"General" Rosalie Jones Pitches Tents in Central Park

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The appearance of a group of tents, resembling at a distance a gipsy camp, on the midwinter lawns of Central park today was explained when members of the suffragette band then in march to Washington next month disclosed that they had encamped by way of getting preliminary "experience" before the "winter for women" tramp is begun.

7699 Work Apron, Small 34 or 34, Medium 38 or 40, Large 42 or 44 bust.

The woman in search of a practical apron that is becoming at the same time will be sure to welcome this one. It really covers the gown, it takes pretty lines and it is easy to adjust, while it is very simple and can be quickly made, so that it comprises all the essential qualities. There are just three pieces. The front forms a bib and the backs are extended to form tabs and are crossed at the back and buttoned at the shoulders so that it is but a moment's work to adjust the apron. There are patch pockets, too. Gingham and percale are the usual materials for such aprons, but butcher's linen is in every way appropriate. It is excellent for the purpose and it is easily laundered and grows handsomer with repeated visits to the tub. For the medium size, the apron will require 4 yards of material 27 or 3 yards 36 inches wide.

gaily decorated for the affair with masses of flowers and foliage. The guests were received by Mrs. E. D. Sullard, Mrs. H. H. Postelthwait, Mrs. Andrew Carrigan, Mrs. J. K. Wilson and Mrs. Alpheus Bull. Among those who attended the ball were:

- Mrs. Helen Leavitt, Mrs. and Mrs. Galliard, Mrs. and Mrs. Frederick Kellan, Mrs. and Mrs. Robert Henderson, Mrs. and Mrs. Melvin Pratt, Mrs. and Mrs. Denzel Stoney, Mrs. and Mrs. W. H. Morrow, Mrs. and Mrs. Edward Harrison, Mrs. and Mrs. Harry Davis, Mrs. and Mrs. Thomas Dean, Mrs. Mabel Dodge, Mrs. Elizabeth Covina, Mrs. Corneah de Pae, Mrs. Elizabeth Covina, Mrs. Dorothy Rees, Mrs. Alice Chapman, Mrs. Lillian Willet, Mrs. Marie Bullard, Mrs. Grace Wilson, Mrs. Olive Crady, Mrs. Dorothy Woods, Mrs. Edith Kinsley, Mrs. Alva Eldridge, Mrs. Jessie Wright, Mrs. Edith Atkins, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Kate Stoner, Mrs. and Mrs. John Daniels

The final Bachelors' and Benedicks' ball which will be held Friday evening in the Fairmont, will open promptly at 10 o'clock with a cotillon. This is the first cotillon that has been enjoyed at the Greenway assemblies in several seasons and will prove a delightful innovation as far as the younger set are concerned. As the cotillon is intended mainly for the enjoyment of the more youthful members of society, it will only last until midnight and after the usual regular dancing will be resumed.

Miss Eliza McMullin was a luncheon hostess yesterday, entertaining 35 of her friends from the younger set. Her guests were the debutantes of the year and of 1908, the year of the young hostess' debut. Jonquil daffodils and primroses in varying shades of yellow afforded an attractive table decoration. The luncheon was held in the gray room of the Fairmont.

Owing to illness in their family Mr. and Mrs. Clement Horst have recalled the invitations to the dance which they had planned to give Saturday evening in their residence in Presidio avenue. The affair which was to have been given in honor of Miss Theresa Harrison and Miss Janet Painter, has been postponed until after the Lenten season.

Mrs. John A. Darling entertained at a box party at the Orpheum Tuesday evening. Among those who enjoyed the performance as her guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maud, Count and Countess Leuwhaupt, Miss Bessie Zane and Clinton La Montagne.

Mrs. Cyrus Walker entertained at a box party at the Valencia theater Tuesday evening. Among those who saw "Faust" as her guests were Mrs. Ira Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Talbot and Mrs. Helen Keeney. Mr. and Mrs. Welborn Burnett, Captain and Mrs. X. Rodwell Mayer and Mr. and Mrs. John Cheever Cowdin were guests of those who enjoyed Gounod's opera the same evening.

The pupils of Miss Blanchard's school will enjoy a dance tomorrow evening at Scott's Rite auditorium. The affair will be attended by the debutante set.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric C. Wickenden, who have been spending the last month with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Walker, in Pine street, departed yesterday for their home in San Luis Obispo.

Miss Maye Colburn has issued invitations to a luncheon and bridge party on Monday afternoon, February 6, at her home in the Fairmont.

Mrs. P. L. Wheeler entertained at an informal dinner in her residence in Broadway Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Wheeler was formerly Miss Kate Kirkham, U. S. A., the first quartermaster at the Presidio in early days.

Mrs. William Frieze entertained 200 guests at a dinner dance given at the Fairmont last evening.

At the meeting of the Women's Political League yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Clara Moore, corresponding secretary, read a report of the achievements of the organization during the last year along the lines of reform and outlined plans for the future. Mrs. Grace B. Calkin read a paper on the agricultural or rural credit system, which is designed to relieve the conditions in cities by bettering affairs in the country.

A scheme was presented by William Costley of the League of the Unemployed, for increasing the funds of the league by a system of cash checks, but which was not considered to be practicable by his audience unless many organizations were concerned. The next meeting will be social day and the only speaker will be Donald Lowrie.

PALO ALTO GIRL ENGINEER'S BRIDE

Miss Huttman Married to Stanford Graduate

(Special Dispatch to the Call) PALO ALTO, Jan. 29.—In All Saints Episcopal church today Miss Amy Marie Huttman, daughter of Mrs. Lucy Huttman, became the bride of Jarratt Townsend Lake, Stanford graduate and electrical engineer of Los Angeles. Rev. D. Charles Gardner, chaplain of the university, officiated.

The marriage was simple, being witnessed by immediate relatives and family friends. There were no attendants. The bride was graduated from Palo Alto high school and has taken an active part in the social affairs of the younger set. She was assistant manager of the Palo Alto Times Publishing company until a few weeks ago, when she resigned to prepare for the wedding.

Mr. Lake took his degree from the electrical department at Stanford last May. He now is connected with the engineering division of the Pacific Electric company in Los Angeles.

MCKINLEY DAY COINCIDENCE

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 29.—William McKinley, a young progressive democrat of Chicago, was elected speaker of the house of representatives in the forty-eighth general assembly of Illinois tonight. Thus was the deadlock that has lasted since January 8 broken on McKinley day, when representative members of the house were wearing carnations in their buttonholes in honor of the late President William McKinley.

Popular Society Entertains Several Hundred Guests With Its Usual Success

Grand March Led by President and Mrs. George W. Bauer

The members and several hundred guests of the Deutscher club enjoyed the annual dance of that organization last night in the spacious ballroom of the German house at Turk and Polk streets. The affair proved to be the most elaborate dance of the club for the season and all those present enjoyed its lavish hospitality.

The decorations were confined principally to the stage, an artistic device consisting of two shields, one of the American and the other of the German colors, joined together with small silk flags of both nations, occupying the center of the platform.

The grand march began shortly after 9 o'clock and was led by Captain George W. Bauer, president, and Mrs. Bauer, followed by A. J. Becker, vice president, and Mrs. Becker.

The guests were welcomed by the following reception committee: George W. Bauer, president; A. J. Becker, vice president; Captain T. F. A. Obermeyer, treasurer; Fred T. Martens, G. A. Roulman, H. Colburn, H. A. Henslein, G. A. Jungblut, A. Ahrens, C. F. Thierbach, J. G. Winder, John Forcher, J. J. Conrad and J. G.

George C. Snelder officiated as floor manager. His assistants were L. W. Duke and Alvin H. Eggers. The floor committee was composed of: Charles B. Lacheman, William E. Brodeur, Sanford G. Lewald, John G. Rapp, John A. Klein, Harry Meyer, G. W. Cass, Dr. Guy H. Rice, Dr. Joseph Gaultie, Henry C. Lester, John Topp, John J. Dalley, Ralph Haight and F. M. Cornell.

BACHELORS NEVER CAN BE REFORMED This Divorcee Knows Because She Has Tried to Make Ideal Husband of Two

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 29.—A bachelor is the embodiment of selfishness and lacks initiative and nerve when it comes to dealing with a woman," is the declaration made here today by a divorcee in a statement issued through the divorce proctor.

"A man who is not married by the time he is 35 years old is unfit for matrimony by his own confession. Pass him up."

"Bachelors have had to bear the brunt of humor of all ages, and I want to be recorded as saying they are a joke. A bad husband is better than a good bachelor, because some bad husbands see the error of their ways and change."

"I married a bachelor with blue eyes and then tried one with black eyes. They were in the same class—they were just bachelors, that is all."

SUFFRAGETTES ARE IN ENCAMPMENT

"General" Rosalie Jones Pitches Tents in Central Park

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The appearance of a group of tents, resembling at a distance a gipsy camp, on the midwinter lawns of Central park today was explained when members of the suffragette band then in march to Washington next month disclosed that they had encamped by way of getting preliminary "experience" before the "winter for women" tramp is begun.

"General" Rosalie Jones, commander in chief of the suffrage army that marched to Albany in December with a message to Governor Sulzer, led 10 women and one man, the latter representing the commissary department, into Central park, and tents were pitched for the women's occupancy under a yellow banner that waves for "the cause."

The encampment flies enough colors to account for the popular impression that gipsies dared an invasion.

Need, crying need, exists for definite rulings as to points of good form in our richest and smartest circles.

Strange, indeed, that there should be hesitation as to what is quite the correct thing under any and all conditions among the socially elect. But, new times, new customs—and new developments must be met and settled once and for all.

What the books of etiquette might find a "best seller" feature just now is the final word as to who is the one to engage the private detective. Now, don't be alarmed, don't be misled. This is nothing scandalous. Jealousy plays no part in this little meditation on the smart set.

But when there is a house party. When things—things of value—disappear. When the others of the house party are all friends tried and true. When the servants are all of the family variety. Who, oh, who, should engage the detectives? Those detectives who ask such questions—my dear, you would hardly believe me if I told you the way those men pry into one's inner affairs. But the consolation is that you sometimes get the things back that are lost.

Of course, it was easy to arrange matters when the Crocker pearls and the De Saba diamonds disappeared. Those were both in hotels, and no one felt any sort of bread and salt scruples. In fact, it was a sort of a contest as to which could get the detectives first.

But at the home of a girl you went to school with—or whose husband used to be one of your very best friends—what then?

Within the 50 mile circle around the city, not so very long ago, a diamond brooch disappeared. They were very gorgeous diamonds and they disappeared very thoroughly over night. It was a small and intimate house party.

When the loss was realized, the hostess said, "Send down detectives at once." Only what she did say was "private detectives." That seems to take the curse off the dreadful publicity of such things.

The one time owner of the diamonds said: "I didn't send down a detective. I don't like to do such a thing in any one's house. It seems such a liberty. Of course, if she had had one herself, I would not have objected, but I couldn't suggest that."

The hostess said: "So strange she wouldn't send down a detective, but if she didn't do it herself I felt she had some reason, and I couldn't do anything. I would have been more comfortable if it had been thoroughly sifted."

Then again, a sable muff mysteriously evaded its owner at one of these house parties. It might have been in San Rafael, or perhaps it was Woodside. Anyway, the muff was gone, and it was of Russian sables, that made the heart of womankind like unto water just to gaze upon it.

Again the hesitation as to the sleuths supplied by an agency of the police department.

Again the hostess and the bereaved guest bowed and urged each other. Some one suggested that it be left to the men of the two families involved. Then there would be no hesitation in the matter.

Not so, however. In matters of social form American men are prone to let their womanfolk take the initiative. Neither husband would do anything more definite than say, "I leave it to you, my dear."

Will some social authority step forward and settle the matter? It can't be left to the police. They are concerned merely with the transgressions of social observances, and to decide upon the reverse would be out of their line of action.

But who should engage the detectives?

Mrs. John Cheever Cowdin was hostess at a small tea which she gave in her apartments in Pacific avenue yesterday afternoon. This is the first formal affair at which the young hostess has entertained since her marriage last summer. Assisting Mrs. Cowdin in receiving were her sister in law, Mrs. Samuel Hopkins, and Mrs. Talbot Walker. Mrs. John Parker and Mrs. George Armsby, among those who called during the afternoon were:

- Mrs. Marian Newhall, Mrs. Arthur McLean, Mrs. Oscar Cooper, Mrs. Merritt Reid, Mrs. Marjorie Jocelyn, Mrs. William Duncan, Mrs. Gerald Rathbone, Mrs. Orville Pratt, Mrs. George Cadwalader, Mrs. Hopkins, Mrs. Harry Post, Mrs. Augustus Taylor, Mrs. Walter Martin, Mrs. Richard Gray

In compliment to their debutante daughter, Miss Phyllis de Young, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. de Young entertained at a cotillon in their home in California street last evening. About 45 couples, members of the younger set, were bidden to the affair. There were five figures danced, the favors for which, consisting of paper ruffs and muffs, French lamp shades, potted plants and work bags for the girls, and cigarette cases, boutonnières, pin cushions and lanterns for the men, were distributed by Mrs. Andrew Welch Jr., Mrs. Samuel Hopkins, Miss Jennie Blair and Mrs. Jack Wilson. All the distributors were gowned in fancy costume, Mrs. Welch appearing as Polly, Mrs. Wilson as an old fashioned belle, Miss Blair as a French marquise and Mrs. Hopkins as a Dutch maiden.

The final dance of the Neighbors' club was held last evening in Century club hall in Franklin street, which was
