

Sheepmen Condemn Forest Reserves Government Rangers Called Crooks

WOOL GROWERS IN CONVENTION MAKE VIOLENT PROTEST

Restrictions Imposed Upon Industry by Federal Officials Said to Be Excessive

In the plain talk of the mountains, the sheep men of California caustically picked to pieces the organization and politics of the government forest reserve in the convention of the California Wool Growers' association held yesterday at the Palace hotel. From personal experience the sheepmen told how bad in their opinion, the service has been.

"Some of the men are so crooked that they can't lie on the ground straight," cried one of the sheep men, when John H. Hatton, assistant district forester, who had read a paper on the proposed governmental supervision of semiarid lands, asked what the opinions of the sheepmen are.

"Every man, woman and child in the northern part of the state is against the restrictions of the forest reserve," continued the speaker. "The forest service ought to loosen up and give us something better than we have been getting. The cattlemen get all the rights and the sheepmen all the restrictions."

"An example of your rangers is one who came to me with a dog he wanted to sell and said if I bought it for $400 he wouldn't bother me. That's the way they carry out the regulations of your service."

Assistant Forester Hatton arranged for a private meeting with the sheepmen to discuss the evils.

The most important thing brought out in the convention was the paper of Dr. H. H. Hicks, inspector in charge of the local United States animal industry bureau station. He pointed out that sheep have no tuberculosis and are the most healthful animals used for meat.

"Out of 11,000,000 slaughtered in the last fiscal year the government condemned only 11,000 and more than half of these were for emaciation," he said. "Sheep are much more free from all diseases than either hogs or cattle. The demand for mutton and lamb is on the increase all the time all over the country and there is mighty good reason for it, for it is palatable, clean and healthful."

Dr. Charles Keenan, state veterinarian, made a short talk on the crusade against scabies in sheep. He declared that a decrease of 50 per cent in the disease has been recorded for the last year and that the federal quarantine is about to be removed from half the state.

Secretary Fred Ellenwood read a paper on the importance of preparing wool for the market, pointing out the results of efficiency in cleanliness and care.

The convention re-elected Charles A. Kimball president and Fred Ellenwood secretary-treasurer. The latter was chosen as delegate to the national convention to be held in Cheyenne next month.

The convention authorized the president to appoint a committee to arrange for a big national livestock exhibit here for the exposition in 1915; also to have the 1915 convention held here.

The association will make a strong fight against any reductions in the tariff on wool especially against ad valorem tariff. A fight against free meat will also be made.

LIFE STORY WINS TIME

Burglar Saying He Contracted Drug Habit in Prison Gets Only 2 Years

The straightforward manner in which John Kane narrated his life history obtained a light sentence for him yesterday by Superior Judge G. L. Jones of Nevada City, sitting for Judge Lawlor. Kane was sentenced to two years in San Quentin prison for burglary.

Kane said he had never learned a trade. He was born in San Francisco. He admitted serving two previous terms in San Quentin, once for two years and the other for 15 years. Both charges were burglary. He said he contracted his morphine and cocaine habit in San Quentin after his first incarceration.

Kane, while under the influence of drugs November 16, entered a paint shop at 434 Leavenworth street and stole four cans of paint, worth 50 cents.

SANTA CLAUS TO VISIT POOR CHILDREN IN PARK

Charitable Women Are Arranging Great Christmas Tree Outing for 7,000

With plans for providing more than 7,000 children with visible evidence of Christmas cheer in the shape of candy and toys, the Santa Claus association of San Francisco, recently organized to help the poor youngsters to enjoy the season's bounty, is working hard on its scheme to hold a mammoth out of doors Christmas tree celebration in Golden Gate park.

The tragedy of Christmas is in the inequality of Santa's liberality, and in order to see that no child is forgotten, the Santa Claus association was formed by a number of women interested not alone in the individual, but in the civic child. Headquarters have been established at 29 Fifth street, where orders, packages, boxes and checks are received. The telephone number is Sutter 635 and all who have things to contribute are invited to notify headquarters and the association's automobile will come and get them.

The chief concern of the women is to see that plenty of toys, candy and other provisions are on hand when the 7,000 children whose names they have listed stand before the great tree in the park stadium Christmas day. Hundreds of women are working to make bags for the candy, nuts and raisins, and others are busy tying packages for the little tots. In all the hotels and cafes, contribution boxes are collecting money for toys.

Out in the park, Santa Claus, in characteristic garb, will arrive in an aeroplane and hand out gifts until his arms grow tired. The celebration there will be preceded by a parade through the streets, in which Mayor Rolph and his family will take part.

Among the women who are giving their time and energy toward the success of the Santa Claus auxiliary are Mrs. Charles A. Hawkins, Miss Hattie Mouser, Mrs. Frederick J. Linz, Mrs. Jacob J. Gottlob, Mrs. Jack Adler, Miss Flora Ott, Miss Lillian H. Grovan, Mrs. A. E. Graupner and Mrs. Elizabeth Gerberding.

GEARY CARS TO BEGIN RUNNING DECEMBER 28

Complete Service to Ferry Will Be Given by February 1

Operation of the Geary street road will begin December 28 from Thirty-third avenue to Kearny street, and if no further obstacles occur the cars will be running to the ferry by February. This action was determined upon at a conference called by Mayor Rolph, who, at the suggestion of Supervisor Vogelsang, agreed to run the first car.

Superintendent Thomas A. Cashin of the municipal railway explained that since but 10 cars were completed it would be impossible for him to make a good financial showing if operation were begun so soon, but Rolph expressed the opinion that it would be better to run the 10 cars as soon as possible than have them standing idle in the barn.

Supervisor Vogelsang, Assistant City Engineer Ransom and Superintendent Cashin set forth the details involved in building the two blocks of tracks that will extend the municipal railway from Kearny street down Market to Sansome street, at which point the rails will connect with the outer tracks that lead to the ferry.

Ransom stated that he had conferred with General Manager Charles N. Tribble of the United Railroads, and that the latter said his company had no objection to the city proceeding with the laying of the tracks in Market street from Kearny to Sansome.

Special track connections for this part of the line will arrive from the east January 5, and by February 1 it is expected that the road to the ferry will be ready for the cars. By that time the compromise agreement between the city and the United Railroads will be in force unless legal opposition from other quarters halts proceedings.

CONCERT GIVEN BY WOMAN VIOLINIST

Maud Powell Plays "Symphonie Espagnole" and Other Numbers

Another Program of Varied Nature Is Announced for This Afternoon

Maud Powell, the American violinist, who has been praised by poets and to whom composers dedicated their best efforts, played yesterday afternoon at the Scottish Rite auditorium. The quaint compositions of Bach and the graceful selections from Mozart, through her artistic interpretation were scarcely less interesting than the "Symphonie Espagnole," her most pretentious number.

In the first number, by Lalo, the violinist demonstrated her gift of rhythmic expression. She is a serious artist and in the four movements of the symphony, allegro non troppo, scherzando, andante rondo, allegro, she displayed the qualities that made her concert delightful to music lovers. She has a feminine but intense dramatic manner of presenting her art, with the melancholy note always dominant. In the second number, the Bach sonata in E major, the thought of technique was obliterated.

The Mozart numbers were (a) "Rondo" from the Hafner suite and (b) "Minuet," in which the charm of precision was emphasized. The "Scherzo Caprice," written by Edwin Grasse, the blind American composer, and dedicated to Mme. Powell was delightfully played. The difficult Hungarian dance, composed by Brahms-Joachim, was one of the numbers of the program. It was followed by an encore, the Chopin "Minute Waltz."

The program was concluded with the "Fantasie de Fausto" by Wieniawski, but Mme. Powell gave as a final encore the "Witches Dance," by Bizet. The violinist had as her accompanist Harold Osborn Smith, who is a sympathetic player without the mannerisms that make the older pianists objectionable to an audience that delights in the newer or modern school of music.

PLAYS THIS AFTERNOON

Maud Powell will play again this afternoon. The following program is announced:

Bruch—Concertstück, F sharp minor, Op. 84. Allegro appassionato; adagio ("The Little Red Lark.")

Tenaglia (1800?)—(a) air. Pugnani (1727)—(b) Præludium allegro.

Grise—Sonata, G minor, Op. 12. Lento doloroso; allegro vivace; allegretto tranquillo; allegro animato.

Coleridge-Taylor—(a) Deep River (arranged by Mme. Powell).

Marian Bauer—(b) Up the Oklawaha (dedicated to Mme. Powell).

Chopin—(c) Minute Waltz.

Bethoven—(d) Minuet.

Huby—(e) Scenes de la Carida.
