Lucy S. Moore and Loring Cowgill Lennox, which took place in Denver, there were many unusual details. Few brides, for instance, can show a wedding ring with more family history and sentiment than this one has. It represents four generations, being made from the wedding rings of her grandmother, her great grandmother, her aunt and great aunt, all amalgamated with gold from the famous Strong mine at Victor, of which the groom is manager and his father owner. The "something old and something borrowed" which every bride should wear was in this case a very beautiful little brooch fashioned of two lovers' knots and set with pearls and diamonds which had been worn by 51 brides before her. The bride wore a white chamoisee and antique rose point and a magnificent pendant of diamonds and sapphires. Her bridesmaids wore apricot satin veiled in blue chiffon.

Miss Leonore Wuest, who has been making her home with her brother, Lieutenant J. W. Wuest, at the Presidio, will leave for the city of Cincinnati on a visit to her parents. Her friends are pleased that she has decided to return, however, and will be here for a brief stay before leaving with her brother Alaska in June. Miss Wuest has been entertaining Miss Madeline Carlin as her house guest at the post and there have been several informal parties for the two popular girls. Miss Wuest is a sister of Ensign Wuest, who is attached to the cruiser Maryland now on duty at Honolulu. In the younger set at the Presidio are Miss T. J. Crowley in Miss Harrison, who have also been in evidence at all the recent affairs at the post. These two attractive girls entertain frequently and are favored guests at the bridge parties and the hops at the garrison.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Bennett-White entertained at one of the enjoyable supper parties of the week followed by a supper at the St. Francis. Among those in the group were the Misses Martha and Amy Kellee, two charming guests from Portland; Honorable William Essen-Reid of Macy court, London, and R. Samuel Manard. Mr. and Mrs. Bennett-White will remain at the St. Regis for the winter months.

One of the jolly reunions of the week was held Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Crowley in Willard street. The occasion was a birthday dinner given to celebrate the natal day of the host. The table was decorated with American beauty roses and wreaths of greenery. A popular string quartet played and afterward the hours were passed at the card tables. The guests who enjoyed the party were Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Burrill Murphy, Miss Josephine Crowley, N. Dow.

Among the pretty weddings of the week was that of Miss Alice W. Rodd and Robert L. Thompson, which occurred at the former home of the bride in Fulton street on Wednesday evening. Rev. The bride made a charming picture in her white satin robe embellished with rich lace. Her wedding veil was confined by a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids. Her maid of honor, Mrs. Frank Talcott, was in point of dress elaborated with lace, and she carried a shower of pink bridesmaid roses. Frank Talcott was the best groom as best man. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Annie Nuttman, who wore a robe of white crepe de meteor and carried a shower bouquet of pink love roses. Herbert Spamer, a brother of the groom, was the best man. After the marriage the bridal party repaired to the Knights of Pythias hall, where a reception was held. The hall was elaborately decorated to honor the occasion. In the reception rooms carnations and roses were effectively shown against a background of evergreens, while in the outer rooms Christmas trees and redwood were used in profusion. More than 200 guests came to offer their good wishes to the young couple and stayed to take their part in the evening's festivities. An elaborate banquet was followed by dancing and other amusements until the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Spamer to their honeymoon. Anderson, in Clayton street. Twenty guests, including the relatives of the two young people, witnessed the impressive marriage. The bride was gowned in a creation of the crepe de meteor embellished with hand embroidery.

similar trimming was in her hair, and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and orange blossoms. She was attended by a bridesmaid, Miss Ada Wade, who wore a robe of champagne colored satin embellished with embroidery, and carried a shower bouquet of violets. A. A. Anderson, a brother of the bride, supported the groom as best man. The attractive Anderson home was converted into a bridal bower with clusters of pink and white wisterias combined with carnations and violets. In the dining hall where the wedding supper was served the decorations consisted of violets intermingled with orange blossoms. After an extended honeymoon, which will be a tour of the southern part of the state, Mr. and Mrs. McKay will return to reside permanently in this city.
