had resulted in Mr. Harriman agreeing to raise and give to Mr. Bliss $240,000.

"Mr. Twombly said that Harriman had called him up, and said he expected him to give $50,000.

"The said, of course, Harriman had been acting in the common interest, and that the contributions would have to be made.

"Former Senator Depew testified he gave $10,000 to E. B. Odell Jr. for the work done by Odell early in the political fight of 1894.

"TAFT FAMILY" GIVES $150,000

Representative McKinley testified that the "Taft family," comprising Charles P. Taft, Henry W. Taft and Horace Taft, brothers of the president, gave $150,000 for the president's nomination.

"When we started out we expected to expend about $50,000," he told the committee.

The other chief contributors to the Taft fund, with the amounts, as given by McKinley, were:

John Hays Hammond, $25,000; Andrew Carnegie, $25,000; E. T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia, $25,000; "Mr. Kelsey" and "Mr. Patton" of New York, described as "friends of the president," $12,000; Richard Keene, St. Louis, ambassador to Austria-Hungary, $5,000; Senator W. Murray Crane, $5,000; Secretary Knox, $2,500; Attorney General Wickard, $1,000; former U. S. ambassador Nathan B. Scott, $1,000; A. C. James, $1,000.

McKinley's records were read from small penciled memorandums which he took out of a trousers pocket.

McKinley admitted that the Taft campaign committee for Colonel Roosevelt in the primary fight, held the witness stand throughout the afternoon.

"Nothing I would want to swear to," McKinley said, smiling. "I have kept out of the Annapolis club so far, and I guess I will remain out."

miting. If any one connected with the union diverted the funds for any illegal purpose, the guilty persons, he said, it would be shown, were not among the defendants present.

"When you have heard all the testimony," Harding said, "we think you will have concluded that about three men were engaged in the nefarious work of dynamiting, and those three men already have pleaded guilty."

Referring to letters written by Frank M. Ryan, president of the Iron Workers' union, to various business agents, which the government quoted as showing that "jobs" was the term used to designate explosions against employers of nonunion labor, Harding would be shown that "jobs" meant only new work which offered opportunity for union men to get employment.

He added it would be on the very letters which the government quoted in the indictments that the defense would rest its case.

The district attorney had just completed an address to the jury of 23 hours, covering five days. In concluding he described the arrests of J. B. McNamara and Orrie E. McManigal at Detroit, saying that while in the hands of detectives McNamara had offered first $5,000 and then $30,000 if they would free him.

HIDDEN POWERS HINTED

"McNamara said he had no use for arrest, for he had the Iron Workers' union and behind the union the American Federation of Labor," said Miller. "He said he would raise $50,000 and employ Charles D. Dawson to defend him. But McManigal confessed, and McNamara did not get off."

Explosions at South Chicago and Springfield, Ill., were described by District Attorney Miller.

Miller said Orrie E. McManigal, in his home in Chicago in February, 1911, put some dynamite on a radiator to blow up the Chicago plant was blown up February 24, 1911, Miller said, McNamara wanted to kill a night watchman because he was in the way, but McManigal objected.

HOCKIN CALLED SPY

Letters were read by the district attorney supporting to show that Murray L. Pennell, Springfield, Ill., head of a local iron workers' union, wrote to the union headquarters expressing impatience because work at Springfield constructed by employers of nonunion labor, had not been blown up.

Miller said Herbert S. Hockin, acting secretary treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers betrayed his fellow defendants, delivering to government agents the keys of the union headquarters office, and he had permitted a telephone system to be installed under the desk of President Frank M. Ryan.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 8.—The special United States grand jury, called to meet next Saturday, contains the names of some of the most prominent men of Seattle.

The reason for summoning the special jury, when the regular jury is due to meet November 4, has not been disclosed, but it is said that the matters to be considered can not wait.

It is stated semiofficially that the white slave traffic and the alleged irregularities disclosed by the Hammond congressional hearing will not be taken up.

It is rumored the inquisitorial body will take action that has a bearing on the "dynamite" trials in Indianapolis.

NUDE BODY OF WOMAN WEIGHTED IN THE BAY

Fishermen Sight Corpse, but Pass It By

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 8.—Italian fishermen this afternoon saw the almost nude body of a woman on the surface of the bay near the Coronado shore.

An examination showed the body was held in position by a rope fastened about the waist and presumably attached to a weight.

The fishermen thought it might be unlawful to touch the remains, so leaving them they came ashore and reported to the authorities. When the coroner's deputy reached the place the tide had risen and the body was not visible.

Search will be made at low tide tomorrow. So far as known, no woman is missing and the affair is a mystery.

HIRAM GILL, former mayor of Seattle. "San Francisco is wonderful in its life and activity. Seattle just now is dull. The comparison strikes a visitor strongly in a hurried visit. I did not know that the city had recovered so marvelously."

E. M. GREENWAY, society leader: "The car is dead? Not by a long way. This season will be one of the most brilliant ever enjoyed in the city. I will have personal direction of nine of the most select affairs of the winter. Who said that I was growing old?"

BARON VON SCHROEDER, clubman and capitalist: "European travel to the west has again reached the level of the ante-fire days. For the last four years after the disaster the tourists of Europe avoided this city, evil reports and misleading statements of the plague being the chief deterrent feature. Now I am happy to say that my own countrymen and old friends make the trip frequently. Nearly every train and steamship brings in some celebrated German or man of rank."

R. E. HALE: "When I was traveling through Europe with the commission extraordinary for the Panama-Pacific exposition I made up my mind that it would be a fine thing to learn a foreign language or two. I decided on German for a starter and asked a friend the meaning of a long word I had heard. He told me that it would take him three months to explain it to me so that I would understand it properly. I've given up German."

JAMES H. O'BRIEN, former leader of the news and press: "What do I think of the political situation? Say, you can't talk that old game to me any more. I am finished with politics and have gone in for honest contracting."

JOHN OLWELL, builder of the Regue River Valley district and the city of Medford, Ore: "I am making my home now in California. I think that the Sacramento valley is the richest undeveloped country in the west."

FRANK H. KELLOGG, of St. Paul, the "strut buster": "San Francisco is wonderful. She exemplifies the spirit of the west. The material accomplishments in the four years since I last visited this city are marvelous—unbelievable."

MAJOR GENERAL MURRAY: "Glad to see you. I'm glad the Red Sox are frazzling that New York outfit."

OCEAN TO OCEAN ROAD IN TIME FOR 1915 FAIR

Rubber Firm Adds $300,000 Pledge for Project

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 8.—Scarcely had the echoes of Toastmaster Wilbur D. Nesbit's gavel ceased at the Columbus club here early today when Carl G. Fisher informed scores of automobile leaders here was positive the great transcontinental highway would be completed in time for general use to the Panama exposition in 1915.

"It will take $10,000,000 to provide $5,000 worth of material for each mile of the proposed highway," said Bruce Danleys. "But one-tenth of this sum practically has been pledged and the available resources of the ocean-to-ocean highway committee scarcely have been scratched. 'It can be done—let's do it now, before we are too old to enjoy it' is the slogan of the way boosters."

What seems to be the largest good roads subscription ever made by one concern in the history of road building is that of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, Akron, O., which pledged $300,000 for the project. This gift may be followed by several others almost as large from automobile makers.

SPECIAL SESSION STILL UNCERTAIN

Lieutenant Governor Says He Will Consider Matter on Reaching Sacramento

Lieutenant Governor A. J. Wallace, acting governor during the absence of Hiram W. Johnson from the state, was unprepared yesterday to say whether he would grant the request of the regular republican state central committee for a special session of the legislature so that provision could be made for the inclusion of Taft electors in the ballot November 5.

"I have not received any formal request for an extraordinary session," said Wallace last night. "I was at the apple festival in Watsonville Monday and attended the meeting of the board of regents of the university today and so have not been in my office in Sacramento this week."

"I received a telegram from the governor's office today, but no mention was made of any request for an extra session. I am going to Sacramento tomorrow and will then ascertain if any request has reached the office."

"If a formal request is made of me for the calling of a special session I shall consider it very seriously and act as I think best in the premises."

Gustave Brenner, chairman of the republican state central committee, said last night that he sent a communication to Wallace Sunday in which he embodied the resolutions adopted by the state central committee last Saturday calling for an extra session of the legislature to amend the laws so that candidates for presidential electors loyal to Taft could be placed on the ballot.

Lieutenant Governor Wallace should find Brenner's message as soon as he reaches his office in Sacramento today and he will then be called upon to decide whether the legislature should be called together to give the republicans of the state representation on the ballot at the presidential election.

Good Eaters Are Good Fighters

Whether at Work or Play, Endurance Comes From Good Digestion, Always Assured by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Men and women must have quick wit and good grit to stand the day's battles. A dyspeptic may get away with his work, but is always at sword's point with those around him. A good stomach and a good meal well digested puts us in a good, jolly fighting mood, the sort that mows down work and commands the hearty cooperation of our associates. The man at the head of a business who has a good stomach has behind him a good fighting force against competition and the daily ups and downs of life. In fact, a well organized business is like our digestive system.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, as soon as taken into the system go right to working as assistants to the stomach, rendering it an immense amount of help in working out of its very complex processes of digestion, encouraging it in the performance of its functions, relieving it of a portion of its duties, thereby allowing it a temporary respite, and also toning up, strengthening, revitalizing its secretory glands, mucous membranes, absorbing glands and muscular walls in such a way that the stomach soon recovers its lost powers of digestion, motility, assimilation and ultimately does its work as well as ever without outside assistance.

These powerful little tablets contain in a concentrated form, every element necessary to digest all forms of food, whether meats, vegetables, cereals, eggs, fish, etc., and they act equally well in an acid or an alkaline medium. If your stomach is ailing, does not digest as quickly or as thoroughly as it should, and your entire system in consequence is suffering from malnutrition and malassimilation, you owe it to yourself to give the abused stomach assistance to help it out of its present condition.

The solution of your stomach trouble problem is easy: Go to your druggist at once and secure a package, then take one or two after each meal or as required, then note the difference in the way you feel. All druggists sell them. Price 50 cents.
