

IN WOMAN'S WORLD

The Smart Set

EVERY one knows that the women of 1912 wear their clothes like B. C. mummies. Bound up in them. Mummies are wrapped, but the effect is the same. Straight, uncompromising lines. No one tries to persuade them into bending. It would end in frightful fractures if any one did, and for a tense moment at the California club vaudeville yesterday afternoon it seemed that this would surely happen on the stage. A pink satin gown, wonderfully molded, broken to pieces. But, regarding the flowers on the floor, the wearer decided to leave them there, and smiled her thanks to the boxes when they were thrown. It was too bad, but what could she do? She had sung very sweetly, and the flowers were tossed over the footlights in friendly enthusiasm, and she wanted to be gracious, but she couldn't pick them up to save her soul.

Later, a diaphanous chiffon with careless lace falling over it invited more flowers. It looked so gracefully unbound. But misleading, after all. The flowers fell at the singer's feet, and stayed there until a slim, girlish figure in white pique came from the wings to rescue them; too young for the fashions of 1912. The singer in chiffon dared not hazard with her costume.

The charming grace of the girl who played the Liszt Rhapsody was a swift revelation. As she left the stage a bunch of violets fell from one of the boxes, and she stooped like a reed in the wind and gathered it up. There was the do or die lady, too, who secured the roses she attempted, in a black satin sheath. But, save these, the afternoon proved that tossing flowers over footlights is one of the delightful customs of a dead past. No use trying to revive it for several generations. Then, if one is a person of optimistic ideas, all the facing and reducing of 1912 and later seasons will have served their ends, and the race will be born slender and reduced, though, in the thankless way of posterity, it won't give a thought to the

CLUB WOMEN'S VAUDEVILLE SUCCESS

Cort Matinee Wins Approval of Big House

Vaudeville of a superlative quality was given by the members of the California club at their matinee yesterday at the Cort theater, and the full house attested to the financial success of the event. There were all sorts of different things given for the diversion of "those present," ranging from living pictures, musical numbers and Grecian dances to the "Spinners' Utopia," in which a score or more of the leading members of the club made merry in wonderful costume.

Mrs. R. E. Revalik and her singing of "You Great Big Beautiful Doll," in which she was accompanied by nine most fascinating living dolls, daughters of club members, was one of the most attractive features of the afternoon and won the heartiest of applause.

"Club Daughters" appeared to the best advantage also in the living pictures, most of which were reproductions of famous paintings. Two pictures were shown from "The Arabian Nights" after illustrations by Edmond Dulac, and these were the feature of the afternoon, particularly Miss Dorothy Crawford as the princess of Duryabar and Miss Madeline Cummings as the daughter of the king of Bengal. These were beautifully costumed, staged and posed, and the pretty girls never appeared to better advantage.

Miss Carolyn Dodd sang "In the Garden of My Heart" by Miss Caro Ramos, which was greatly enjoyed, and Miss Gladys Kaighin's beautiful voice was heard in an aria from "Aida."

Miss Alberta Liverich played the piano, Mrs. Hazel Day Connell gave a Grecian dance, and led by Miss Gwendolyn Powers, a group of University of California girls presented some Hawaiian airs with ukulele accompaniment. There was also a vocal duet by Carolyn R. Elliott and Rudolph C. Post.

The affair was under the management of Mrs. Arthur Cornwall.

Shun the Cheap Expensive Goods on Sale--By Ruth Cameron

THE best thing of an inexpensive kind is almost always better than a cheap thing of a more expensive class.

Things which appear exactly the same on the surface are often entirely different when you look at them more closely. For instance, knowing how to spend money and knowing how to buy, might appear to be the same thing, but they are entirely different. Every woman knows how to do the first; one in a hundred, the second. And yet, knowing how to buy wisely is one of the most important divisions in woman's great science of home making. I heard an investigator of financial conditions assert that women spend over three-fourths of all the money that is earned in the middle and lower classes. Think how important it is that they should know how to spend it wisely. Volumes might certainly be written on this subject, but I don't know enough to write them. I just want to bring home to you one principle of wise buying with which I have recently been impressed and which I stated above, namely--the best thing of an inexpensive kind is almost always better than a cheap thing of a more expensive class.

Nine years ago two young girls who were chums were married at about the same time. These young couples had nearly the same amount of money to spend, and many of their household furnishings were similar. But in the matter of beds they disagreed. One girl was determined to have brass beds, and since she did not have enough money to buy a first class article, bought some attractive but cheap brass beds. The other girl said, "I would rather have a thoroughly good white bed than a cheap brass one," and forthwith, put about the same sum which her friend had invested, into the most attractive and well made white beds that could be bought. Today one girl has dainty white beds which look as fresh and attractive as when she bought them, while the other has a pair of tarnished and tawdry brass beds which spoil the appearance of her whole chamber.

It is better to buy good oak than cheap mahogany; a first class cotton dress than a cheap silk one.

Good muslin or scrim curtains are infinitely preferable to hangings of cheap lace.

First class cretonne is better than fourth class tapestry.

It is infinitely more satisfactory to pay 50 cents for the best of silk lisle stockings than for the cheap grade of silk hose.

Good lamb will give you more nutrition and satisfaction for your money than cheap steak.

Indeed, in every department of buying, the housewife will find this a safe principle, and will do well not to let herself be beguiled from it by the longing to have something of a better class and more showy than she can really afford. At first she may think she is getting a bargain in the cheap expensive thing. In the end she will find out her mistake.

Milady's Toilet Table

A good complexion is within reach of every woman. All it requires is proper care. Throw away powders and cosmetics. Live in the open air as much as possible and use a simple solution made by dissolving an original package of anayone in a half-pint witch hazel. Gently massage face, neck and arms with this solution and you will be delighted with results. Its effect is instantaneous, and in a short time the skin is smooth, soft, satinylike and bright.

To keep the hair bright, fluffy and youthful looking use a dry shampoo two or three times a month. Washing the hair makes it faded and brittle. Put a cupful of corn meal in a fruit jar and mix with it an original package of anayone. Sprinkle a little on the head and brush out. It brushes out easily, takes all dust, dandruff and excess oil with it and leaves the hair clean, bright, wavy and rich in color.

To stop headache, or ache in back of joints, reduce swelling, allay inflammation, relieve pain in any part of the body, apply Mother's Salve, rubbing in well. It is useful for neuralgia, rheumatism, lumbago, etc. The world never saw its equal as a pain killer.

Superfluous hair on face or forearms can be quickly and easily removed at home by applying delicate paste of anayone to cover the hairy surface by misting powdered delonax and water; apply, and wipe off after two minutes; then wash the skin, and the hairs will be gone. This recipe is safe, speedy and sure.
