

FAMOUS OPERA TO BE GIVEN AT THE METROPOLITAN THEATRE

Interesting Bills Provided for Local Theaters Next Week; Gossip of the Players

By WALTER ANTHONY The Chicago Grand Opera company, which will open its season at the Auditorium in that city November 22, has chosen Saint-Saens' biblical opera, "Samson and Delilah," for the initial offering.

In New York city last Saturday evening the Metropolitan Grand Opera company opened its season with Puccini's Japanese opera, "Madame Butterfly," and Tuesday night, November 14, with "The Girl of the Golden Hour."

At all three operas Signor Guerrieri will preside over 10 selected players. The favorite operas—"Rigoletto," with Lidia Leyva; "Carmen," with Mme. Bossett; "Cavalleria" and "Pagliacci," with Antoina, and "Trovatore" with Mme. Elvira Casazza as Azucena—will be included in the Cort theater repertoire.

Clara Palmer, one of the principal members of Montgomery and Stone's company which is coming in "The Old Town," to the Columbia theater next week, is more than a musical comedy player.

Little Ida St. Leon is coming to the Savoy in "Polly of the Circus." Ida St. Leon was born while her parents were with a circus in China in 1892.

"Polly of the Circus" will be produced for the first time in this city at popular prices at the Savoy theater for the week commencing next Sunday afternoon.

Lucile Culver, who plays the athletic girl in "Father and the Boys" at the Alcazar, is another California girl who has advanced in her profession.

Pat Rooney, the second stage celebrity of the name and son of the famous Pat Rooney whom old players will remember as a dancer, will appear with Marion Bent at the Orpheum in "The Busy Bellboy," which is said to afford both artists splendid opportunity for the display of their athletic ability.

Mazie King and her company will present "The Legend of Spring." It is a poetic bit that tells of the magic spring wherein the prince beholds his love.

The Empress program next week will contain nothing but a play, "The Strongest Link," produced by Harry F. Sullivan and company.

Since his engagement at the Alcazar began Burr McIntosh has been undergoing a process of rejuvenation through the characters assigned him.
