WHEN HAILED BY FORMER NAME HE MAKES REPLY

Acquaintance Who Met Horn in Street Says He Tried No Evasion

a highly nervous state, and would not talk about the affair, save to reiterate her belief that a great wrong was being done a good man, who would prove his innocence in the end.

W. Jenkins, a merchant tailor whom Rev. Horn owes $20 on a suit, declared last night that he was positive the clergyman was in the church or in the neighborhood. "I called to see about my bill, as I had read in the papers that he was planning to leave town," he said. "I knew he had $25 still due him from the church for the last two weeks' services, and I wanted to put in a claim. Though Mrs. Church at first assured me he was not there, she afterward intimated that if I really wanted to speak to him I could do so. But I was satisfied with her statement that he would not leave town."

The fact that a number of the articles of clothing, food and other personal effects were gone from the pastor's study yesterday when they had been there the night before, and that after midnight bundles were being carried from the church lends strength to the theory that he has taken refuge in some nearby house.

An additional identification of Rev. Horn as O. P. de Tovrea was given yesterday in the statement of James E. Egan, secretary of the oil workers who formerly lived in Redding and was acquainted with the husband of Mae Metz.

Egan declared that a week ago he had met Rev. Mr. Horn on the street for the first time and had at once recognized him as the man known in Redding as De Tovrea. He called him by that name, and the clergyman, he asserts, returned the greeting without denying his identity.

Though Rev. Mr. Horn was said to have announced that he had retained C. A. Clark as his attorney, Mr. Clark yesterday stated emphatically that he had never been even approached in regard to it. "I am only slightly acquainted with the minister," he said, "and I go to another church and I am certainly not his attorney."

While members of the church assert that no official action will be necessary to dispense with Rev. Mr. Horn's services if they desire, inasmuch as he never formally placed his church letter on file and can be dropped at any time, it is believed further action will be necessary. According to Rev. Van Dyke, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church of Richmond, it will be necessary to dismiss the accused pastor and then declare the pastorate vacant. As far as can be learned, as the church officials are maintaining a strict silence in regard to their plans, no date for a meeting has yet been set.

Attorneys D. J. Hall and C. A. Odell, acting for Mrs. de Tovrea, are taking no further action in the case. They consider that the deserted wife's identification of the articles in his room Wednesday as her own ample to establish the fact that the clergyman and Owen F. de Tovrea are one and the same person.

Deacon Stout announced yesterday that Rev. Mr. Horn would never again preach in the pulpit of the church. He said he had the keys of the edifice and he would not deliver them to the pastor.

Stout declared that he represented the majority of the church members when he said that they should "get rid of this wolf in sheep's clothing as soon as possible."

In regard to the mole on his face, which Mrs. de Tovrea asserts, was on the left cheek, near the eye, friends of Rev. Mr. Horn said they remember seeing a mole on his face, but could not tell its exact location.

MILD WEATHER ON COAST TODAY

Government Bureau Says Zephyrs Will Supplant Sixty Mile Gales

Gauge Here Shows .46 Inches for Storm and 7 Inches for Season

Milder weather along the Pacific coast was promised for today by the United States weather bureau, although there may be a slight fall of snow in the higher altitudes.

The barometer at the Merchants' exchange started rising yesterday, and the news that no shipping is overdue brought considerable relief to the commercial interests. The storm of the last few days, while it injured some sections of the state with frost, has done great good in rain, of which a fall of half an inch was registered throughout the coast.

Locally, the official rain gauge has registered a total of seven inches for the season, including a fall of .46 of an inch for the 24 hours.

High winds were the rule along the coast, the velocity at times reaching 60 and 70 miles an hour. There were no disasters to shipping recorded, and maritime authorities here state that the force of the storm has been broken and that there will be no further trouble from the storm king.

Light showers with warm westerly and southwesterly winds are prophesied for the Pacific coast today. The bureau adds that the wind may veer to the northwest.

Comfort for seafarers was promised in the forecast that the sea will not be rough today.

Honeymooners Trapped in Snow

(Special Dispatch to The Call)

TRUCKEE, Jan. 16.—Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Harrison of Berkeley, returning from a honeymoon trip in Nevada, were marooned Tuesday night in a lonely cabin three miles from Lake Tahoe. With them was the stage driver. A heavy snowstorm came up after they left Tahoe and they were forced to take shelter in the cabin. They had no food until they reached here.

Two Inches in Los Angeles LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16.—The Los Angeles district received 2.10 inches of rain last night. Hail also fell. The forecast is for more rain tonight and tomorrow.

Throughout the citrus fruit section the rain storm was greeted with joy. Growers declared that it would cause the oranges and lemons injured by the frost to drop and start the sap anew in the trees, thus overruling any growth retarding effect of the recent cold weather.

The total precipitation for the season is still more than three inches below the average.

Fresno Water Assured

FRESNO, Jan. 16.—The local weather bureau records three-quarters of an inch of rain since the storm began. The forecast is for more showers tomorrow. Delayed orchard and vineyard planting is proceeding. A heavy snowfall is reported in the Sierras, insuring irrigation water.

Big Rain in Mountains

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 16.—Rain fell in San Diego today. For the last 24 hours the precipitation has amounted to .24 of an inch and for the season to date 2.78 inches. In the mountains the precipitation has been much heavier and it was raining hard there this morning.

San Jose Outlook Good

SAN JOSE, Jan. 16.—With a record of 1.40 inches for the storm and of 3.67 for the season, as compared with 2.60 to the corresponding date, the agricultural conditions in this valley could not be better.

Rain at Bakersfield

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 16.—Kern county blossomed today, due to a rainfall of .37 of an inch yesterday.

Berkeley Fall Near Average

BERKELEY, Jan. 16.—Dr. W. G. Reed, instructor in meteorology at the University of California, announced today that the seasonal rainfall in Berkeley is proceeding in the normal way. The heaviest shower of the winter fell here this morning, with the usual winter result that storm sewers south of DeWitt were a street in the business section overflowed.

Ice Cuts Off Water

(Special Dispatch to The Call) GRASS VALLEY, Jan. 16.—Water for both Grass Valley and Nevada City was cut off by the supply ditch becoming jammed with ice and snow 12 miles up the mountains. Men left Grass Valley tonight on snowshoes to attempt to open the ditch. More snow is threatened tonight.

Vallejo Tombstones Razed

(Special Dispatch to The Call) VALLEJO, Jan. 16.—The storm today blew down trees all over town and in Vincent's cemetery on the Benicia road. Several tombstones in the cemetery were also overturned.

Snow in Western Nevada

RENO, Jan. 16.—Snow continued to pile up in western Nevada. The depth now is about 10 inches in the valleys. Several feet of new snow has fallen on the mountains. All eastbound trains are blocked in the mountains.

Trains Move Eastward

SEATTLE, Jan. 16.—Although a snowstorm was raging in the Cascade mountains tonight, all transcontinental railroads reported their lines clear and overland trains moving over their own tracks. The Great Northern, whose mountain division had been blocked several days, cleared its line today and tonight's Oriental Limited departed for Chicago on time. The Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul and the Northern Pacific reported their trains moving over the mountains with little delay. Reports from the mountains said it was clear and (partly) all day, but heavy snow began falling at dark. Rain, with occasional snow flurries, fell in the lowlands.

Snow in Northern California

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 16.—Throughout northern California snow fell today above the 2,000 foot level. Below that elevation rain prevailed. The Sacramento river at Sacramento registered 14.3 feet above low water mark, a rise of 3.3 feet in the last 24 hours. The greatest rise in the river was recorded at Red Bluff, 5.8. Both the Sacramento and the San Joaquin rivers and their tributaries are due to rise rapidly for the next three days according to the forecaster. The following stations report snow: Colfax, 11 inches; Gold Run, 24 inches; Blue Canyon, 60 inches; Summit, 85 inches; Truckee, 48 inches; Reno, 7 inches.

Napa River Overflows

(Special Dispatch to The Call) NAPA, Jan. 16.—Napa county had an unusually heavy rain all this forenoon. The Napa river overflowed, but no damage resulted. The rainfall in Napa is 15 inches for the season, against 5 inches at a corresponding date in 1912.

KING GEORGE'S LIBEL IS BARRED FROM U. S.

Nagel Holds Mylius' Offense Not Purely Political But of "Moral Turpitude"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Edward F. Mylius, journalist, convicted in London of libeling King George, was turned back from the gates of the United States today by Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel, who held that Mylius' offense was a crime involving moral turpitude which barred him from admission.

Secretary Nagel denied that the offense was a purely political one. "I can not assume," said Mr. Nagel in his decision, "that a law which excludes anarchists and those who advocate the overthrow of government or the assassination of public officials was intended to admit into the United States the publisher of a false charge of bigamy, simply because he advances a political motive for the act or because of the circulation of the offense."

Mylius' advocates held that he had been convicted of seditious libel—a political offense; that his trial had been a farce, and that in attacking the honor of the king of England he was aiming a blow at monarchical government in the interests of republicanism.

The story, published in a Paris paper, for the circulation of which in England Mylius was convicted charged that King George had contracted a fornication marriage in 1890 with the daughter of Sir Michael Culme-Seymour, now the wife of Captain Trevelyan Napier.

"The sole argument for treating this offense as purely political is that the writer of the article and Mr. Mylius intended it as an attack upon a phase of the monarchical institution, and that the crown, in its proceeding, treated it as a political offense," said Mr. Nagel.

"Glad Tidings of Great Joy" for Old Erin

is a very serious, solemn moment. Many of us have sat in this house with one single object in view for more than 30 years. We have met with disaster, defeat and discouragement, but never, even when faced with the tragedy and the loss of our great and incomparable leader, the late Charles S. Stewart Farnell, did we despair of the arrival of this day.

"I believe there is not a people or a country in the civilized world which will not welcome as glad tidings of great joy the announcement that this powerful Irish nation has at last been magnanimous enough and wise enough to undo an old national wrong."

In the words of the late William E. Gladstone, the tide "has once more run out and the star of Ireland has mounted in the heavens," he added.

Prolonged cheers greeted the Irish leader at the close of his speech.

Orangemen Burn Bill

BELFAST, Jan. 16.—Thousands of Orangemen and members of unionist clubs held demonstrations outside city hall this evening and burned a copy of the home rule bill. Bands paraded the streets until midnight.

Mrs. Zeiser, glad to have her money back, started to return to the store, but Miss Zeiser continued the chase. When she got to Forty-seventh avenue and Bond streets she saw her friend, Miss Williams, and called to her to stop the man. Miss Zeiser, exhausted, dropped to the ground.

Miss Williams then took up the chase and the man, tired from his long run, soon was overtaken by her. She grappled with him and went to the ground with her quarry, but pluckily kept her hold. Rose struck at her with his fists, but she avoided the blows and clung to him until help arrived.

Rose was taken into custody by Lieutenant of Police W. F. Woods and was taken to the central police station.
