The Smart Set

DOGS in Tonopah hold a dignified position in the community. Some one gave a dog to Phelix Gray, janitor of the most important bank and office building in Tonopah. Phelix Gray had to take it. One is frequently helpless when gifts are bestowed. Nothing to do but take them. But Phelix Gray hadn't wanted a dog. However, he did his best, and it was only when the dog persistently followed him from home in the morning and interfered with the pursuit of his profession by hanging dispiritedly about the bank and office building that Phelix Gray disowned him. The dog protested by continuing to haunt the building. Phelix Gray had to use force. Friends interfered. There was quite a general excitement over the circumstance. The dog was attended by a physician with a sense of humor and a diploma from the University of Pennsylvania, and it was presented to Phelix Gray that some explanation of the affair was due from him.

It really has nothing to do with society in San Francisco, but in Tonopah society was keenly interested, and then, if it is essential, there is a slight connection through the attending physician, who once danced with Greenway belles.

The Tonopah Bonanza printed Phelix Gray's statement as follows: "It is with regret that I am placed in a position where it is necessary for me to make a statement regarding the sad occurrence of yesterday afternoon, when I was compelled to put a dog out of the State Bank and Trust company's building. The dog was given to me by Mr. Harris. I had made every effort to keep it at my home, without success. The dog refused to stay there, and I made up my mind that I did not want it. When it came into the building yesterday I put it out. I had no intention of doing any harm to the dog. However, I am informed that the dog's leg was broken, for which I am most deeply sorry, as I had not the least intention of doing the animal any personal harm.

"My many friends in Tonopah know full well that I am a great lover of all the animal tribe and that it would be against my nature to intentionally harm any one of that tribe.

"I do not make this statement with the expectation of being exonerated, but for the purpose of placing myself right with my many friends."

(Signed) "PHELIX GRAY."

One of the most delightful outings in their history was enjoyed yesterday by the Spinners and a few guests. They were hidden to assemble at the ferry shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morning and the program of the day arranged for their annual outing was a complete surprise. It was conducted by the enthusiastic group that the trip across the bay was in order, but a clever committee had ordained otherwise, and instead a trip through the city on the observation cars was arranged. The Spinners and their guests were taken through the city on a sight seeing expedition and after visiting the various points of interest like the Cliff House for luncheon, the Spinners is an organization of society women that achieves real results in the way of culture and entertainments. Each year the members indulge in an annual playday, and yesterday was one of the most memorable in the annals of the club. The president of the organization is Miss Eleanor Dayvenant and the outgoing president was arranged by a committee of which Mrs. Henry St. Goar was chairman. The membership of the club is limited to 60 society women who are devoted to some artistic pursuit.

Miss Lucy Augusta Smith and Stanley Marshall will be married this afternoon at St. John's Episcopal church at Ross. After the ceremony at 4 o'clock there will be an informal reception at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Mary Cottrell Lotto, at Ross. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Wall of this city.

Let Louise's skilled operators do your hair and dress your hair or make up your hair goods in the "Wistaria Bower"—fourth floor Sachs building, 140 Geary street. There's no place like it for luxury and satisfying treatment and surroundings. Only women patrons received. Tea served free daily to patrons. Come and see the most artistic and most up to date in-stitching that the next San Francisco can boast. Facial massage, scalp treatment, double chin reduced.

Systematic Charity Is Good Plan--By Ruth Cameron

"WELL, I would like to know what became of that quarter I just gave away," I heard a man say the other day. "The poor devil I gave it to swore that he hadn't had anything to eat for two days. Of course he may have wanted it for a drink, or he may have more money than I have, but what can you do when a man says he's starving? I'd rather help 10 men who didn't deserve it, than refuse one who was really hungry."

I think the quandary in which this man found himself is a common one. I don't believe there is any one who goes about much but has often been asked for money to buy food with, and has wondered, as he gave it, if it really would be used for that purpose.

Wherefore I want to tell you of the man-who-thinks' solution of this quandary. From the Salvation Army in the city in which he lives, he procured a number of tickets, some good for a full meal and some for a night's lodging at the army headquarters. When any one asks him for money for food or lodging he gives him one of these tickets. If the suppliant is really hungry he presents the ticket and receives the meal or the lodging. At the end of each month the man-who-thinks settles with the Salvation Army for all the tickets marked with his special number which have been presented.

In this way he is sure of never turning away any one who really wants food, and at the same time of not giving money to professional beggars. Doesn't the man-who-thinks' way appeal to you as a rather clever solution of the difficulty?

"My Dear Miss Cameron: Will you please, some time, write one of your little articles on the subject of a man taking a woman's arm when on the street, coming home from the theater and so on? When the lady is old or there is a crowd, or it is raining or the couple are engaged it may be all right (though even then it seems to me she should take his arm), but in pleasant weather, when the streets are not crowded, nothing arouses my resentment like having a man take hold of my arm and 'walk me ahead' faster perhaps than I care to go. As a general thing, after a man has done it once, I refuse further invitations to go out with him, yet, I think it is done unconsciously, without meaning to give offense, and I know no way to stop it. "Seems to me a woman ought literally to 'set the pace'—be free to step one way or the other, as she like, and not be 'poked'.

"Please, in your own inimitable way, write it up some time, and much oblige, "One Who Usually Agrees With Miss Cameron."

If "my own inimitable way" were half so inimitable as my correspondent's, it is I feel quite justified in merely passing along the hint with the indorsement—"Them's my sentiments, too."

By the way, I wonder that she omitted to mention a similar masculine trick—that of "shoving" one up the curbstone by the elbow. When one is quite ably bodied it is certainly infuriating to be thus "hoisted" up a perfectly ordinary step.

As my correspondent says, I believe that this is done "unconsciously, and without meaning to give offense," but I trust that every man who reads this will stop, look and reflect, and if he is an offender in this respect offend no more.

operator for the fire houses of the city and she personally visited 77 out of the 85 fire houses in behalf of suffrage before the election.

She also worked at the polls at First and Harrison streets and succeeded in carrying that precinct by a vote of 102 to 71.

Mary Isabella Kelly registered upstairs, giving her occupation as nurse and her party as union labor. She is a granddaughter of Zachary Taylor, and intended to vote for herself during the day of rehabilitation after the fire by her fight to make the relief committee cancel the rent of the shacks occupied by refugees.

The first woman to register downstairs was Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Greenleaf, who proudly gave her age as 78, announced that she is a democrat and intended to vote for Champ Clark for president. With her daughter, Sue Greenleaf, who declared herself to be a writer by occupation, and who is also a democrat.

SOME OTHER REGISTRATIONS

Dora Rosner, a housewife of 1173 Green street, registered and was also accompanied by her daughter, Georgia Adolph Rosner, who said she was a student.

Mrs. Johanna Pinther of the Glen park district, registered as a teacher and a republican.

Mrs. Hazel Connell, a leading member of the Clubwomen's Franchise league, registered, declining to say to what party she would pin her faith.

Others who registered were: Dorothy Johns, lecturer and socialist; Sadie Loufer, housewife and republican; Louisa Pihals, housewife and union labor; Elizabeth Kelly, housewife; Margaret Jennie Pearl Lewis, teacher; Adelaide Oswald, housewife; Anna May Smullen, teacher; Anna Marie Bornmueller, housewife; Flora Child, housewife and socialist; Bertha Omascher, housewife.

This registration is merely a matter of form, however, as it will be canceled January 1 and no opportunity will arise before that date for women to vote.

When the commission met yesterday morning, Commissioner H. H. Ordway moved that a resolution by President Thomas V. Cator, providing for the immediate registration of women, which had been rejected the previous day, be reconsidered and adopted. Commissioner Ordway, in his absence, motioned. Commissioner N. C. Wienholz and President Cator voted with Ordway and Uhl, thus reversing the action of the day preceding.

Later in the day Commissioner John P. Hare made his appearance and was surprised to learn that the commission had acted on the matter in his absence. "I object to such snap judgement being taken," said Hare.

"No snap judgement was taken," replied Cator. Commissioner Ordway came in the morning and said he had only a few minutes to remain. He made the motion and Commissioner Uhl seconded it. As president of the board I had to put the motion. There were four members present.

"Anyway, I think Ordway was spurred on," insisted Hare.

"Commissioner Hare thinks I was responsible for the motion," remarked Registrar Harrington.

"If you wish will record your vote against today's action," said Cator.

"There'd be small consolation in that," observed Hare.

The canvass for the day progressed as far as the Thirty-seventh assembly district. It is expected that the work will be completed tomorrow afternoon. The suffrage amendment gained seven votes yesterday.

Inquiry as to Age in Most Instances Has No Terrors for the Citizenesses, Though Some Will Lack Necessary Courage

By MARY ASHE MILLER

It becomes necessary to vote on anything between November 17 and January 1 in this city, there are quite a few women who can step into the little curtained booths and stamp a cross some place on a ballot—and have it mean something, too.

Yesterday a decision was rendered making it quite legal for women to register as voters without waiting for the secretary of state to act all on the passage of the equal suffrage amendment.

So down they went, a score or more of them, to the registrar's office in the city hall to swear to some vital details and become a part of the real political machinery of the state of California.

It sounded simple enough. There were printed forms as to what should be told, but difficulties arose, although none of a very complicated nature.

NOW, AS TO OCCUPATIONS

Occupations, for instance, caused some misunderstanding. One pretty little woman, who looked too young to be married, the registry clerk thought, gave her occupation as "none." When she was asked to sign her name, she signed her husband's name with the prefix "Mrs." That would never do, of course, and there had to be some scratching and obliterating, and she did her name all over again.

Then she asked if she should have put in her real middle initial. The man who was helping her to become a voter looked bewildered, and then she explained that she always signed her christian name, and for the middle name her maiden name. She had a middle initial though, "A," which she hardly ever used.

The poor man said it was a legal question, but he decided finally to let it go as it was.

A HOUSEWIFE, OF COURSE

"It will never do, though," he said "for her to give her occupation as 'None.' She is a housewife, of course. That is, you are, aren't you?" he inquired.

"Certainly I am, and do it all myself," she replied. "But why didn't you ask me if I was married?" he should think that was quite important.

"Well, I believe it is," admitted the deputy registrar, "but I never thought of it before. You see, it is never made any difference with men."

Be it recorded right now to the credit of the women that not one of them flinched, turned pale or, apparently, hesitated about it. Those who had any hesitation about it stayed at home, I suppose, but those who appeared were most casual about it.

One woman came in—I'm not going to tell her name, so don't let any one get nervous—and she said in reply to the rather mild inquiry of the man registering her, "I am 42." And the best of it was that even to the women standing by she didn't look it by five years at least. The clerks said that there was often more hesitation apparent among men registering as to their ages than was shown by the women yesterday.

One woman came in early in the day and asked if she could give her age
