered? A disconcerting idea, if one has famous friends.

The dance to be given Wednesday evening at the Officers' club at the Presidio will be one of exceptional interest to members of the younger society set from town who usually attend these fortnightly affairs at the post. The officers of the Thirtieth Infantry will be the invited guests of the evening with 23 young officers who have just arrived from West Point and are on their way to join their regiments in the Philippines. The visit of these bachelors will be the incentive for many entertainments at the club and their stay will be the occasion for the Logan for the orient Thursday.

The army and navy set, with a large representation of local society, attended the tea given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Henry L. Van Winkle in compliment to Mrs. William A. Nichols, wife of Colonel Nichols, U. S. A. More than 100 guests were invited to meet the army matron at the Van Winkle home. The house was decorated with American beauty roses and scarlet dahlias in the reception and dining rooms. The house was assisted in receiving her guests by Mrs. Murray, wife of General Arthur Murray, U. S. A., and several other ladies. Mrs. Murray has been one of the most popular guests at the recent teas. Those who are receiving party were:

Mrs. Stanislawsky, Nevada Advocate Of Equal Votes

In compliment to Mrs. Cosmo Morgan of Los Angeles, who is visiting in this city, and Mrs. Chaucey Thomas, wife of Rear Admiral Thomas, U. S. N., the luncheon table was decorated with American beauty roses, and each guest received a quaint souvenir. Mrs. Morgan is the guest of her mother, Mrs. C. B. Jennings, in Washington street, and during her stay here will be feted at a succession of affairs.

Mrs. George Baker of Carson, Nev., has been visiting friends in this city, and during her stay here was entertained extensively. She is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. John R. Gristman, in Oakland.

The grape festival at the home of Mrs. A. E. Kent is the next affair of moment that will attract society from town and from the cities around the bay in the name of charity. The proceeds of the day, October 1, are to be devoted to the fund for the San Anselmo orphanage. The patronesses for the festival are:

- Mrs. William Kent
- Mrs. L. A. Kelly
- Mrs. W. Foster
- Mrs. William Kohl
- Mrs. E. D. Brough
- Mrs. J. D. McKee
- Mrs. E. G. Demott
- Mrs. Edwin Newhall
- Mrs. J. A. McCreary

The sympathy of many friends is being offered to Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Wooster on account of the continued and serious illness of their daughter, Dorothy, who is at the family home at Union and Scott streets. Mr. and Mrs. Wooster recently returned to California after several years' residence in the east. Mrs. Wooster was formerly Miss Adah Richards, and is a sister of Mrs. Alfred B. and Mrs. C. M. Ray, wife of Mayor Ray, U. S. N.

Mrs. Frank Pleyer entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Bellevue a score of guests, and the party afterward attended one of the local theaters.

Women Work for Political Enfranchisement And Men Organize Committee to Assist

With the teas and suffrage meetings scheduled for today by all the equal franchise organizations, almost every precinct in San Francisco will be covered by the suffrage workers before midnight. General interest will center this afternoon in the monster rally planned by the woman suffrage city election committee at Golden Gate Commandery hall, 2137 Sutter street. In addition there will be a number of private and social teas.

At a private meeting in the rooms of the Clubwoman's Franchise League yesterday morning in the blue room of the St. Francis hotel, the reports of the members who distributed literature in the different stores were given. Other committees were appointed whose duty it will be to visit the commission of wholesale houses and railroad offices and, by means of buttons and literature, interest the employees in the woman suffrage amendment, and push the campaign through until election day. This committee, which is working in conjunction with the Clubwoman's Franchise League, will meet every afternoon after 4 o'clock in room 515 St. Francis hotel, and will discuss ways of securing the votes for the fourth amendment on the ballot.

One of the self-assigned duties of the men's league is to district the city and hold meetings in the various precincts until October 10. Max Popper presided at yesterday's meeting. The speakers were Robert Laurin, Rufus Steele, Walter MacArthur, Laurance Johnson, M. C. Hassett and J. C. Bauer.

Campaign for Ballots for Women Involves Much Publicity Work

By ROSE M. FRENCH

Did you ever stop to think what it means to conduct the publicity department of a great campaign like the one now on in California for the political enfranchisement of women?

A few of my women readers may have some faint idea of it from their knowledge of publicity work in other lines as in newspaper, business or professional advertising, and a few men may think they know because they have helped carry on political campaigns. But this woman suffrage campaign is different from any other campaign ever carried on.

It was not enough to "publish abroad the tidings" that there was to be a special election October 10, nor that a certain proposed change in the constitution of our state giving women the right to vote was the object and purpose of our strenuous campaign.

But the woman's campaign must mean more than this. It must mean not only for the education, enlightenment and interest of voters, but must also mean to take into account the fact that many voters do not even know what equal suffrage means; that to many voters the idea is so wholly new it must be assimilated gradually; that many more are just naturally opposed to any radical change affecting the body politic.

Its propaganda must therefore be not only explanatory, educative, argumentative and convincing, but also incontrovertible and irresistible. All this we have tried to be and do, with what results we shall not know until the vote is counted the night of October 10.

Woman's Selfish Jealousy Bodes Ill--By Ruth Cameron

YES, I got him to take it down. He made quite a fuss about it, but he did it finally. You can just better believe that I'm not going to have any other woman's picture in my husband's room.

The speaker, who is a pretty little newlywed, preened herself triumphantly.

She had had her way. She was happy. I wonder how long she will be before the tendency she showed in that little incident will bring thunder clouds scudding into the cloudless sky of her bridal existence.

The picture she "got him to take down" was a little photograph of a boyhood sweetheart. Six years before he even met the woman who is now his wife that sweetheart was married. But, in memory of his happy childhood, he has always kept that little picture of his first love. It surely means no more, if as much, to him as the "D" he won at college and still wears so proudly on his sweater, or the baseball bat which he still cherishes because it was with it that he helped to win that great game of 16 years ago.

Poor, foolish, little Mrs. Newlywed.

She is one of the unfortunate women—unfortunate both for themselves and their husbands—whose ideal of marriage is that a wife should be not only the most beloved being on earth to her husband, but the only person whom he cares anything about.

She is jealous of his dog, his mother, his men friends, his club, his business, his golf, his childhood, and even his possible widowhood.

She is, above all, most unwilling that he should ever admire any quality, no matter how fine, in any other woman than herself.

Poor, short sighted creature, not to realize that narrowed interests make narrowed men, and that while she is trying to make what she considers an ideal husband she is also trying to spoil a worthwhile man.

She may find unhappiness in failure.

She is just as apt to find it in success.

I know a woman whose husband is a great enthusiast on lawn tennis. One of his wife's friends is also very fond of this sport. When she comes to the house, or whenever they meet her elsewhere, the husband immediately devotes himself to her and talks of tennis. Sometimes he takes her to tournaments, and often they spend whole afternoons playing.

His wife is not strong enough for her husband's sake, she has learned to talk intelligently about it. People sometimes wonder if she is not jealous of the woman who can meet him on this ground. Once some one was foolish enough to carry this suspicion to her.

She just laughed.

"My husband and I," she said, "have a hundred interests in common—our babies, our books, our music, our home, and so on. Am I to be afraid to let him share just one interest with another woman? I know my husband loves and admires me more than any other woman on earth. Am I to be jealous because he enjoys series of tennis with another woman's tennis playing? I think that would be simply childish."

If there were more women with this attitude toward married life I feel sure there would be that many more happy marriages to confute the cynic.

Don't you?
