Water Famine Threatens Capital of Mussulmans

British Warship on Scene; Troops Continue to the Front As Fighting Is Renewed

Prince Ghirka to Be Proclaimed King of Albania; New Appeal to Powers to Prevent Foe From Entering Capital

LONDON, Nov. 5.—It was officially announced in Constantinople today that fighting has begun between the Bulgarians and Turks at the Tchatalja forts, according to a special dispatch from that city. The result of the fighting is not stated.

The water supply of Constantinople was cut off today by a large Bulgarian force which occupied Derkas, at the end of the line of Tchatalja, from which point the aqueduct supplying the Turkish capital starts, according to a news agency dispatch from Sofia.

Except for a few straggling detachments of men in fighting formation and fleeing Turkish troops, the country beyond the Tchatalja forts, forming the last Turkish defense before Constantinople, is now clear of Ottoman troops.

The investing Bulgarian force on the plains below the Tchatalja hills presents a front extending about 30 miles across the peninsula.

The great powers of Europe are aligning themselves on either side of a sharp line regarding the future of the Balkan states. Public opinion in England, France and Russia is that the allies should have the territory in which they have conquered and Russia particularly has warned Turkey that the Austrians could only become worse should further disaster occur at Tchatalja.

On the other side are Austria-Hungary, Germany and Italy. Austria-Hungary, which has already been directly interested, being the nearest neighbor to the Balkan states, will not, it is believed, sit quietly by and see the Balkan league establish itself across her path to the Aegean sea, in which direction her trade is expanding, while at the same time the Servians spread to the Adriatic sea.

The first sign of disension among the Balkan allies themselves comes from a dispatch from Belgrade, in which it is said the Servians are beginning to declare that the "autonomous" Servian army which was agreed upon before the war started, has now faded away. In the dispatch the Mussulman Albanians who fought against the Servian troops are blamed for the change in the Servian attitude.

Instead of the 20 mile stretch of the Adriatic coast hitherto claimed by Servia, the same dispatch says that Servia now wants 60 miles, and that in return Montenegro is to get more than her allotment of the district of Novi-Pazar.

The correspondent adds significantly: "The emperor of Russia will be taken as arbitrator between Servia and Bulgaria in regard to these original claims which were not foreseen in the original agreement between the allies."

BULGARIANS RESUME ADVANCE
In the meantime the Bulgarian troops in the vicinity of Tchatalja are preparing to resume their advance on Tchatalja. After four night marches, the Bulgarians, who were ordered to bivouac around Lule-Burgas, the Bulgarian soldiers were given two days' rest. This period expired today and the troops by this time probably are again on the move.

The Bulgarian army near Tchatalja is being reinforced with troops taken from the investing forces around Adrianople, whose places in turn have been taken by Serians.

A second Bulgarian army commanded by General Kutineff is marching along the coast of the Aegean sea to effect a junction with the Bulgarian army commanded by General Dimitreff at Tchatalja.

To get on the move quickly the Bulgarian troops must have worked hard, as they have thousands of wounded Turks and Bulgarians to care for and have had to burn or bury a large number of killed. It is officially stated in a dispatch from Belgrade that the Servians, having annihilated the Turkish army in Macedonia, have been ordered to assist the Bulgarians, and the slower than heretofore the roads are in a terrible condition from the heavy rains. This will cause difficulty in bringing up artillery.

It is reported that the Greeks made a premature attack on Saloniki and were repulsed, but this lacks confirmation. A combined attack on that city by Greeks, Servians and Bulgarians is expected shortly.

Another report, which is both unlikely and unconfirmed, comes from Vienna to the effect that Great Britain has warned Bulgaria against entering Constantinople. Great Britain's chief interest in that city at present is to prevent massacres.

It is said Turkey probably will ask the powers each to send a warship to Constantinople.

Dispatches from the Turkish capital say the Ottoman army is in a very difficult situation, completely surrounded by the Turkish forces in that district.

Another Bulgarian column formed of detachments from Drama and other captured towns is marching on the seaport of Kavala on the Aegean sea.

from the seat of war in the eastern Turkish provinces and none at all in regard to the operations around Scutari, Janina, Monastir and Saloniki.

The weather is very cold. Rain is falling on the plains while it is snowing in the mountains, and this renders the movement of both armies very difficult.

ALLIED FORCES OCCUPY TOWN
RIEKA, Montenegro, Nov. 5.—The Montenegrins today occupied the town of Alessio, to the southeast of Scutari, and Port San Giovanni di Medua. The Servians and Montenegrins have joined forces at Ipek and are advancing against Diakova, to the northwest of Prisrina.

GREEKS SUFFER A HEAVY LOSS
ATHENS, Nov. 5.—In the fighting at Yenidje, 10 miles west of Saloniki, which the Greek forces recently captured, the Greeks lost six officers and 154 men killed and 33 officers and 737 men wounded.

TURKS SUFFER SEVERE DEFEAT
SOFIA, Nov. 5.—The Turks have suffered another severe defeat between Seral and Tcherli. The losses on both sides far exceeded those at the battle of Lule-Burgas. The fighting in that battle lasted two days and the Turks offered desperate resistance. This information was conveyed in official reports received here at midnight.

GREEKS EXTEND THE BLOCKADE
WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Minister Schurman at Athens cabled today that the Greek government had extended the blockade of the coast of the Epirus as far as Santa Quaranta and had raised the blockade of Castro on the island of Lemnos.

GREAT CHANCE GIVEN FEDERAL WIRELESS CO.
British Government May Give It a Big Slice of Business
[Special Cable to The Call]

LONDON, Nov. 5.—As a result of the present parliamentary investigation into charges of irregularities in granting a monopoly by the postmaster general to the Marconi wireless interests, it is believed that the Federal Telegraph company of San Francisco, which owns the Poulsen system and which has been greatly improved by its engineers, now stands a good chance to receive at least a liberal share of the British government's business.

The house of commons has issued a large number of summons to editors and magazine writers who printed or wrote articles alleging improper motives in the giving of the Marconi contract.

It is understood that a fair division of the government business among competitive concerns will be made the basis of a resolution to be submitted to the house of commons in a form which government leaders are said to be willing to accept.

MEXICAN REBELS AGAIN DESTROY RAILWAY BRIDGE
EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 5.—Rebels today again destroyed the Mexico Northwest railway at various points below Juarez and dynamited two large trestles over a canon west of the City of Chihuahua. Reconstruction of the road by the American company had been nearly completed on promise of federal military officials that the line would be protected.

STRANGE STORY OF "HEAVENLY TWINS" RETOLD

Papers in Lawsuit Shed New Light on Romance of Gale Perkins and Mae Perkins

Though lost to sight for years and all but forgotten by the inner social circle in which the principals moved, the strange romance of Gale Perkins, a San Francisco young man, and Miss Mae Perkins, daughter of United States Senator Perkins, that caused the pair to be known as the "Heavenly Twins" despite the fact that they are not related, has not yet found oblivion.

Buried deep in the secret file at the county clerk's office there has been a sealed envelop containing papers in a law suit that sheds more light on the "Heavenly Twins" story than was ever brought to public view before. Seals on the long envelope were broken Monday when the case came to trial in Judge Van Nostrand's court, and glimpses of the past are revealed in an action against Gale Perkins' mother and grandmother to recover on notes signed by them to some of the high hotel bills of the extravagant "Twins" on a trip to New York in 1906.

The suit is directed against Mrs. Madge G. Perkins and Mrs. Mary Hurley, her aged mother, who live at 1820 Pacific avenue. "Heavenly Twins" is the name coined by Mrs. Madge Perkins, who is the mother of Gale and Mae Perkins, daughter of the senator, and sister of Mrs. Cleveland Baker, wife of the attorney general of Nevada who are freely mentioned in connection with the suit.

FOUR NOTES GIVEN
According to the complaint, which has been amended two or three times since it was filed originally in August, 1906, Gale Perkins and his "Twin," Mae, contracted a bill for board and lodging at the Carlton hotel, in New York, amounting to $1,900 during the summer of 1906. When confronted with the hotel's statement, they said that they could not pay and Mrs. Madge Perkins, who was in New York at the time, gave $100 in cash and four notes for $150 each, indorsed by William B. McNeice, a New York attorney.

When the time limit expired the notes were still unpaid and McNeice redeemed them. Several letters from Mrs. Perkins and Mrs. Hurley, who assumed responsibility for payment, pleading for more time and containing various bits about the activities of the "Twins," are offered in evidence in the suit, in which McNeice is asking for the original $1,900 and was forced to pay, plus interest to date.

BOTH FAMILIES OBJECT
Only sidelights are shown on the attachment of the "Heavenly Twins," whose runaway to New York in 1906 still remembered. Gale Perkins was just out of Stanford and applied to marry the senator's daughter, Mae. Objection on the part of both families precipitated their flight, which, in turn, precipitated the present suit, for the young man failed to find a gentlemanly occupation in the great eastern metropolis that could pay for his expensive apartments at the Carlton. His mother went east to look after them, but still Gale's bills were too large, and at last she came home, bringing her son and settling the "Twins' problem.

Depositions in the suit were made by A. E. McClellan, proprietor of the Carlton, and McNeice last January in New York. McClellan testified that he had never met Mrs. Perkins until the day she signed the notes, but that he had known Gale Perkins and the girl. The latter, he said, was known at the hotel as Mrs. Perkins' wife.

THOUGHT MRS. PERKINS RICH
McNeice's position tells how he came to indorse the notes on the representation of Mrs. Madge Perkins that she was a wealthy San Francisco woman and had large property interests here. Asked if any one lived at the Hotel Carlton with Gale Perkins, McNeice replies in his deposition: "A woman whom he introduced as his wife."

The letters offered by McNeice contain further facts in support of his claim. The first was written by Mrs. Perkins from Philadelphia, November 20, 1906, and is in part as follows: "Dear Mr. McNeice—I have not forgotten the one thing that I should have paid one fifty on the tenth, but I just could not do it. Things were all wrong when I got here and I telegraphed home for money, which they sent me. They are of the opinion that I am as crazy as Gale, and I often guess I am."

The "Heavenly Twin" is still here, waiting for the session at Washington, patient and a trifle subdued. She has kept arm around them both as far as I could reach, but I feel the stretch is telling on me and I'm tired and nervous. One of the twins is at the Ritten house and the other with me sometimes. Please do not think I am ungrateful. I am not. I have hesitated writing because I couldn't write anything but the truth and again because I have not had a cent, after paying the hotel bill. Sincerely, MADGE G. PERKINS, 1825 Chestnut street.

"EXPERIENCE PIERCE"
The second letter produced by McNeice was written by Mrs. Perkins from San Francisco, in answer to a letter from the attorney to Mrs. Hurley. It tells of some of the antics of the "Twins" and is in part as follows: "San Francisco, Dec. 14, 07.
Dear Mr. McNeice: Your letter, addressed to mamma, I opened and she is very ill so much so that the folks sent for Gale and me.
I don't know what to say to you about my indebtedness. I simply crave your leniency in the matter and ask you to wait and rely on our honor for payment.
The folks got personal loans for our trip west, but I'm glad I'm home for I had one of a time in New York, even after the Heavenly Twins were separated.
Nothing would induce me to leave home again and go through the daily worries which I had. My mother is in Philadelphia was here, and I no longer paid one hotel bill than the Twins ran up another.
My jewelry is still in pawn at Goldman's in Sixth avenue. The Hoffman house racket I settled by borrowing $100 from Doctor McKenzie and getting it back from home. The $100 I got from Doctor McK. Senator Perkins repaid. Then I cooked Mae of so-called money. I left Gale a pawn at the Hoffman.
While in Washington I saw Senator Perkins and I think his main ambition at the time of our visit was to get Mae back to New York so back to New York we came. Then Senator P. paid for Mae at the Martha Washington in New York March when he came to New York and took her home.
There was much weeping and promises on the part of the Twins and when they separated Gale vowed eternal love and so on from Oakland and S. F., but I think if all the ferryboats were destroyed the Twins would swim. They are the hardest problem I have ever tackled, and it would take a Solomon to get ahead of them.
If you will be patient a little longer, we won't forget. I'll soon see to it that my money matters are loosened up a little. I will send you a part anyway. Very truly yours,
MADGE G. PERKINS.

For the last four years, almost since her return from New York, Mrs. Madge Perkins has been teaching school at the Homestead school, San Mateo, whether she goes every day. Her sister, Miss Jennie Hurley, is principal of the San Mateo grammar school in San Francisco. Gale Perkins is said to be on a ranch in Mendocino county, separated forever from his fond "Twin."

CLOSED COURTHOUSE OPENED BY CUPID
[Special Dispatch to The Call]

REDWOOD CITY, Nov. 5.—Despite the fact that the doors of the San Mateo county courthouse were closed for all ordinary business purposes today, John Gill, aged 41, and Helen York, aged 35, both of San Francisco, succeeded in persuading County Clerk Joseph H. Nash to open his office just long enough to issue them a marriage license. The couple departed without disclosing where the marriage was to take place.

C. CALVIN WRECKS AUTO TO SAVE 4

Capitalist Drives Car Into an Embankment When the Brakes Fail

The presence of mind of C. Calvin in steering the automobile he was driving into an embankment when the brakes failed to hold kept the machine from going over the grade and saved the lives of himself, Morris Levy, secretary, and Howard Vernon, stenographer, of the grand jury, and Isaac Goldman, foreman of the 1910 grand jury, Sunday night in Marin county.

The party was returning from a fishing trip across the bay, and had got about two miles from Alta when the brakes refused to work. The machine was going rapidly and Calvin, who was at the wheel, saw that to save the passengers he would have to do something, and do it quick. He turned the automobile into the road bank, completely wrecking the machine. None of the men was hurt beyond a slight shaking up except Vernon, who was placed under the care of a physician Monday, suffering from a wrenched back.

The party waited with the wrecked car for a couple of hours, when another machine came along and brought them to Sausalito, where they took the boat home.

The accident followed a day of happenings that caused the party more or less trouble. They left home Saturday night they found they had forgotten their bait, and in the morning it began to rain. Only two fish were caught, and all the members of the party got soaking wet.

Crisp Appetizing Saratoga Chips

Made With Cottolene

Saratoga Chips made with Cottolene are never greasy, as are those made with lard. The reason for this is that Cottolene heats to about 100 degrees higher than either butter or lard, without burning, quickly forming a crisp coating which excludes the fat. Your Chips, therefore, are crisp, dry and appetizing.

Cottolene costs about the price of lard, and will go one-third farther than either butter or lard.

Made only by THE N. E. FAIRBANK COMPANY

Peel the potatoes and slice thin into cold water. Drain well, and dry in a bowl. Fry a few at a time in hot Cottolene. Salt as you take them out and lay them on a coarse brown paper for a short time.
