seals necessary to wipe out the republican majority."

Senator Dixon, national progressive chairman, predicted Colonel Roosevelt would win.

"Approximately 6,000,000 votes will be cast for Roosevelt and Johnson out of a total vote of 15,000,000," he said.

"The fatal error in all the democratic estimates is the assumption that Wilson will poll the Bryan vote of four years ago.

"Roosevelt and Johnson will sweep the big industrial centers with a landslide.

"Taft will be the worst defeated candidate since Winfield Scott led the remnant of the old whig party to destruction in 1852. After Tuesday the old republican organization will be the third party in every state in the union. I doubt if it will ever again nominate a candidate for president.

At the same time the progressive party will be the dominant opposition party to the democrats.

MURPHY IN THE GUESSING
"It is a most conservative statement to say that Tuesday Roosevelt will receive at least 60 per cent of the Taft vote of four years ago and certainly not less than 15 per cent of the Bryan vote of that year. That being true, he will carry New York by 45,000. At the same time he will have at least 237 votes in the electoral college. It takes only 266 to elect."

Tammany Hall joined in the prediction of democratic victory, in a statement put out by Charles F. Murphy.

"Never were democratic prospects brighter and democratic expectations more confident," said Murphy.

"All our reports and canvasses indicate a great democratic sweep in nation and state on Tuesday. The Empire state will give the presidential and state tickets splendid majorities. Its democratic representation in congress will be substantially increased and both branches of the legislature will be democratic."

STREET OBSTRUCTION CALLS FOR COMPLAINT
Civic League Wants Thoroughfares Exclusive for Traffic

At a recent meeting of the street committee appointed by the Civic League of Improvement Clubs and representatives of all the other civic organizations of this city, it was decided to send a letter to the police commission inquiring the reason for the non-enforcement of the traffic laws that provide that all streets be left open for traffic in their entirety.

Speakers representing the various improvement clubs called the attention of the committee to the frequent violation of this law by concerns in the manufacturing, commission and lumber districts.

It was reported that manufacturing concerns were using the streets in the district south of Market street for storage purposes in violation of the law, and also that much of the sidewalk area in the commission district is used continually for the same purpose.

Other speakers pointed out that the decisions of the courts have been that a street or public highway only can be devoted to public uses.

VISITOR FROM CAPITAL IS ROBBED OF $1,100
John Verrera Says Companions Took His Money

John Verrera, a wealthy grocer of Sacramento, reported to the police last night that he had been robbed and beaten by several chance acquaintances early yesterday morning while the party was returning to Verrera's hotel in Third street. He said that $1,100 and a check for $1,300 had been taken from his wallet.

Verrera and his four companions, who were fellow countrymen, spent the evening on the Barbary coast. They were walking in the vicinity of Jackson and Montgomery streets about 2 o'clock Sunday morning, when the men turned on Verrera and knocked him down, gave him a beating and took his money, according to the story he told policeman Gus Skelly, who was detailed on the case.

A sailor, who gave the name of John Montero, told the police that he saw the fighting going on and took part in it. He was arrested at the instigation of Verrera and locked up.

SAN JOSE STUDENTS LOSE CANAL DEBATE
Lowell High Team Wins Argument Over Free Tolls

Teams representing the Lowell high school and San Jose high school held a debate in the auditorium of the Mission high school Saturday night, the decision being awarded by the judges to the team representing the Lowell high school. The question debated was: "Resolved, that the stand taken by Great Britain in relation to free tolls for American ships passing through the Panama canal is unjustifiable."

The Lowell high school team upheld the affirmative side of the question, while that of San Jose defended the negative. The team representing Lowell high school was Julius Zenderman and Daniel Homigsberger and that of San Jose, Alice Dewitt and Ralph Oppenheimer.

WEEKLY FIRE DRILLS FOR STEAMER CREWS
Fire drills are to be held once a week in future on all bay and river steamers owned by the Southern Pacific company. Orders to that effect were issued yesterday. The drills will be held while the vessel is in motion and carrying passengers. That passengers may not be alarmed notices are posted in conspicuous places, stating that fire whistles and gongs may ring at any time and that it does not necessarily mean there is a fire aboard. It is expected that the increased practice given ferry and river boat employes will add greatly to their efficiency in emergency cases.

Girl Wins Gold Watch Contest for Workers

Miss Helen Burkhardt, winner of fifth gold watch awarded by The Call in the pretty girl contest.

Pictures Wanted for Call's Campaign To Find Prettiest Young Woman

The announcement in yesterday's Call that Miss Helen Burkhardt had won the fifth gold watch awarded by The Call in its pretty girl contest was received enthusiastically by her many friends.

For two or three weeks it has been known to the admirers of Miss Burkhardt that her photograph had been sent to the Pretty Girl Editor of The Call, and there has been in consequence an air of expectant interest about the business center where that young woman is employed.

Early yesterday morning the "news-leaf" was besieged by groups of business men and women whose concern in The Call's pretty girl wage earner contest grows keener each week.

"I told you so," was what Miss Burkhardt's friends were saying all day yesterday.

Mrs. Burkhardt, the mother of the fortunate young woman, was the most enthusiastic of all. She said: "I am glad Helen won the watch. She is just as good as she is pretty, and I don't think any one deserves it more than she."

Last week was one of great activity in The Call's pretty girl wage earner contest. Photographers worked overtime in an effort to keep up with the demand for pictures. Groups of laughing-eyed girls kept the operators busy from morning until late in the afternoon.

The Owl Drug company contributed a number of photographs that bid fair to bewilder the most critical of jurors. But they were met by those sent in next day of the girls employed in S. N. Wood's store.

The Call is making a careful canvass of the business women of this city in the quest of the prettiest one, as it wishes to present to this girl the splendid Christmas gift of a trip to Honolulu.

You have seen a face somewhere that you consider the most beautiful in San Francisco. Perhaps it is behind a counter, in some store or in an office in one of the skyscrapers downtown. Think of the joyous surprise that would be that girl should she find herself at the end of this contest the winner of that trip to the islands.

Every Sunday during The Call's pretty girl wage earner contest a handsome gold watch is presented to the original of the prettiest photograph published on its pretty girl page.

Some time early in December a jury of noted artists will look over all of the photographs entered during this contest and select the prettiest one of all. This photograph will win for its original the splendid prize of a trip to Honolulu, with all expenses paid on steamer and on land.

JUDGE DEASY asks You, the People of San Francisco, for Promotion to the Superior Bench, by Your Vote Tomorrow

Naturally, it is impossible for me to meet and speak to each and all of you voters in person. But, instead, let me present this brief message:

During my incumbency as a Police Judge it always has been my course to administer justice with the law as my first guide, but with a humane and decent regard for all who were brought before me.

Fearlessly, and above all things on earth, impartially, I have at all times handed down my decisions without reference to personality, friendship, politics or any other personal consideration.

Today I ask for advancement at your hands. I am seeking the higher dignity of the Superior Bench on the same basis as you, in your careers, seek advancement in your business or employment. In my case, this means that I have fully proven my fitness by the tests of time, training, faithfulness to my trust and a sincere desire to serve the best interests of the people of San Francisco.

As a final reminder, I ask you again to stamp a cross after the name of Daniel C. Deasy on your ballot tomorrow.

ELECTION NEWS LINES FLYING BY THREE LEADERS

Private Wires Set Up for Presidential Candidates in Widely Separated Sections

[Special Dispatch to The Call]
NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Momentous news, telling either of victory or defeat, will be read with keenest interest in three widely separated places the night of election day.

In Cincinnati, in Princeton, N. J., and in Oyster Bay, L. I., the three leading candidates for the presidency will be in their homes awaiting the people's verdict. In one of those homes will arrive the inspiring news which spells victory; in two of them the dispatches will tell only of defeat and perhaps disaster.

Like generals far from the fighting line, who have flung their armies into battle and can only sit and wait for the result, the three candidates will scan the returns when the battle of the ballots is over and the count is ended.

All the candidates for the presidency already have experienced the trying hours of uncertainty when the returns are coming in. It will be no new experience to them. They are all seasoned campaigners, schooled to accept victory or defeat.

President Taft will receive the returns in the home of his brother, Charles P. Taft, Cincinnati, where he learned four years ago that he had been victorious. At that time he refused to retire until he knew how the election had gone. With the complex situation involved in this year's election it may be much later before the results are made clear.

Special wires from the great news gathering associations already have been installed in the home of the president's brother, additional lines have been strung to the house by the big telegraph companies and there will be an abundance of telephone wires to carry the news.

Mrs. Taft, the president's wife, and their daughter, Miss Helen Taft, will not be with him to share in victory or to console in defeat. They will be at the president's summer home, Beverly, Mass., election night.

WIFE BROOKS'S FAMILY
Those about the president will be his brother's family and his friends, Major Reed, the president's aide, C. M. Thompson, secretary to the president; James Sloan and Richard Jarvis, the secretary of the president; the president, and W. W. Mischler, the president's stenographer.

In the quiet college town of Princeton an interested group will gather in the home of Governor Woodrow Wilson, eager for the returns and confident that before daylight Wednesday they will be congratulating the one-time president of Princeton university upon his elevation to the presidency of the United States.

That Governor Wilson will sit up until he learns whether he is still only a governor or has suddenly become a president is doubtful. He has manifested a surprising lack of curiosity as to the final result and has taken little interest, apparently, in the arrangements which have been made to forward him the news by the press associations and the telegraph and telephone companies.

He consented to have the wires put in and admit the operators to his home, because he said his family wanted to hear the news quickly, but he said that probably he would retire long before the returns were sufficiently tabulated to show the result.

EARLY TO BED
"I hope to be in bed by 9 o'clock Tuesday night," he said. "It will be time enough to know the returns Wednesday morning."

Unless stern orders are issued against disturbing his slumbers, it is probable that his sleep will be interrupted by some of the enthusiastic younger members of his family, especially if his election seems assured.

Lights will gleam from the windows of the Roosevelt home, hidden amid the branches of the oaks and pines of Sagamore Hill, throughout the long hours fraught with moment to the third term standard bearer. The leader of the progressive movement will listen to the coming of the figures that will tell whether he is to be suffered to enjoy another term in the White House or go down to defeat.

About the central figure will be grouped the members of his family and a few friends who have been closest to him throughout the campaign. There will be no thoughts of retiring there while the result is in doubt. Every item quiver with the excitement of victory should the new party triumph in any degree.

Home Rule in Taxation

It is the opening wedge for Single Tax and was placed on the ballot through the efforts of Single Taxers. It provides for classification and exemption of property that must lead to injustice, confusion and the creation of new special privileges. It is directly opposed to California's agricultural interests, which are the foundation of California's prosperity. It will depreciate the value of all local bonds outstanding and make it well nigh impossible to market bond issues of the future. It opens a field for experiment in taxation, which may seriously affect the school revenues of counties, cities and districts. It will discourage the investment of outside capital and retard the development of California's most valuable resources. It offers not a single plan of taxation for county, city or district. It merely affords opportunity to tear down existing methods of raising local revenue.

This amendment has been condemned by the following organizations:
San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.
San Francisco League of Civic Improvement Clubs.
State Grange.
Tax Association of California.
California State Realty Federation.
San Francisco Real Estate Board.
San Jose Realty Board.
