could alter her position, and she went over.

"It was unfortunate indeed. Everything looked so well for us and we were so elated by our success in again placing her in deep water that this blow is hard to bear. I would not mind it so much but for the loss of so many fine men, not only my own good sailors, but those who represented the engineering company and the underwriters. That is what is pulling at my heart now."

"I don't know what I shall do. I will be up and around in another day, and then I shall await the instructions of my lawyer."

The Mimi is a total wreck. Little will be saved for her owners or the insurance companies. Wreckage strews the beach for miles, and shipping men on the scene declare it will be impossible again to right the hull. The Mimi has sailed her last voyage.

LIST OF KNOWN DEAD

The known dead include Captain Albert Crowe, Portland surveyor for Lloyd's; Russell Blackman, secretary of the Fisher Engineering company; O. S. Estes of Brighton, Ore., employed by the engineering company; C. W. Sibb of North Plains, Ore., employed by the engineering company; Jack Fitzpatrick, Brighton, the fireman on the dockety engine used on the deck of the Mimi to help get her off the beach; Willie Kuschons, cabin boy; an unknown sailor died from exposure and about 15 sailors of the Mimi.

The bark Mimi lies in deep water, 300 feet from the point where she rested on the sand spit for nearly two months. She went over broadside to the shore, and the deck extended to the shoal near the shore. At low water several feet of the hull is exposed over the water, but at high tide the breakers are breaking over the wreck to a height of 30 feet.

The life saving crew succeeded tonight in securing the bodies of Willie Kuschons, the cabin boy, and William C. Koenen of Portland, an employe of the wrecking company. Captain Westphal said it was Koenen, and not a sailor, who with the cabin boy, was washed to the rigging. No other bodies have been recovered.

Captain Pillsbury Safe

BERKELEY, April 7.—Mrs. A. F. Pillsbury of 1547 Spruce street reported today that her husband, Captain A. F. Pillsbury, was not lost in the wreck of the Mimi at Astoria sound, as reported from Portland.

COOK ON A RAID ALL BY HIMSELF

Commissioner, Missing Howard Street Incident, Has Chinatown "Find"

Police Commissioner Cook is not going to be left behind when it comes to unearthing plots against law and order overlooked by the patrolmen.

The veteran of the police force is reported to have been walking along Kearny street when he heard a racket in Chinatown. He ran forward, as was his wont when he was on the "beat," and came upon what he thought was a nest of highbinders. Shots were popping like a machine gun in action and into a deep trench leaped the former police chief.

When he got down among the brick piles and the long grass growing in the debris, he saw a man crouching. He found a Chinese infant with a box of matches and a bunch of firecrackers making a noise like a jing war.

"Da da," said the infant, ejaculated Cook.

"To Confucius with you!" ejaculated Cook.

And now Max Kuhl, Doctor Shumate and Chief White have been on the only absent member of the recent Howard street raiding force.

FATHER JAILED FOR "KIDNAPING" CHILDREN

Martinez Man, Reconciled to Wife, Arrested After Chase for Taking Boys From San Mateo Orphanage

SAN MATEO, April 7.—Charles Benson's attempt to remove his two children from the Armitage orphanage was temporarily frustrated today by Chief of Police Boland after an automobile chase up the Middlefield road. The Bensons live in Martinez and were recently separated, only to be reconciled by friends, although the divorce matter was not dismissed from the court calendar.

Benson appeared at the orphanage and took his boys, Berge and Chester, into the car. The officers of the asylum believed that the two children were being kidnaped and notified Chief of Police Boland.

Benson and the children were overhauled in Burlingame. The father was arrested and the children returned to the orphanage. Later Benson obtained a court order from Martinez giving him the custody of the children and was himself released from jail.

under glass are not to be idly laid aside because of a fire on the roof. So voted this hostess daughter of a Forty Niner.

Within five minutes the fire engines arrived, the firemen chopped a hole in the roof, hauled hoses lither and yon, deluged the blaze with great streams of water and succeeded in attracting a crowd of about 300 persons.

Among those thus informally present were not, however, to be found the members of the board of directors of the woman's auxiliary of the Society of California Pioneers.

SENDS FIREMEN MESSAGE Mrs. Martel, cool and unharmed, but thoughtful of the comfort of her guests, sent a message to the firemen requesting that she be notified if matters threatened to become serious, as she would not care to have her friends hurriedly and into a deep trench leaped the former police chief.

Secure in the promise that they would know in time if it became expedient to flee the flames, the Martel luncheon party developed itself into one of the charming social events of the season, as well as a band of iron nerves, placid and most unusual women.

Within a short time it was announced that the fire was extinguished, Miss Martel and Mrs. Holladay returned, unharmed, and recounted the tale of things to the others.

After it was all over, some excitement prevailed but not sufficient to mar the progress of the luncheon.

The fire is supposed to have started from a spark on the roof and the damage was slight. The flames in the roof were seen by two small girls passing by the flames, the Martel luncheon party developed itself into one of the charming social events of the season, as well as a band of iron nerves, placid and most unusual women.

Among the guests were Mrs. Martel's daughters, Mrs. Joseph M. Masten, Miss Adele Martel and the following members of the board: Mrs. Timothy Guy Phelps, Mrs. Robert White, Mrs. John M. Burnett, Mrs. George J. Bucknall, Mrs. Jerome MacKen, Mrs. E. Quane Holladay, Mrs. Henry P. R. Tricot, Mrs. C. A. Shurtliff, Miss Caroline A. Snook, Miss L. A. Hathaway, Miss Josephine F. Clark, Mrs. A. E. Buchanan, Mrs. William Romaine, Mrs. Emma L. Hunt, Mrs. William T. Fonda, Mrs. James W. Burnham.

Official Furnishes Figures on Transportation to Fair

Grounds During the Exposition

City Engineer M. M. O'Shaughnessy has added his book of data to the mountain of statistics already prepared by Blon J. Arnold on the subject of extensions of municipal railways to provide transportation for the Panama-Pacific exposition. The city engineer summarizes cost of construction, operation, probable revenue and number of passengers to be transported, together with a suggestion that expedition be observed by the administration in allowing the street to be begun on the Van Ness avenue and other lines.

Four months will be required for the preparation of plans and specifications, he says, and 12 months will see the completion of the Van Ness avenue line after the contracts for the delivery of material is entered into, and the remaining lines, with the exception of Church street, will be completed in 18 months after the preparation of plans and specifications is concerned and 30 months for the construction of the line.

LARGE SUM REQUIRED

It will require $479,200 for building the Van Ness line for ordinary operation, he estimates, $504,600 for joint operation with the United Railroads and $690,000 for operation under extraordinary conditions, namely, for the heaviest traffic of the Panama-Pacific exposition.

Four Market street to North Point street in Van Ness avenue the line will be 2.07 miles long and cars can be operated at half a minute headway, carrying a maximum of 12,000 passengers per hour for ordinary operation Mr. O'Shaughnessy recommends an equipment of 12 cars, with a maximum carrying capacity of 3,000 per hour. If this is decided to undertake the property of the United Railroads at the capacity of 12,000 per hour, 62 cars will be required, and it will be found necessary to construct a loop from Van Ness avenue to Market street, and thence to Oak street and thence returning to Van Ness avenue in order to load and unload passengers without interfering with the regular traffic.

CONNECTIONS REQUIRED

Should operation be made in conjunction with the United Railroads, connections will have to be made with that system at Market street. If the Fillmore tunnel is put through, additional connections will be required between the two systems will not be necessary, but without it there must be turnouts at eight streets.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy's reply given yesterday to the request of the board of works for definite information on the question of municipal railways also presents the following general information regarding the amount of traffic which will be handled in connection with the exposition, showing a summary of the number of passengers and the revenue to be derived from them.

The total paid attendance at the exposition is estimated at 8,640,000 (17.85 times the local population), a daily average of 30,000, which will reach 40,000 when the gross attendance is counted up.

ESTIMATED REVENUE

Daily streetcar traffic has been set at $3,000, totaling $864,000. Adding to this the revenue from the streetcars during the year 1914, and 2,500 during the year after the exposition closes, with gross revenues each year of $300,000 and $250,000 respectively, the total estimated revenue has been estimated to be $1,239,000.

Operating expenses are expected to eat up two-thirds of this vast sum, so that a net profit of $413,000 is looked forward to.

The city engineer eliminates the Franklin-Broadway-Gough route for the reason that the maximum capacity is 12.4 per cent, is too great to permit of the safe operation of cars under a half-minute headway, and that after the close of the exposition such a line would not be a profitable investment on account of being near and parallel to the proposed Van Ness avenue and Fillmore.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy recommends three combinations of routes. No. 1—Assuming the construction of tunnels in Fillmore, Broadway and Stockton streets, the route would be from Market street without the Fillmore to J. Stockton tunnel alone without those of Broadway and Fillmore.

The cost of the three routes, first, under ordinary circumstances, as at the exposition; second, under exposition conditions, and third, under joint operation with the United Railroads as follows:

Table with 3 columns: Conditions, Ordinary, Extraordinary, Joint. Rows for Combination 1, 2, 3.

His carrying capacity totals are as follows:

Table with 3 columns: Ordinary Capacity, Maximum Capacity. Rows for Combination 1, 2, 3.

This can be attained if suitable arrangements are made with the United Railroads to stop the operation of the Broadway and Powell street cars during rush hours, otherwise the carrying capacity would be reduced to 1,000 per hour, cutting the total to 59,000 per hour.

This is provided that Broadway and Powell cars are not operated on Columbus avenue during rush hours, and 48,500 per hour if Broadway and Powell street cars are operated on Columbus avenue.

This is with the limitation that the maximum capacity is 26,500 per hour if the Broadway and Powell cars are not stopped.

ENGLISH WOMAN MARRIES

The Hon. Mrs. Maurice Gifford, widow of Lord Gifford of Boothby hall, Lincolnshire, Eng., who arrived from the Orient on the liner, is a noted horse-woman and hunter of big game, and, when at home, takes personal charge of the 2,000 acre estate from which she derives her income.

Mrs. Gifford prides herself on being what she calls an "all around sport." Her husband was director of a British Columbia railroad and she is now on her way to Vancouver to visit old friends. The estate she owns was hers before she married.

When not managing the ranch she spends much of her time hunting. She has hunted lions in South Africa and alligators in South America. She has been on the trail for months at a time, sleeping in the open and undergoing hardships such as few women would care to tackle under the guise of sport. She is a crack shot as well as a daring horsewoman.

She is an inveterate smoker and one of her hobbies is coloring merschaum cigarette holders. Although she does exactly as she pleases she does not believe in suffrage for women and being a land owner naturally has an awful grouch against Lloyd-George.

BOARD AGAINST MEASURE FOR FILLING IN STREET

Supervisor Nolan Will Go to Sacramento Today to Urge Objections to Bill

The board of supervisors went on record yesterday as opposing the bill now before the state legislature providing for the filling in of Channel "street" from Second street to Seventh.

Supervisors Nolan, George E. Gallagher and Gianini introduced the resolution setting forth the board's opposition to the closing of the channel. Nolan will go to Sacramento today to represent the board in its opposition to the measure. A large delegation of business men whose establishments line the water way went to the capital for the same purpose yesterday.

William A. Harris of the Van Arsdale-Harris Lumber company spoke for this delegation before the supervisors in answer to questions from Mayor Rolph he stated that he had heard of a plan to stop the channel as a dumping place for the earth to be taken from Rincon hill if it should be cut down.

Dr. Thomas E. Shumate was sworn in as police commissioner by Mayor Rolph yesterday afternoon, and at the evening session of the board appeared with Commissioners Kuhl and Cook, the former acting president, to hear the usual list of complaints.

The commissioners learned how Enoch Borah had violated his license by having immoral quarters over his saloon at Geary street and Forty-fifth avenue. The commissioners revoked his honor permit and fined him $500. Special Police Officer Defty was placed on the carpet to show cause why he entrusted his revolver and club to a friend who jokingly refused later to give them up. Defty was placed on duty at the time of the incident. He escaped with a reprimand.

ALCAZAR OFFERS 'MAN IN THE CASE' RECENTLY PASSED

Good Work Even if Stars Do Get Out of Their Fixed Orbits

By WALTER ANTHONY

When Grace Livingston Furness wrote "The Man in the Case" her initial intent was to prepare another farce for a fun loving public, but, womanlike, her fluent mind could not withstand the temptation to make a romance of her play. Vigorously opposing this bit of indirection in her plans she injected some melodrama, and called the result "a farcical comedy."

The Alcazar staged the piece last night and gave it a beautiful production and a smooth interpretation. That the piece is a worthy successor to "The Million" may not be said; it is much too obviously "built" for farce and not coherently constructed for comedy purposes. The melodrama is merely introduced. And, to complete the sense of bewilderment that the mixed character of the entertainment sets up, the stars are out of their orbits. Charles Waldron is scheduled as the lead, but E. L. Bennison's role is "fatted" and the most recent assumption takes the piece completely away from its principal luminary in the second act by a legitimately performed role—the role of the real detective, Betterton, whose identity is assumed by Carroll Dempsey, whose name sufficiently indicated him as the hero. Waldron, of course, was Carroll.

BENNISSON'S ADVANTAGE

Bennison's entrance as Betterton into the household of Longacre gives him the advantage from the start, and though the "key" in which his detective is played is exactly in tune with that of the "cooper" in "The Million," the opportunities afforded him in this week's offering are much greater. He would have to deny his actual nature as a good actor if he were to do—in order to avoid an inevitable triumph.

Telling the detective yarns for Dempsey, the millionaire whose identity he has assumed, is a part of the pleasure of one of the best things Bennison has ever done and makes of the second act one long delight. Noisy, vulgar, outrageous and ignorant, Betterton is a thrilled young woman of the Longacre household the exploit of his friend Dempsey, who masquerades as the detective. And though one may wonder how a sleuth of the type that Bennison discloses could ever achieve the fame of the playwright's Betterton, the inference as to the joy of watching Bennison do it.

AGREEABLY HEROIC

Charles Waldron's Carroll Dempsey is agreeably heroic and wins his lady love under the guise of his assumed detective's name, in spite of the fact that he is worth $200,000. It is this money that offends pretty Nell, who is wooed and won by the copper king because she thinks him poor.

Nell played gracefully by Madeline Louise A. Burr Wessner, as Longacre, the man who stole his wife's jewels, is, as always, an effective figure; Thomas Chatterton, as the familiar character of "Spinkley," like much else in "The Man on the Case," is a hard tug on the already elongated leg of coincidence.

TOP OF THE WORLD AT SAVOY THEATER

Life in the frozen north is portrayed just as it happens by the wonderful motion pictures, "At the Top of the World," which are being shown at the Savoy theater, beginning yesterday afternoon, and continuing every afternoon and evening for two weeks.

These pictures, secured at a cost of more than $200,000, are a liberal education for the eye. Nearly 7,000 feet of real is necessary to present the wonders and grandeur, the picturesque scenes, domestic scenes and mining views are all presented in rapid order.

One of the scenes shows the midnight sun just above a fringe of dark cypress trees. The effect is magnificent, showing as it does the natural colors of the aurora borealis, which can only be viewed in the north. A personal trip to the far north or by witnessing these pictures, which have never been shown before in San Francisco.

Interesting trip, which is presented clearly in detail, takes the audience from Seattle to Skagway by boat, then over the famous White Pass and along the trail of '88 to Dawson, hunting for routes the habits of the natives and various aspects of life which can only be appreciated by being seen.

The fourth scene—there are six altogether—a polar bear is swimming 40 miles from land. Hunters on the deck of a small whaling vessel persuade the animal to finish a personal trip with a harpoon. Later on, the method of killing sea lions and walrus is shown.

Dog teams racing for prizes, and a wonderful scene portraying a storm on Bering sea complete the series.

"At the Top of the World" is a motion picture particularly adopted for those who never expect to see Alaska, and for school children.

GOVERNOR SIGNS ABATEMENT BILL RECENTLY PASSED

Promised Opposition to the Measure Does Not Materialize—No One Opposes It

SACRAMENTO, April 7.—Governor Hiram W. Johnson signed this afternoon the Grant-Bolniett redlight and abatement bill.

The pen was presented by him to Mrs. Sara J. Dorr, president of the California W. C. T. U.

Two o'clock this afternoon, the hour set by Governor Johnson for a final hearing in his office on the merits of the bill, found the room filled with scores of men and women ready to speak in behalf of the measure, but none against.

C. R. Callahan of San Francisco, who had asked for the hearing, failed to appear, and after waiting 10 minutes the governor announced to the waiting proponents that further discussion would be useless after all.

"Will you sign the bill?" he was asked. "I will sign the bill," replied the governor, and he did so.

BULLETIN BILL DEFEATED Senator Caminetti's plan to have a "bulletin bulletin" published each session during the constitutional recess, to contain a summary of the contents and objects of all measures pending before the legislature, met with sudden opposition on the floor of the senate this afternoon and was defeated by a vote of 21 to 15.

The bill provided that when bills were introduced they should be accompanied by a statement not to exceed 200 words in length, setting forth their purposes and objects.

TRAIN LAW AMENDED The Boynton amendment to the "full train crew" law, extending the provisions of that law to electric trains and cars or trains operated by gasoline motors, was approved by the senate without a dissenting vote.

Other bills passed were as follows: By Gates—Prohibiting the shipment of live poultry in crates or cages too small to allow the birds to stand upright. By Gates—Prohibiting the sale or purchase of old or disabled horses unfit for work.

By Gerdes—Requiring all factories to keep a "first aid" kit of medical and surgical appliances. By Cogswell—Authorizing the board of control to establish rules for the payment of wages to inmates of any state school, securing possible provision for the payment of such wages.

STATE BUDGET LAW The senate judiciary committee gave favorable recommendation today to Caminetti's proposed constitutional amendment providing for a "state budget" that would do away with countless appropriation bills introduced each session in the legislature.

The amendment provides that the ways and means committee of the assembly shall prepare a budget containing such items of appropriation as are required to pay the salaries of the state officers and appropriations for the usual current expenses of the state government, and the institutions, boards, commissions and public works under the exclusive control and management of the state.

Senator Caminetti estimates that the budget would take the place of 500 appropriation bills.

FERRY AT VALLEJO A bill permitting the government employes at Mare Island navy yard who live in Vallejo to operate a co-operative ferry system in going to and from the city, was introduced by Senator Campbell. It is stated that 3,000 employes at the yard are required to pay $2 each for monthly commutation tickets which would run their own ferry at an expense of 30 cents a month each.
