JOHNSON PLAYS IN VAIN FOR SINGLES TITLE

Gallery of 5,000 Thrilled as Final National Honors Come to California

[Special Dispatch to The Call]
NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 26.—Maurice E. McLoughlin won the all comers' national championship singles on the turf courts of the Casino here today in five hard fought sets at 3-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2. By his victory McLoughlin completes the clean sweep which the players from the Pacific coast have made in the list of national titles this season. The match proved more exciting and spectacular and a longer contest than any of the close students of the game had expected. Johnson, while his strength lasted, compelled McLoughlin to play upon the defensive in a way that surprised the gallery, which numbered 5,000.

Maurice E. McLoughlin, who yesterday established his supremacy on American tennis courts by defeating Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia in final contest for national singles championship.

Johnson led off with the service. At once the bad bounds of the ball bothered McLoughlin and the Pennsylvanian took the first game on his opponent's drives outside the court. Service began to play its important part at this stage of the games. The games held level up to 3 all. Then Johnson by beautiful shots that skirted the lines and lobbed to the base line broke through McLoughlin's service and won on the next game for the set at 6-3.

The Pennsylvanian worked his chor strokes so clearly in the second set that he advanced to four love on games before McLoughlin made good for a love game on his service. There were many flashing rallies at this stage, but Johnson held steady and won the two sets, being played in the fast time of 54 minutes.

McLoughlin takes lead
With the second game of the third set McLoughlin broke through the opponent's service for the first time and led to 2 love on games. But the Pennsylvanian changed pace, cutting drives off short and lobbing when McLoughlin came up so that he balanced the score at 2 all. It was then that the great Pacific coast player began his furious attack at the net that lasted to the end. He timed his drives well, and then as Johnson stepped in whipped over passes for the points to take his first set at 6-3.

As if knowing that his strength was flagging Johnson went into the fourth set more vigorously. The two met in wonderfully played rallies, with each making sensational gets. Johnson lived up to his service in the seventh game, despite a tremendous attack from McLoughlin's side that sent the points to deuce several times. That was the best he could do, for the Californian receded off the next three games, allowing his opponent only one point.

Pennsylvanian loses ground
Johnson faded completely in the fifth set. Once, in trying for one of McLoughlin's short returns, he ran into the net and hurt his fingers as he caught them in the meshes. He played on pluckily, but he was beaten and lost the match point by driving into the net in one of McLoughlin's played shots into the corner of his court.

The rise of McLoughlin has been rapid. He was born at Carson City, Nev., January 7, 1890, and he became holder of the national crown at 22, one of the youngest players who has ever held the title. William Larned, whom the dauntless Californian succeeded, was 30 years old when he first won the honors in 1901.

Play is spectacular
The tall, sunburned youth from California has developed a net attack which sweeps his opponents off their feet. It is spectacular and is always popular with the gallery. Twice McLoughlin has journeyed to Australia as one of the American team, Davis cup matches. In 1909 his companion to Australia was Melville H. Long, also of California. Last year he went with Larned and Wright, and in the final match of the series played Norman E. Brooks the limit of five sets.

McLoughlin is one of the few American players who devotes considerable attention to training for his contests. His physical condition is perfect always.

QUESTION IS TWO HOURS IN ASKING

Answer to Query Regarding Bonner's Mental Condition Is "Insane"

A single hypothetical question occupied nearly two hours in the asking yesterday morning in the trial of Charles Bonner for the murder of Bernice Godair, and will fill about thirty typewritten pages when transcribed. William Hoff Cook, attorney for the defendant, was the inquisitive one, and he reviewed the entire history of the case and all the testimony that had been given in his query propounded to Dr. Arthur H. White, a professor of physiology in the College of Physicians and Surgeons of this city.

The answer to the question, which bore upon the mental condition of the defendant, was a single word, "insane." Besides this question, Cook asked a number of others, and Assistant District Attorney Maxwell McNutt cross-examined the witness at some length as to what was and what was not insane; what were the symptoms of paranoia; how it might be manifested; what prenatal conditions might do in the way of affecting the brain of the child, and much more along the lines of scientific research.

The first witness of the day was William J. Tierney, deputy sheriff, who testified that he had seen Bonner sign his name in the receipt book when he received his property back. This signature and the postcard sent to Mrs. Grimmer by Bonner from jail were then offered in evidence.

In the afternoon Howard McClellan, a newspaper man, was put on the stand and told of an interview on the night of the murder with Mrs. Minette Dreux, the aunt of Bernice Godair, in which she told him that Charles Bonner had said "She set me crazy."

The last witness for the defense, Dr. Charles A. Dozier, had been called out of town, and will testify tomorrow morning.

Three or four witnesses will be called in rebuttal, and it is expected that the case will go to the jury tomorrow night. A request was made to Judge Dunne from the jury yesterday that night sessions be held, as they were anxious to be released and the case seemed to be assuming serious proportions as regarded length. After consultation with the attorneys as to the time they expected to consume, Judge Dunne said that he did not think it necessary.

WOMAN CHARGES FRAUD—A warrant for the arrest of Charles Stady on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses was issued by Police Judge Deary yesterday on the complaint of Emily Winters, 175 Congress street, who alleges Stady sold her a piece of property in Marin county which was not in his name and secured $100 in cash and two promissory notes amounting to $2,500.

DREDGER SKIPPER LOSES IN DIVORCE

Wife Accused of Inebriety Turns Tables and Gets Decree for Cruelty

The appearance of Edward A. Beeler, captain of a dredger under the state board of harbor commissioners, as complainant against his wife, Laura, for divorce, resulted in the tables being turned on him and the award of an interlocutory decree to Mrs. Beeler on the ground of cruelty. Captain Beeler started the divorce proceedings by alleging that his wife frequently was intoxicated, that she spent his savings for liquor and that she nagged him. Mrs. Beeler, however, convinced Judge J. J. Van Nostrand that she did none of these things but that on the other hand her husband cursed her and struck her. The couple were married here September 17, 1902, and have three children, who were given into the custody of the mother. Community property at 144 Third avenue will be apportioned by the court. The following were granted interlocutory decrees of divorce:

By Judge Seawell: George P. from Elaine Petersen, cruelty. By Judge Trout: Albertia S. from Frank Biedermann, cruelty. By Judge Graham: Louise from George M. Saich, cruelty; Sam from Jetta Miller, cruelty; Ina from James F. O'Rourke, desertion. By Judge Trout: Eva from Henry C. Meyer, cruelty; Eugenia against George Lilly, cruelty.

The following complaints were filed: Linnie A. against George W. Hill, desertion; Victor against Noemie Dupouy, desertion; Margaret against John T. Daley, failure to provide; Marie against John C. Burton, cruelty.

FUGITIVE MEXICAN GIVES HIMSELF UP

Peter Martin, who says he is a Mexican government spy, walked into the office of Captain of Detectives Wall yesterday afternoon and surrendered himself on a warrant from Los Angeles, charging the attempted murder of a woman named Maria Diaz. He was booked as a fugitive from justice.

Martin says his prosecution is due to spite work on the part of the woman's father, whom he recently testified against in the southern city, during the federal inquiry into the Magon case. According to a dispatch from the south, Martin attempted to poison the woman. He denies her charges and urged him to marry her, despite the fact that she already was married.

FOREST HILL

• San Francisco •

Big in Attendance—Big in Sales

—The Hayes Street-Ninth Avenue car line was busy from early morning till late in the afternoon bringing people to see, for the first time, the beauty and magnificence of this great natural park.

—Up to a few weeks ago Forest Hill was practically unknown to the people of San Francisco. It was held intact by the Sutro Estate and the nearest car line was over a mile distant. Those who knew its location viewed it only from a distance. —As soon as Forest Hill was purchased by the Newell Murdock company, Dewey boulevard was immediately thrown over to the public. The Hayes Street-Ninth Avenue car line has now been extended south on Ninth Avenue to within 200 yards of the property, and as a result over 2,500 people came Sunday and saw Forest Hill for the first time. Many of these people have lived in San Francisco all their lives and when they walked among the trees it was hard for them to imagine such a beautiful spot was practically in the center of San Francisco's residence district.

Total Sales Closed $178,450.00

Practically every sale was made to men or women who are going to build their homes here They appreciate the fact that FOREST HILL is filling a long felt want in San Francisco
