

CROSBY'S NAME CAPITALIZED AT STATE CAPITOL

He Must Be Senator if Contra Costa Expects Anything, Says Johnson's Secretary

All Thought of Ralph Jones Is Waited Away on Evening Breezes

What's the program on senator for Contra Costa and Marin counties? asked the republican from Contra Costa county.

If Contra Costa county expects anything at all, state highway included, she must send summer Crosby to the senate, said Al McCabe, private secretary to Governor Hiram W. Johnson.

What about Ralph Jones? It's Crosby if you want to play with us, said McCabe. I stand for whatever Mr. McCabe has said, said the governor.

Such in substance were the words exchanged at Sacramento a few days ago when a representative republican of Contra Costa county was summoned to the capitol to discuss the question of electing successors to E. B. Martinelli of San Rafael as senator for Contra Costa and Marin counties.

There has been a standing agreement since Marin and Contra Costa counties have been thrown into the same senatorial district that the honor should go to each county in turn. Four years ago Charles M. Belshaw of Martinez went out and Martinelli of San Rafael went in. It's Contra Costa county's turn again, and Governor Johnson has passed the word that Crosby, who recently transferred his political residence fromameda to Pittsburg, Contra Costa county, is the man for the place.

Two years ago Crosby was elected an assemblyman from Alameda county and M. R. Jones from Contra Costa county. The two were room mates during the regular and the special sessions of the legislature. Jones was one of the most industrious members of the lower house and, by reason of his close application, was able to do much of the thinking for Crosby, who was absent from the legislative halls the greater part of the time after he had secured the passage of a few bills in behalf of the national guard.

JONES THOUGHT CANDIDATE

Jones displayed such aptitude as a lawmaker that he was looked upon by many as Martinelli's certain successor. While Jones has never made any official announcement of his candidacy, he has been in a receptive mood and the choice of many of the republican leaders in the district.

Several months ago Crosby moved to Pittsburg to look after the lumber and other interests of his father-in-law. In the scheme of state organization evolved at the capitol Crosby was taken into camp as the representative of Contra Costa county rather than his friend Jones, whose tendencies were too regular for the administration.

CROSBY PROVES AGILITY

When Johnson and his followers did the flip-flop from La Follette to Roosevelt, Crosby pitched himself to be as agile an athlete, politically, as the rest. He was selected as one of the Roosevelt candidates for delegate to the national convention, and showed his appreciation by contributing $1,000 to the campaign fund.

Crosby was formerly for Jones for senator. But that was months ago. Crosby, like his chief in law, has exercised his prerogative of changing his mind. He is for Crosby for senator now, and, in consequence of the governor's support, the undersiding of a few months ago that the insurgent republicans of the district would offer no objection to Jones there was an effort a few days ago on the part of the leaders to get the program straight. They got it.

One of their number answered the summons to journey to Sacramento. While he was waiting for an audience with the governor, Al McCabe, the governor's private secretary, informed him that Contra Costa need expect nothing from the state administration unless Crosby were sent to the senate. This was understood to mean that the state highway commission would give Contra Costa county the overlook in building the state highway and that nothing else favorable to the county would be permitted if the district did not elect Crosby.

About this time the governor made his appearance and was advised of what McCabe had said. I stand for whatever Mr. McCabe has said, was the comment of Johnson.

Heritage in Austria Saved by a Divorce

Louise Frances Goodall, known in Austria as the Countess Ludofka, who has obtained a divorce from New York playwright to save vast heritage.

Louise Goodall, Reputed a Countess, Gets Decree From Playwright

[Special Dispatch to The Call]

MARTINEZ, June 10.—Louise Frances Goodall, said to be known in Austria as the Countess Ludofka, descendant of a former reigning house in that country, and the wife of Richard Goodall, the New York playwright and stage manager, was granted a divorce here today on the ground of failure to provide.

J. E. Rodgers represented Mrs. Goodall as an attorney, and her testimony was supported by her brother, Julius Segarr.

The complaint was filed secretly last February, on account of the attitude of the divorcee's father, a wealthy incompetent in Austria, against divorces.

Mrs. Goodall retains the custody of two children, boys, 5 and 5 years old, respectively.

The life of Mrs. Goodall, according to her story, is a romantic one. At an early age she was taken around the world to broaden her mind. After arriving in New York, when 15 years old, she met and was married to Richard Goodall against the wishes of her wealthy parents in Austria.

After this Mrs. Goodall turned to writing, her short stories appearing in various magazines in the United States. She also displayed some talent as an artist. On her arrival in San Francisco after leaving Austria many social affairs were given in her honor.

Becoming suspicious of her husband, she followed him to New York some time ago. She returned to San Francisco a few weeks later, stopping at the St. Francis hotel, where she was feted by social leaders of the bay cities.

Mrs. Goodall resided in Berkeley and Oakland for some time, but during the last eight months has made her home on a 15-acre ranch near Oakley, Contra Costa county.

While living in Berkeley, it is said, she occupied an unpretentious cottage in Hearst avenue. In telling her story she displayed familiarity with numerous titled nobles of the old country and boasted a love for the Bohemian life.

Mrs. Goodall said that she would inherit $3,000,000 more as her share of an estate in Austria when she was 25 years of age. As a reason for her separation from her husband, she said she desired to become reconciled to her family so she would have no trouble in getting this fortune.

Since she instituted divorce proceedings she has retired from social activities, devoting her time completely to her ranch near here. When she appeared in court today she was heavily veiled in black.

Los Gatos Faces Withdrawal of Provision Will Allow American Ships in Coastwise Trade Free Entry

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The senate committee on interoceanic canals has agreed to report the canal toll bill with a provision allowing American ships in the coastwise trade to use the canal free and allowing railroad ships to go through the canal when destined for a foreign port, with the privilege of touch at American ports.

DARROW DEFENSE HAS BAD SESSION

Testimony of Cooney for Prosecution Implicates Accused Attorney in Jury Fixing

LOS ANGELES, June 10.—Warning witnesses to keep out of the state and notifying prospective jurors in time to evade service when they were thought to be unfavorable to the defense, were part of his duties as an "investigator" for the McNamara defense, according to P. J. Cooney, who took the stand today in the trial of Clarence S. Darrow for alleged jury bribing.

During his direct examination by District Attorney Fredericks, which was concluded just before adjournment was taken for the day, Cooney said that he had reported to Darrow that Bert Franklin "talked too much" that Franklin had said to him: "They will never convict J. E. while Bain is on the jury."

Darrow is also under indictment for bribing Robert F. Bain, the first juror sworn in the trial of James B. McNamara. Cooney followed Franklin on the stand soon after the trial was resumed today.

SEVERE BLOW TO DEFENSE The defense made a determined but futile effort to prevent Cooney from testifying to facts other than those directly bearing on the Lockwood case, on which Darrow is now being tried. For two hours Attorneys Rogers and Appel of the defense argued against the admissibility of any evidence tending to show that their client had been guilty of offenses other than bribery of jurors.

The defense argued that Hutton was a severe blow to the defense, but not altogether unexpected, owing to a similar ruling earlier in the trial. Today's ruling admits any evidence tending to show alleged corruption of witnesses called in the McNamara case.

Chief Counsel Earl Rogers argued eloquently against the course of the prosecution, contending that evidence not connected with the alleged corruption of jurors was intended only "to beamish and degrade the defendant before the jury and to make use of such evidence in argument to the jury later. He denounced the principle of law which held that because a defendant was willing to commit one crime he would of necessity have been willing to commit another.

After a mass of decisions had been cited, during which the jury had been hearing, Judge Hutton ruled without hesitating an answering argument from the prosecution.

WITNESS A SETTLEMENT WORKER Cooney, who testified that he had been engaged in settlement work in Chicago prior to entering the employ of the McNamara defense, said that early in October he had been sent out of the state to see Bert Hannerstrom, a brother in law of Darrow. He met him, he said, at Salt Lake City, where he told Hannerstrom that Darrow wished him to remain away until the "Dieheman matter blew over."

Dieheman was a witness for the prosecution in the McNamara case, and was said to have been spirited away by agents of the McNamara defense.

Cooney said that he returned to Los Angeles the first week in November and soon after his return had a conversation with Bert Franklin in which Franklin had told him about Juror Bain. The witness said that he immediately reported the substance of the conversation to Darrow.

"I told him," said Cooney, "that it was something he ought to know."

"What did Mr. Darrow reply," asked Fredericks.

"He said 'thank you' or 'all right' or something like that, indicating that he understood what I said." The last part of the witness' answer was stricken out.

GERMAN TARS SEE LIFE IN NEW YORK

Visitors From Kaiser's Squadron Are Entertained by Yankees in the Metropolis

NEW YORK, June 10.—Exchanges of official courtesies occupied much of the time today of the officers of the visiting German squadron, while sight-seeing filled the shore leave hours of the sailors.

The more formal part of the program began with a visit to Brigadier General Tasker H. Bliss, U. S. A., in command of the department of the east, to Rear Admiral von Reuber-Paschwitz, on board the Moltke. General Bliss was accompanied by Rear Admiral Winslow, commander of the Brooklyn navy yard. This call over, the admiral and his staff prepared to visit Mayor Gaynor at the city hall.

Governors Island and the navy yard were next on the list of visits. The remainder of the day, up to 2:30 o'clock, was devoted to an automobile sight-seeing tour for the German officers. Three o'clock was the time set for the mayor's return call to the German flag-ship.

Tonight the German officers were guests at a hotel dinner. The mayor presided and addresses were delivered by him; by the German ambassador, Rear Admiral von Reuber-Paschwitz, and Rear Admiral Winslow.

The German sailors have free transportation on all the city transit lines, and they were quick to take advantage of the opportunity for seeing points of interest. Tonight 750 of them, with as many Yankee tars, were entertained by the Deutscher Kriegerbund at Sulzer's Harlem River park.

FARMER'S VICTIM OF AN INCENDIARY After Extinguishing Fire He Finds Evidence of Arson

[Special Dispatch to The Call] PITALUMA, June 10.—John Bryan, a farmer residing five miles west of Petaluma, was a victim of an incendiary late Sunday night. Bryan and his wife returned from Petaluma about 11 o'clock and found his barn on fire.

Bryan extinguished the blaze and made a search, finding a number of recently kindled fires burning throughout the building. Kerosene was strewn over the floors and hay and furniture in the attic of the barn were saturated.

After extinguishing these fires Bryan searched the building and found a number of bottles in a manger which had evidently contained kerosene.

Shenit J. K. S. of Sonoma county was notified, and on investigation today he made an arrest, but refuses to reveal his prisoner's identity. He is being detained in the city jail.

Because she has been using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for 25 years and is still using it. It took her completely out of the sickness, and since that day to this she has been taking it three times a day. Grandma has expressed a wish that you use this in your advertising."—Florence Mathews, Hudson Heights, N. J.

The Mason & Hamlin Piano

Throughout the length and breadth of the Nation, in England and on the Continent, and, in fact, wherever music in the highest artistic sense is produced, those who are satisfied only with the best, the most artistic and beautiful are bowing in sincerest admiration to the noble quality, the unquestioned superiority of

Steadily, day by day, month by month, and year by year, the conquest of the truly musical by this most perfect of all pianos goes on. So irresistible is the tone, so perfect in flexibility and responsiveness the action of the Mason & Hamlin Piano that those musicians who come, skeptically, prepared by preconceived ideas to condemn, voice their admiration enthusiastically once the piano has told its own story under the touch of their own fingers.

Recently Zimbalist, the great Russian Violinist, together with Harold Bauer, the famous pianist, played a matinee engagement at Scottish Rite Auditorium. Samuel Chotzinoff, accompanist of Zimbalist, on that afternoon first tried a Mason & Hamlin, style BB-1. So impressed was Chotzinoff that, while under contract to play another piano, he purchased on the afternoon of his arrival in New York the counterpart of the piano which he tried in San Francisco. This is but one significant instance.

Because they are better, in tone, action, and in every attribute that makes for piano perfection, Mason & Hamlin pianos cost more than other pianos, but their superb quality more than justifies the slight difference. They may be purchased on easy payments.
