Indiana's Governor Gives Striking Views on His Progressive Principles

Addresses Two Monster Meetings in Dreamland and Globe and Is Wildly Cheered

far in Indiana as you have here in California, but in Indiana no man will be denied the right to vote for the candidates of his party on November 5."

OVATION IN DREAMLAND

Defending the rights of all men to equal opportunity under the law, and decrying the idolatry of men, Marshall said the American people had fed the babes of their imaginations to the Moloch of selfish men's ambitions.

The democratic vice presidential candidate was given a tremendous ovation at Dreamland rink when he mounted the platform leaning on the arm of Senator A. Caminetti. For a half hour before the meeting was called to order by J. O. Davis, chairman of the democratic state central committee, Mrs. Marshall had been the center of interest for the hundreds of women in the audience.

Mrs. Marshall was given a most gratifying demonstration when she was escorted to a seat at the front of the stage by a party of democratic women headed by Jennie Leland Durst, chairman of the women's auxiliary of the state central committee, and Mrs. James Ellis Tucker, democratic candidate for presidential elector.

Judges William P. Lawlor and James V. Coffey, who were among the vice presidents of the meeting, were given substantial evidence of the hold they have on the democratic men and women of San Francisco.

The vice presidents of the Dreamland rink meeting included some of the best democratic men and women of San Francisco. Among them were J. O. Davis, chairman state central committee; A. Caminetti of Jackson, chairman of the state executive committee; Edward Robson, Taylor, former supporters of San Francisco; Justus Wardell; S. V. Costello, candidate for congress from the fifth district; Judge James V. Coffey, Judge William P. Lawlor, Louis Mosser, Thomas E. Hayden, Thomas J. Walsh, Sidney Van Wyck, M. J. Hynes, Henry Elchoff, Frank Gould, Robert Mann, Mrs. Jennie Leland Durst, Mrs. James Ellis Tucker, Mrs. Marianne Hall, Mrs. Peter Hamilton, Miss Rose Myers, Miss Elizabeth Hill, Mrs. Sophie J. Cough, Mrs. Clarence Todd, Miss E. Perry, Mrs. R. Schlesinger and Mrs. Grace Blackwell Calkin.

CHAIRMAN DAVIS PRESIDES

The Dreamland rink meeting was called to order shortly after 8 o'clock by Chairman J. O. Davis of the democratic state central committee. He introduced Bert Schlesinger, democratic nominee for congress from the fourth district, as presiding officer. Davis appealed to all Wilson supporters to give their votes to the democratic congressional nominees so that the hands of the president and vice president might not be tied by an adverse congress in the event of a democratic victory.

Schlesinger asked for a careful study of principles and conditions by voters before casting their ballots. He said that many were too willing to barter their privilege of choosing their own public servants for the sake of a handshake, a package of garden seed or a portion of the congressional record containing an undelivered speech.

It was during Schlesinger's address that Governor Marshall reached the hall, accompanied by State Senator A. Caminetti, who escorted him to the platform in the midst of a warm ovation.

Despite the fact that the earlier meeting in the Globe theater, in Mission street between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets, was scheduled for 7 o'clock, Governor Marshall was greeted there by a large crowd when he appeared on the platform with Senator Caminetti, Judge William P. Lawlor, Stephen V. Costello and other prominent democrats.

Camminetti, as chairman of the campaign committee of the democratic state central committee, called the meeting to order and presented as the chairman of the evening Costello, who is the democratic candidate for congress in the fifth district.

LAUDED BY COSTELLO

Costello said that he was a believer in home industry and was a member of the Home Industry league, but that when the imported article (referring to Marshall's tariff) was introduced to the home product (referring to Johnson) he was going to take the imported article. He called attention to the fight the democratic party had been making in this state against the Southern Pacific machine since 1884. All the time Hiram Johnson was a resident of Sacramento, he said, but until 1910 was heard to raise his bugle horn against the Southern Pacific. He branded both Roosevelt and Johnson as opportunists and predicted that this state would go back to the democratic column again this year.

Governor Marshall was given prolonged cheers as he was presented by Costello. As he began his address a boy carried a pitcher of water and a glass to the speaker's table.

"No, thank you, I'm a democrat," he remarked amid laughter as he moved the water out of reach.

Governor Marshall's address was similar at both meetings, and at each he evoked frequent bursts of laughter by his way of injecting quaint humor into his remarks. Again he made his points with a plain, homely seriousness that went straight home to his auditors, and stirred them to the heartiest applause.

TAIL OF THE KITE

In part his address at the two meetings was as follows:

"I'm the tail of the democratic kite, and if you can send up a kite without the tail, you do it. I am here more in the interest of Costello and Schlesinger for congress than for myself. Governor Wilson is going to be elected president regardless of California, but it is necessary that he have a congress to sustain him. He would rather go down to inglorious defeat than to go into office tied down to the impossibility of doing anything for the people.

"Your governor has been in my state giving me a lot of advice I don't think I needed. He has been gravely inquiring as to whether we had the recall in Indiana, and he canvassed the state in behalf of Beveridge. As to that, I said that we had recalled his candidate two years ago—we didn't need him. Your governor would have us believe that but for him this state would be overrun with anarchy."

Governor Marshall insisted that his state was being pretty well run without any assistance from Johnson. He called attention to the fact that there is a railroad engineer on the railroad

Marshall Pledges Fealty of Hoosier State

Wet Day Fails to Dampen Spirits of Governor and Party in Carrying Out Ceremonies of Accepting Lots for Building

"In the name of the people of Indiana I take possession of this piece of land, to the end that in the future the people of all the world shall know that the state of Indiana is the imperial commonwealth of America."

With this tribute to the state of which he is the executive chieftain, Governor Thomas R. Marshall yesterday afternoon planted in a little mound of sodden earth on the flats of the Presidio reservation an American flag with a silken Indiana streamer and formally dedicated the site to be occupied by the Indiana building at the Panama-Pacific international exposition.

Much of the pomp that has marked former ceremonies of a similar nature was lacking, for leaden skies and a steady drizzle of rain discouraged an attempt at elaborate display or extensive speech making, and the formalities were brief and simple. There was no review of troops nor big gathering of spectators, and the mists hid Tamalpais from view across the bay, dropped a gray curtain across the Golden Gate, blotted away the outlines of the surrounding hills and turned the whole wondrous picture that is so familiar into a mere bleak waste expanse of mud and sand.

Inauspicious weather, however, was not enough to quench the ardor and enthusiasm of Governor Marshall and the Hoosier band of loyal Indiana men who accompanied the party, and before Governor Marshall had left the dripping speakers' stand he had pledged his efforts to securing a state appropriation that will insure the participation of the Hoosier state on a worthy scale.

The long line of automobiles that conveyed the exposition officials, Governor Marshall and the members of his party and the other participants in the exercises from the Fairmont hotel, where the exposition had been opened, the distinguished visitor, was met at the Lombard street entrance to the Presidio by a troop of cavalry and escorted to the portion of the grounds to the side of the state buildings. There the whole party, including Mrs. Marshall and a score or more of ladies, left the machines and tramped across the grounds to the site of the building that had been erected for the occasion.

WELCOME FROM MOORE

President Moore expressed a brief word of welcome on behalf of the exposition directors, and this was added by Superintendent of the Exposition, representing Mayor Rolph, who promised that the sunshine lacking on this occasion of site selecting would be plentiful in 1915. Former Mayor James D. Phelan, adding another word to the greeting, said:

"It is not necessary for us to apologize for our weather today to the governor of an agricultural state when I tell him that for six months we have had all sunshine and no rain, that today is practically the first rain we had in a long time, and because it is a seasonable rain, it is a welcome rain."

"This exposition is not only our affair here in San Francisco and Oakland, but it is a world affair, and so we welcome you today to something that is really your own."

SITE DEED CONVEYED

President Moore presented to Governor Marshall the deed conveying the site to the state of Indiana, and the latter stepped to the front of the platform, doffed his hat, and said:

"On behalf of the people of Indiana I accept this site for the purpose of hereafter erecting a building here to be commemorated by the name of the state of Indiana. I have not objected before today, nor do I object now, to the good things that have been said of California, but I would be recreant to the trust imposed in me and to my loyalty to my state if I did not now proclaim Indiana to be the peer of any commonwealth in America."

"We have not the variegated climate or scenery of California in our state of Indiana, but far three decades Indiana has been the center of population of the United States, and those who are familiar with the facts and figures of the nation. There is something in the soil or the climate or the atmosphere of Indiana that makes the state go out from it a credit to their native state."

"Indiana is taking no backward step and no backward place. It is going forward in art, literature, science or war. It has its great authors, great poets, great painters and great sculptors. It has been said that every child in Indiana is either born with his mouth open or with a pen in his hand. It was an Indian who put a bit in the mouth of the Mississippi river and curbed that turbulent stream."

"We are not only Indianans, but brethren of every man who dwells beneath the flag. I give you this promise, that what can be done shall be done to the end that Indiana shall measure up to her opportunity in this exposition."

MEMBERS OF COMMITTEE

The general reception committee was composed of the following:

WOMEN RECEIVE THE MARSHALLS

Governor and Mrs. Marshall were tendered a public reception at democratic headquarters in the Phelan building by the women's committee of 125 of the democratic state central committee.

The vice presidential candidate and his wife were escorted to the Phelan building by the women's committee, accompanied by policemen assigned to duty with the Marshall party.

It was a few minutes before noon when Governor and Mrs. Marshall walked into the large reception room at democratic headquarters, which had been decorated for the occasion. A large crowd of men and women was awaiting them. Mrs. Marshall was taken in charge by Mrs. J. O. Davis and the committee, while Davis introduced Governor Marshall. The affair was entirely informal.

Governor Marshall walked about shaking hands and chatting with those present, while Mrs. Marshall held levee in one end of the reception room. The crowd was made up largely of women, a fact which Governor Marshall commented on with pleasure. The reception lasted until nearly 1 o'clock, when the Panama-Pacific exposition committee appointed to escort Governor Marshall to luncheon at the Fairmont hotel.

GUEST AT LUNCHEON

Mrs. Marshall was taken to the Town and Country club, where she and nine others were the guests of Mrs. James Ellis Tucker at luncheon. The guests were: Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. J. O. Davis, Mrs. Jennie Leland Durst, Mrs. Grace B. Calkin, Mrs. J. O. Davis, Mrs. Knox Maddox, Mrs. C. W. Moore, Miss Frances Joffile, Mrs. J. W. George and Mrs. Osmond Hooker. CHINA TO PICK SITE TOMORROW

Elaborate preparations have been made for the site selecting ceremonies of tomorrow morning at the exposition grounds in Harbor View. The commissioners will be escorted to the reservation at the Presidio with a cavalry troop and a mounted band. The ceremonies will begin at 12:30 o'clock. A luncheon will be tendered the distinguished visitors in the St. Francis hotel at 1 o'clock.

Exposition commissioners of the Chinese republic, Chintao Chen, M. S. Ph. D., and Ching-Chun Wang, M. A., Ph. D., will be met at the ferry depot on their return to the Chinese republic by a military escort and taken to their hotel. There is every likelihood that the Chinese school children and the Chinese band will be present in the ceremony. As China is the second foreign nation to select its site, it is expected thousands of spectators will take advantage of the time of year when they gathered to see the exposition.

President Charles C. Moore is in receipt of the following telegram from Major Sydney A. Cloman, secretary of the Chinese republic, which was sent upon receipt of congratulatory telegrams approving his appointment to duty at the Panama-Pacific international exposition:

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.
"President Charles C. Moore, Panama-Pacific Exposition, San Francisco, Cal.
"Many thanks for your kind wire and many thanks to yourself and your associates for making all this possible for me. I have received an order that gave me so much pleasure as this. With your permission I expect to arrive in San Francisco about 12:01 a. m. of January 1, and report for duty soon afterward."
"SIDNEY A. CLOMAN"

The buildings and grounds committee of the exposition are advertising for bids on contract No. 13, calling for the construction of 3,600 feet of sewers with the necessary manholes and drop holes. The sewer system is designed to carry sanitary sewage and storm water.

Bids on contract No. 13 will be opened October 29 and on contract No. 14; they will be opened October 24.

JUDGE COFFEY'S RECORD LAUDED

The re-election of Judge James V. Coffey to the superior court was urged yesterday afternoon at an organization meeting of women from all over San Francisco, in a hall of the Native Sons building.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Austin Sperry; first vice president, Mrs. Luther Wagoner; second vice president, Mrs. John F. Davis; third vice president, Mrs. John F. Hanlon; secretary, Miss Katteryn Cole.

Among the women who spoke were Mrs. Sperry, Mrs. Wagoner, Mrs. D. W. Nesfield, Miss Kate O'Connell and Dr. Margaret Mahoney.

Mrs. Sperry urged caution upon the women in their choice of candidates, and lauded Judge Coffey.

Emil Pohl, candidate for superior judge at the primary election, but who since has withdrawn, said that Judge Coffey always had maintained the honor and dignity of the bench, and that it was a pleasure to support him.

John S. Drum praised Coffey's work in probate, saying that he had practically a personal trusteeship on a great many estates and that it was largely due to his work that the transmission of titles and property to heirs ordinarily was a live man who was honest and had great executive ability and insight, citing examples of cases Coffey had handled.

The judge's interest in the care of children was spoken of by R. P. Troy. Joseph E. O'Donnell outlined a scheme of organization for the club.
