

Angels With Double Header and Beavers in Spectacular Windup

Capleton's Seraphs Still Room in Race

Come Back, Like Fabled Cat, and Do Seals to a Seal Brown

By WILLIAM J. SLATTERY

If the Angels can manage to pursue the rushing tactics that they employed against the Seals in yesterday's double header, they are not yet counted out as contenders for the 1912 pennant. Their lot was 1000 per cent of the two games, meaning one victory right after the other and also the series, four games out of seven, just when the Seals had the edge and apparently loomed up strong enough to put the rollers under the gang from the south. The Angels showed that they were game and full of fight. They showed that they could do a comeback with much success. They showed that they had more class than they were given credit for. TIGHT BASEBALL IN THE MORNING

Both Twirlers Handy, but Angels Support Theirs and Seals Fail to Do So

The morning game was a tough one for any team to lose, so the Seals had the sympathy of the rooters with them, even if they did take the three end of a 4 to 3 score. Tight baseball was the rule throughout, the hits being evenly divided, each team getting four. The Angels, however, mastered the art of making the best possible use of theirs, so they were there at the finish. Miller should have been accorded better support than his teammates gave him. Yohe dropped a foul from the bat of Berger in the eighth spasm, which should have ended the game. The Berger, with a new lease of life, popped up another soft one that went fair. This time McAvoy was the offender, misjudging the ball and allowing Howard to sneak in with the winning tally. There is no disputing the fact that the Angels played better baseball; still, the Seals might have taken the game had they been more balanced in the right places. Chech, who worked for the southern brigade, got splendid support. His fielders were handy enough had they been more balanced in the right places. HOGAN ONCE MORE A PHILANTHROPIST

He Courteously Divides Another Double Header With the Deacon's Flock

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—Hogan again achieved the unique in playing two games of ball and landing where he started. In other words, he duplicated the feat of yesterday and divided a double header with the Sacramento Senators. The Hoogians took the morning game by a score of 6 to 2 and Van Buren's athletes cleaned up the Villagers by a score of 4 to 1. The morning game offered opportunity to take observations regarding Roger Edmondson, who recently was drafted and purchased by Hogan. He shone with great brilliancy. Three hits only were taken from his delivery and these netted only two runs. He also showed some aptitude with the stick, taking a single and a double to establish a respectable batting average. Williams pitched for Sacramento and was freely touched up by the Tigers. In fact, he was clawed for 10 hits. He was joined first in the second inning. With one down, McDonnell cleverly cracked one of Heister's ship bones. The ball was delivered in a northerly direction, and when Heister finished rubbing the injured member McDonnell was perched on second. Litsch, who was the pitcher, was also hit. McDonnell scored. Litsch became restive and was caught off the base. The sixth inning yielded two runs and the Tigers were at no time in danger. The afternoon game was a duel between Arellanes and Hitt, and Hitt was woefully outclassed. The Seals took 12 hits and four runs with apparent ease, and the Vermonites could only gather four bingles from the delivery of the visiting heaver. Vernon players amiably made three errors in the afternoon performance, which added to Arellanes' work less arduous. The statistics:

SPokane, Oct. 6.—The season of 1912 was notable in the Northwestern league for broken records according to the final averages just made public. The most interesting new record set was that of Ralph ("Har") Myers of the Spokane club, who stole 115 bases. Official club books show that in 20 years this record has not been equaled in any league in organized baseball. Catcher Whaling, Seattle, worked in 123 games, made only seven errors, threw out 188 base runners and averaged .922. Pitcher James, Seattle, won 15 games under a defeat, while the Vancouver club won 16 games straight. The Spokane team stole 399 bases, leading the closest contender by more than 150. Eleven players in the league batted over the 300 mark. The league's three leading pitchers, James, Seattle; Noyes, Spokane, and Clark, Vancouver, finished in the same order as did their teams in the pennant race. All three pitchers go to the major leagues next season. The clubs batted in the following order: Seattle, Spokane, Portland, Vancouver, Tacoma, Victoria, while the fielding order was Spokane, Seattle, Vancouver, Portland, Victoria, Tacoma, and White.

BUSHERS REFUSE TO CALL A HALT

Fine Weather Once More Fills Out Schedules Here and in Country Towns

Although the baseball season has closed in every league in the country save the Pacific coast, the bushers of the Golden State are still at the grind as hard as ever. From the number of games scheduled yesterday, it would appear as though they intend to remain in the going just as long as the weather permits. The crowds are still holding out and the interest is as great as it was last July, so the youngsters have come to the conclusion that the fans will give their time between San Francisco and the suburban and country cities yesterday and good ball was the result all along the line. Some of the results are listed below, allowing for hits and runs scored.

CONVICT TOSSEBS BEAT WALLA WALLA

WALLA WALLA, Oct. 6.—In the last game of the season between the Mavericks, as the state penitentiaries are known, and the "All Star," practically the Walla Walla Tri-State team, the convicts walked the locals 9 to 7. Five games were played and the "stars" have taken three. The state prison team is strictly a "home team" and games are only played on the prison grounds, on Sundays. Some talented players are serving time in the local institution and they frequently trim their opponents, mainly because the prisoners play for their own team.

Oaks and Beavers in Spectacular Windup

Split Fighting Double Header and Incidentally the Series Too

PORTLAND, Oct. 6.—The Beavers wound up the season on the home grounds by dividing a double header with the league leaders, and incidentally dividing the series, 3-3. Two spectacular pitching battles sent a crowd of fans home with much more, than their money's worth. Ables won the opener for Oakland, one to nothing, but had to go 10 innings to come home with victory. Klawitter, who opposed him, pitched wonderful ball, and both hurlers kept out of trouble until the tenth, when the Oaks bunched three hits and sent one man across. The second game was a brilliant victory for Harry Suter, the former Seal, who in a shortened eight inning engagement allowed only two hits, fanned 10 men, did not issue a pass and won 5 to 1. The Oaks' sole run came as the result of an error by Bancroft in the eighth inning. That error, however, tied the score, but Portland fell on Gregory hard in the last of the eighth and made five hits count for four runs. Then, when the third man was out, the game was called on a time agreement. The opener was a hard one for Klawitter to lose. Until the tenth inning not an Oakland runner got past first base, while the Beavers had threatened mildly several times. In the opening frame a walk, sacrifice, hit by pitcher and double steal put Portland men on second and third with only one out
