

San Francisco Leaders Favor Peace Move Call's Plea for Dove in Balkans Indorsed

U. S. ALONE CAN HALT NEEDLESS WAR, THEY SAY

Interests of America Demand
Strife Threatening All of Europe Be Stopped

Mediation Likely to Be Accepted and Slaughter of Human Beings Would Cease

The policy that the United States should now step into the present Balkan crisis and avert any possibility of a general European war, as well as to prevent further unnecessary bloodshed between the allied states and Turkey, has met with much support. The Call's prompt advocacy of such a course of action has received many endorsements. Among the statements made yesterday were:

CONGRESSMAN-ELECT JOHN I. NO-LAN, secretary of the San Francisco Labor council—"I believe it is right to stop the needless slaughter of thousands, and the United States would be doing a big thing to step in and bring about honorable peace. The Call is wise in advocating such a policy."

LEWIS F. BYINGTON, past grand president of the Native Sons of the Golden West—"I agree with the Call that it is time to mediate and take steps which will advance the world's civilization instead of hindering it. War destroys a productive population, and in every case takes the sinews of a nation."

CHARLES A. MURDOCK, supervisor of the city and county of San Francisco—"I see no reason why this country should not try to prevent further bloodshed. We should not miss the opportunity to further the cause of world peace, which was first actively advocated at the close of the Russo-Japanese war. The Call is moving along the right lines."

JAMES D. PHELAN, former mayor of San Francisco—"The interest of the United States and of humanity is the peace. Friendly mediation by a power having no territorial ambition might be accepted. While our country at first would feel a trade benefit by war, a general European conflict would cause financial disturbance by the necessity put upon Europe to realize on American securities, now held largely abroad."

MRS. I. LOWENBERG, president of the Pacific Coast Women's Press association—"I approve heartily the Call's stance and its back of this movement, a move which the Call is right in advocating. Peace should be advanced whenever possible."

MRS. J. S. A. MACDONALD, president of the Draper club—"I am thoroughly in favor of this movement for mediation, a move which the Call is right in advocating. Peace should be advanced whenever possible."

MRS. HORACE K. WILSON, president of the Century club—"I am glad to know the Call is back of this movement, which is certainly a good idea. The United States is the only nation in the world which can step in and mediate, and it would be right in doing so."

ROBERT C. ROOT, secretary of the Northern and Southern California Peace societies—"I believe the United States should try to mediate in the Balkan war. I believe the United States should lead the world in peace propaganda and in preventing the bloodshed and horror of war. I am equally convinced that Washington's advice against entangling alliances should be observed religiously, therefore I say the United States should offer to mediate in the European crisis and avoid any suspicion of intervention."

CLERK HELD UP FOUR TIMES BY SAME PAIR
Los Angeles Footpads Think They're Overlooking Bet

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 12.—J. M. Dunlop, a hotel clerk, told the police today he was held up and searched four times last night by the same pair of footpads. Dunlop said the two men first robbed him of $10 and a watch. Then they ordered him to run up the steep Grand avenue hill. He started up on a run. The robbers followed and searched him.

A second time they let him go and again they overhauled him and made another search. They ordered him to run again only to follow him and make a fourth and final search. Dunlop declared.

RARE OLD VOLUMES BRING BIG PRICES
Three Parts of Robert Hoe Library Net $1,669,135

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Record prices were realized for sets of rare old volumes at the continuation today of the sale of the library of the late Robert Hoe.

This was the second day of the fourth part of the sale. The three parts sold have brought a total of $1,669,135. A five volume set of the Decameron from the Uterson collection, printed in Paris between 1757 and 1761, was sold for $1,400. Another set, printed in 1857 and slightly less elaborate in binding, brought $1,200.

FEW REALIZE WORLD CRISIS BRITISH PUBLICIST TALKS

Alfred Mosley, C. M. G., LL.D., writer of the article printed below, is a leading British publicist. He is a member of the British tariff commission, and already has written several reports and pamphlets on questions of public interest. He is visiting the United States, whose economic, educational and industrial problems he has already carefully studied, on previous visits. He organized the industrial and educational commissions to this country in 1905 and 1906, the commission of schoolteachers which visited the United States and Canada in 1906-7, and arranged the reception of the 1,000 schoolteachers from this country and Canada who visited England in 1908-9.

By ALFRED MOSLEY

SINCE I wrote the five or six column article for the New York Times November 3, events have marched with great rapidity, and Europe is passing through a crisis that few on this side of the Atlantic realize, as a consequence of the outbreak of hostilities between Bulgaria and the central European states and Turkey. Although I am glad to see by the latest cables that Austria is apparently adopting a more reasonable and statesman-like attitude. However, the whole of the present crisis lay of the door of Austria and Germany. The present trouble dates back for generations.

It was the greed of Austria in attempting to check the legitimate ambitions of the Slavonic races by the unjust annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina that has brought the situation to the present acute crisis. The powers of central Europe seek—and I venture to think, rightly so—an outlet to the Adriatic for their commercial purposes. For its own selfish ends Austria desires to force the whole of the central European powers' trade through its own ports and over its own lines of rail. In this way Austria would be able to force its own wares and those of its ally, Germany, upon the Balkan states, whereas, if Serbia forces connection with the sea, that country will be independent and able to purchase every manufactured product from whom it pleases.

The Balkan states seem united in this determination, and they are being actively backed by Russia, who is mobilizing her forces, with the sympathy of both England and France. Constantinople apparently is not to be occupied by Russia, although one must not be too sanguine on this point. But assuming that this great danger has been averted, there remains now the knotty question whether Austria will face all the consequences of a great European war in order to thwart Serbia's ambitions.

These are momentous days, and the question of European peace or war depends on what Austria and Germany will do, which, in turn, means, dare they fight England, France and Russia, with the assistance of the Balkan states? It is of no use shutting one's eyes to the fact that it is a question of policy. Indeed, in all cases of personal national interest, the human element is ignored and, if I may venture to prophesy, it will be the effect that the triple alliance of Austria, Germany and Italy will hesitate before taking his sep, especially as I is doubtful that Italy will remain true to the alliance, as it is diametrically opposed to its interest to see Austria grow too strong on the Adriatic immediately facing Italy's shores.

Perhaps the great question that the people of the United States will ask is, Has not the moment arrived for this country to offer its services to try to attempt to smooth over the present difficulty? This great question one must answer: Firstly, Can the United States be of service at the present juncture?

The United States can not afford to receive a rebuff from all the European states, and this country can only inquire as to whether her services, being entirely uninterested, would be welcomed by the states now in dispute.

Secondly, If, assuming that the good offices of the United States might be useful at the present moment, then the second question that arises is, Who is there in this country among Mr. Taft's able administrators capable of undertaking the task?

It is, indeed, a pertinent question, because whoever is to attempt this humanitarian achievement must be versed in European politics; in fact, he must be steeped in all the details that surround this interesting question, that has baffled the efforts of European statesmen for the last 50 years.

I don't say the task is impossible, but to attempt it without necessary knowledge might do infinitely more harm than good.

ALFRED MOSLEY, LL. D.

COAST TERROR DYNAMITE FOR TRIAL

Many Los Angeles and San Francisco Witnesses Summoned to Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 12.—Thirty witnesses from the Pacific coast, it was announced today, have been subpoenaed to testify at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial concerning explosions in western states.

These include officials who assisted in the dynamite cases in Los Angeles and men in San Francisco, Seattle and Portland who, the government says, will be called to testify concerning the movements of James B. McNamara, Ortie E. McManigal, Eugene A. Clancy, Olaf A. Tveitmo and other labor leaders.

More than 20 of the Pacific coast witnesses have arrived or are on their way to Indianapolis.

Among witnesses subpoenaed from Salt Lake City, where two explosions occurred on a hotel building built by nonunion men are J. J. Roberts, a police captain, and Carl A. Carlson, a former patrolman. They are to be questioned concerning incidents alleged to have occurred when guards were kept about the work. McManigal in his testimony said James B. McNamara had confessed to blowing up the hotel April 18, 1910, and to having obtained assistance from J. P. Munsey, a local business man.

After an hour's session the trial today was postponed until tomorrow on account of the illness of Allen Spaulding, a jury foreman who was suffering from dizziness due to a severe cold.

In relating his preparations to blow up jobs in Kansas City and Peoria, McManigal testified about going to Rochester, Pa., where the dynamite hiding place had been invaded by unknown persons and two quarts of nitroglycerin taken. He said he reported the loss to J. McNamara, who appeared greatly worried.

According to J. A. G. Badoff's testimony, Herbert S. Hoekin, now on trial, arranged the Rochester hiding place, but in August, 1910, in "double crossing" the union he had "tipped it off" to a superintendent of a steel firm in Pittsburgh, who, six weeks before the Los Angeles explosion, dug up and destroyed the nitroglycerin.

McManigal told today how, with 12 quarts of nitroglycerin, he arrived in Kansas City, where he hid it in a box on the Missouri river there in August, 1910.

He testified he had gone as a paid accomplice of John J. McNamara to Indianapolis had instructed him to cause three explosions on a bridge being built by nonunion workmen. The explosion took place about 8:30 p. m. August 19, 1910.

CHARGED EXPLOSIVE STOLEN
At Kansas City, McManigal said he left his nitroglycerin successfully at the railroad station, a boarding house and at a hotel.

"I had one 10 quart can and one two quart can," he said.

"To divide it into three bombs I went to a paintshop and got three quart varnish cans, distributing the explosive into three large quart cans and attaching to the stuff out and buried it in a swamp near the bridge. While working in the swamp I thought I saw a man, who, I mortally returned I could find only two of them.

"I set the bombs to explode that night and went back to town. The explosion failed to come off, the batteries being too weak, and I replaced them the next day."

"From Kansas City I went to Peoria, Ill. I had a job to do. I got in touch with Edward Smythe, the iron workers' business agent. Smythe took me through a cornfield and pointed out the place where the dynamite was to be blown up."

McManigal said he blew the Peoria explosion September 4. It damaged several adjacent buildings.

Pottiff Is Deeply Affected Prays for Safety of Spain

Cardinal Merry del Val Imparts News to His Holiness

Jose Canalejas y Mendes, late prime minister of Spain.

ROME, Nov. 12.—The assassination of Premier Canalejas of Spain produced the deepest impression here, especially at the Vatican, where the remembrance is still vivid of his energetic struggle against the religious orders.

Cardinal Merry del Val received news of the crime early in the afternoon in a cipher telegram from Madrid. He went immediately to the pope and communicated the news to him, using great precaution not to shock him. The pope was deeply affected and expressed his horror at the crime, exclaiming: "This comes from stamping out religion in the most Catholic country."

His holiness then knelt and remained absorbed in prayer for the safety of Spain.

The impression produced on Cardinal Merry del Val was profound, as he himself is a Spaniard and together with Cardinal Vives y Casco possesses the most powerful influence with the pope and gives the present pontificate a somewhat Spanish atmosphere.

BEST LOVED MAN IN SPAIN SLAIN

people paid no attention to it, believing that it was merely the explosion of an automobile tire or the discharge of a firecracker. The second shot and the whistles of the civic guards threw the crowd into a panic.

Someone called out, "They have killed the king."

The two guards had carried the stricken minister into the building, where Canalejas was at once recognized. The news was known generally within a few minutes. The crowd was furious. In the excitement the assassin almost escaped. The guards at the ministry entrance had given their first attention to the victim, seeing a comrade pursuing the man with still smoking pistol. The latter dropped his weapon as he ran and tried to mix in the crowd. He was seized by an officer, who held him until the patrol arrived with bayonets fixed and cartridge clips in their rifles, ready for riot.

Assassin Rushed to Prison
The assassin was rushed to the nearest prison under a strong guard. The anger of the people was now such that he would unquestionably have been hanged at the first lamp post if they only have had the means.

At the prison he gave his name as Manuel Pardo Serrato y Martin, 28 years old, a native of El Grado, in the province of Huesca. He admitted his crime, asking: "Did I kill him?"

"You did, what have you to say?" retorted the commandante of the prison.

"I am glad," replied Serrato. "It was what I intended to do, and I seldom make mistakes."

This reply led the officials to believe that Serrato had already committed other desperate crimes. That he was a dead shot was proved by the second bullet, fired as the premier was staggering, even then mortally wounded at least, for the surgeons believe, dead—killed instantly by the first shot.

SHOOT HIMSELF
Serrato now proved his cunningness and his skill with the pistol a second time. While he was being removed to the cabinet where prisoners are searched he drew a second pistol from his coat pocket, and before the guard at his side could stop him he blew a hole through the middle of his forehead.

Meanwhile the most eminent surgeons in the capital had been summoned to the scene. They were already there, having come to the office of the interior to attend a meeting of the cabinet.

As the much discussed "padlock law" further regulating church and convent discipline, was to be considered at this meeting, it was at first feared that Canalejas was the victim of an ultra clerical snipe. The late premier of Spain has been lampooned and assailed most unparagonably in the extreme Catholic journals of Spain. He was regarded by the liberals as a friend of the people and the French statesman, M. Combes, the author of the French "associations" law. Both drove thousands of priests and nuns to seek shelter in the United States and England, and in missionary work in Asia and South America. They are still leaving Spain and France wherever they can obtain admission by friendly, sympathetic bishops.

LIBERALS INFURIATED
The belief that Canalejas was thus put out of the way by the clericals, or Carlists, infuriated the extreme liberals and republicans. Canalejas, although when but a stripling, was a pro-securitary to the core and in the brief republic of Spain. He was admired greatly by the queen, who it is heard an ardent liberal, but King Alfonso feared him more than he loved him. Only the coming of the premier Canalejas, and it is almost impossible to describe how much they idolized him. He was fearless, his probity was

RESERVE ORDERED OUT

When the rumor spread that this great man was felled by the bullet of a bigot, a moan of rage arose in the Puerto del Sol (Gate of the Sun) and it swelled into a roar. General Moras ordered out the reserves to pacify the people and keep the armed factions apart. The archbishop and bishops were appealed to. Instant steps were taken to convince all that the shooting of these appeals and bulletins had their effect. The suicide of the assassin also helped to allay the popular ferment. A few hours later among the messages of condolence sent to the king and the cabinet, was one from Cardinal Vico, papal nuncio, couched in conciliatory terms worthy of the distinguished prelate.

The late Senor Canalejas will be given an imposing state funeral with the queen of Spain as chief mourner. His death precipitated a political disorder. The liberal ministry is without its one pilot. Technically, his party was known as the democratic monarchists. He was in politics 35 years. He bought and edited El Herald, the most powerful newspaper in Spain, in the zenith of his career. He was the first radical to rule at the side of the king, but he was a conservative radical in 1906 from a back seat in the cortex. Canalejas thundered, "We must wage eternal war against clericalism. He leaped at once to the front. Within the last few months he fought the labor unions as no man in Europe ever fought them. With the soldiers and sailors of the kingdom he suppressed the turbulent Riifs in Africa.

GABY'S SPARKLERS FADE IN TRUTH'S CHILL GLOW

But All Too Soon
[Special Dispatch to The Call]
NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—When the custom house appraisers opened the trunks of Gaby Deslys yesterday they were shocked to find that the jewels of the French dancer appeared to be worth only $5,000 instead of $500,000. On her arrival as a passenger on the Caronia Gaby admitted that the clothes alone in her six trunks were easily worth $50,000.

CLIO YEGGS, GOING TO HILLS, OVERAWAY POSSE

Safe Blowers With Hundreds of Loot Are Not Pursued
[Special Dispatch to The Call]
OROVILLE, Nov. 12.—Two heavily armed and masked bandits, who blew the safes in the Western Pacific station and the saloon of C. E. Thrall, at Oroville, Plumas county, early yesterday morning, escaped to the mountains back today. The small posse did not take the trail because they feared certain death.

Residents say that two men, knowing the lay of the land, could hold out for many several hours and could kill many before they could be taken. There was nothing of value in the railroad safe, but at the saloon the bandits got several hundred dollars.

DRUIDS' CHIEF ATTENDS JOINT GROVES' SESSION

Grand Officers Announce Proposed British Affiliation
[Special Dispatch to The Call]
PETALUMA, Nov. 12.—Grand Trustee Herman and Grand Secretary C. A. Guglielmo of San Francisco paid an official visit to the three Druidic groves of Petaluma, Petaluma, Cypress and Unity, at a joint meeting last night. It was announced the grand officers instructed the local members that if the grand grove of Druids of California are released from the supreme lodge the grove of Druids will affiliate with the English and Australian Druids.

SURGEON'S RELATIVES CLAIM POND VICTIM

Body Identified as That of Missing Former New Yorker
[Special Dispatch to The Call]
MIDDLEBOROUGH, Mass., Nov. 12.—Relatives of Dr. Clifton A. Gardner of Swansea, formerly a member of the staff of the Post Graduate hospital, New York, have claimed a decomposed body found a few days ago on the shore, as a missing relative. The body was identified here, satisfied that it is the body of Gardner. The man committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. Doctor Gardner disappeared last July.

Milady's Toilet Table (By Mme. D'Amille)

"For dark and discolored patches, sallowness and complexion blemishes, there is nothing better than a lotion made by dissolving a package of may-atone in a half pint of witch hazel. It gives a more youthful color and smoother finish than any face powder, and will not rub off or show. It keeps the skin soft and satiny."

"If your eyelashes are thin and straggling, or lighter in color than they should be, rub pyroxin into the roots gently with the finger tips. This treatment makes them grow long and lovely."

"On every toilet table there should be a jar of Mother's salve. You can't look your best when suffering, and Mother's Salve relieves pain almost instantly. Rub on affected part for headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, sore muscles, bruises, stiff joints, cold in chest, or pains and aches in back or joints."

"Don't catch cold washing your head. Anyhow, water dulls and deadens the hair, and dry shampooing is preferred. To make the shampoo powder, just mix four ounces of orris root with a package of genuine therax. Sift over head, brush out and your scalp is clean and your hair beautifully lustrous, bright, wavy and easy to do up."

"Belongs to the simplest and quickest hair remover known to beauty specialists. Make a paste with a little talcote and water, cover the hairs, let remain a minute or two, wipe off and the hairs are gone."

BARREN REGION IS GLAD WITH CEDARS

Uncle Sam Plants 20,000 Trees on Slopes of the Butte Meadows

[Special Dispatch to The Call]
CHICO, Nov. 12.—Twenty thousand cedar trees have just been planted by the United States government on the slopes and hillsides of the Butte meadows region east of Chico and along the border line of Butte and Plumas counties. These trees are expected to thrive and cover an area now barren. Fifty thousand pines are to be planted during the coming year, and the forestry service will be busy for several seasons caring for the young sprouts.

Most of the planting has been done during the last three weeks under the supervision of Forest Ranger E. F. Smith. If the forest now being planted in the Butte meadows region proves successful the government will plant similar forests in barren spots in other parts of the state.

In addition to the planting of trees, the forest service is installing telephone systems in hitherto remote and inaccessible places. This week a station was installed in the topmost peak of Mount Lassen. This feat was accomplished with some difficulty. The stations are being placed on promontories to enable the lookouts to notify the forest headquarters of fires that break out in any part of the reserves. The Station on Mount Lassen is the highest telephone station in all northern California.

RECORD STRIKE IS MADE IN THE NOME DIGGINGS

Pay Dirt Is Found Running 25 Cents to Pan

NOME, Alaska, Nov. 12.—The biggest strike in the golden gravel of Nome since 1905 was made in an old channel opposite No. 3, Anvil creek. The pay dirt runs 25 cents to the pan, and there is eight feet of it. Four holes were sunk and all showed the same value.

WOMAN PLEADS GUILTY—Miss Mabel Spencer pleaded guilty to sending forbidden pictures through the mail yesterday in the United States district court. She will be sentenced this morning.

SALT LAKE CITY MEN CALLED

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 12.—Subpoenaed by being served today by United States marshal upon five witnesses wanted at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial in Indianapolis. Two of the men served were on duty as policemen at the time the Hotel Utah was dynamited.

STORK DEFIES ROARING GALE; REACHES SHIP

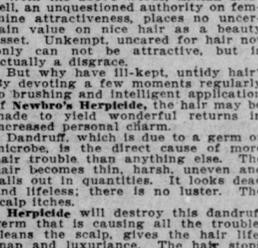

Lands on Yukon During Tempest at Sea and Is Welcomed by Mrs. M. D. Williams

Although the big steamer Columbian was blown practically to a standstill by the recent southeaster, the stork that set out the other day to find the steamer Yukon didn't pay any more attention to the tempest than if it had not been raging. The Yukon arrived here yesterday 105 hours from Seattle. While off the Washington coast, at 5:47 Sunday evening, the lookout on the Yukon's forecastle reported a long-legged bird over the foretopmast. Before the officer on the bridge could get his glasses on, the stranger the bird dived through the cabin companionway and was seen a few minutes later emerging from an open port.

After entering the cabin the bird flew into the stateroom occupied by Mrs. M. D. Williams and left there the prettiest baby girl that he had been able to find.

The Crown of Womanhood

"Uncared for hair can be beautiful. There is no part of the human makeup so revengful as the hair. It cries out: Look at me, care for me, or I will disgrace you! Treat me with consideration and I will be a glory to you."

With the above words, Lillian Russell, an unquestioned authority on feminine attractiveness, places no uncertain value on nice hair as a beauty asset. Unkept, uncared for hair not only can not be attractive, but is actually a disgrace.

But why have ill-kept, untidy hair? By devoting a few moments regularly to brushing and intelligent application of Newbro's Herpicide, the hair may be made to yield wonderful returns in increased personal charm.

Dandruff, which is due to a germ or microbe, is the direct cause of more hair trouble than anything else. The hair becomes thin, harsh, uneven and falls out in quantities. It looks dead and lifeless; there is no luster. The scalp itches.

Herpicide will destroy this dandruff germ that is causing all the trouble, cleans the scalp, gives the hair life, snap and luxuriance. The hair stops coming out, the itching ceases almost at once and withal there is a most gratifying sense of cleanliness.

To the woman who wishes to have the most of nature's gifts by making fluffy, beautiful hair, Newbro's Herpicide is a total necessity. It is exquisitely perfumed and is a delightful hair dressing.

In 50c and $1.00 sizes. At toilet goods counters everywhere. If not as represented, your dealer will refund your money.

Applications at the better Barber Shops and Hair-Dressing Parlors.
