

EVERY WOMAN

THAT we should hide our self-conceit under a covering of modesty has long been as much an axiom of civilization as that we should hide our bodies under a covering of clothes.

"I don't think we'd have half the divorces we do," says my neighbor, "if people only had a sense of humor. Now I make it a plan to always look for the funny side of things, and I think I avert a great deal of trouble that way."

My neighbor's philosophy is most excellent, but I wonder if she realizes what an emphasis she puts on "Now I."

Ordinarily she is a very different person, rather too much so; she is always wishing she were as good or as clever or as pretty as some one else. But once in a while she is betrayed into revealing some of that normal self-conceit, of which I believe every human being has more or less, no matter how thickly he overlays it with mock or real humility.

"I don't think Mrs. W. has any right to spend so much money for clothes," says another neighbor in speaking of a friend who dresses extravagantly. "Now, I believe in being well dressed, but I don't put half my husband's salary on my back and keep him perpetually in debt." Again, in speaking of another friend who according to her is inclined to be careless about her personal appearance—

"The idea of her neglecting herself like that! Some day she'll be sorry. And I know she could dress decently if she'd only manage a little. Goodness knows I don't have any too much money to spend on my clothes, but I always make a great effort to look as well as possible."

Evidently this woman believes that she herself is the ideal, the happy mean between these two objectionable extremes. And yet if you should tax her with having a high opinion of herself she would be as astonished as she was indignant.

We have all laughed at the old saying, "Accidents will happen in the best regulated of families; they do in ours." And yet most of us sometimes betray ourselves as blatantly as its author.

Now, mind you, I am not protesting against this instinctive self-conceit. On the contrary, as I have said before, I think a certain amount of it is necessary to the happiness of the human race.

I'm just laughing with you at the amusing and ostrich like way in which we—you and I and our neighbors—by a careless speech or even by a single inflection betray that which we are so anxious to hide.

NEWS OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

Investigation of the causes which led to the removal of James Ferguson from the position of principal of the Polytechnic high school may be one of the next movements of the Women's Political League.

At their meeting yesterday it was reported that Mr. Ferguson had appeared before their board of directors and spoken on the causes and influences which had resulted in his discharge, and the matter of a battle in his behalf is under consideration.

Mr. Ferguson will speak before the league on Wednesday next at their regular meeting on "Industrial Education."

The address of Mrs. Helen Sweet Artida of the People's place in the North Beach District, who told of conditions prevailing there, she said that the settlement was a great need, affecting first the children and through them the older members of the families.

She paid high tribute to the achievements of the Telegraph Hill Neighborhood association, the Sisters of the Holy Family and the Happy Day nursery recently established, saying that they as well as the People's place worked together as a chain of centers in the district and all accomplished much.

She told of the Women's club of the People's place and urged that club-women of the larger and more experienced clubs give their aid in awakening ambition and interest in club affairs in this smaller club.

"EVERY WOMAN" BEGINS SUNDAY

Panoramic Analysis of the Gentle Sex

Stage favorites mentioned in midweek review of San Francisco playhouses

Madame Nazimova Will Play One More Week at the Columbia

Engagement of "The Concert" at Alcazar Theater to Be Extended

"Everywoman," a dramatic production which is said to differ from any piece heretofore presented on the stage, comes to the Cort theater beginning Sunday night. But the interest that has been aroused by this dramatic spectacle is not on account of its unusual form and character, but chiefly, if we may believe the testimonials, because of its humanity, its sympathy, its panoramic analysis of womankind.

It is said to partake of certain qualities of operatic comedy and drama, and the production, which is made by Henry W. Savage, is reputed to be elaborate and costly.

H. Cooper Clark, who created the role of Nobody in the original production, will be seen here at the head of the company of 150 persons. The part of Everywoman will be taken by Miss Adele Blood, considered one of the handsomest women on the American stage, and, with a few exceptions, the original company will participate in the local production, according to the advance statements.

Madame Nazimova, the Russian actress whose exotic beauty and fascinating personality brings to "Bella Donna" a charm which makes that melodrama a wonderful spectacle, will play one more week at the Columbia. The splash of this Russian actress appeals so strongly to woman that the matinee performance yesterday was a crowded house. The sale of seats for next week will mean today, and the ready there has been a heavy advance demand.

A second week of "The Concert" has been decided upon at the Alcazar theater, to accommodate the crowds that wish to see Leo Ditrichstein in this witty play, which he wrote and which he is presenting, assisted by Miss Isabelle Irving, Cora Witherspoon, Madge West, Anne Livingston, and the Alcazar company.

Victor Herbert's melodious light opera, "The Serenade," the music of which has entered into the music rack or talking machine cabinet of every home, is proving a lodestone for the Tivoli, and the Eddy street opera house, "on the old site" is once again what it was, the place where San Franciscans go to hear pretty music cleverly sung and comedy blithely acted.

Jacob P. Adler, the world's greatest Yiddish actor, will make his first visit to San Francisco on the occasion of his forthcoming appearance at the Columbia theater on the afternoon and evening of Sunday, June 22.

Cecilia Loftus is too big an attraction to be a merely one week headliner at the Orpheum. This her first week, she is the headliner and next week she will continue in her pre-eminence with a new series of imitations. There will be six entirely new acts on next week.

Louis A. Simon, Kathryn Osterman and a company will give the musical comedy, "The Witness for the Defense," by A. E. W. Mason. This is a drama in which Miss Bates will have full opportunity to display her emotional gifts.

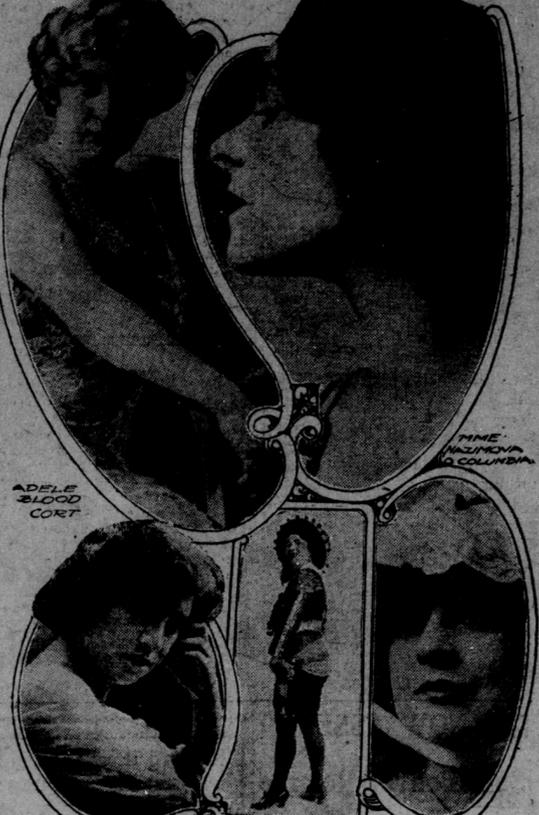

The Savoy theater will be reopened Monday afternoon when the Carnegie Edison talking pictures will complete the bill.

The usual crowds fill the Empress theater this week to witness the interesting bill. During the coming week Jimmy Britt, former lightweight boxer, will be the headliner.

The added feature will be "The Nine Piano Bugs," headed by a quartet of performers hard to beat. The list includes Stone, Wahl, Jackson and Mae Bronie. Agnes Lee and company will present "The Test," written by a St. Paul newspaper man. "Fun on the Boulevard" will be offered by the Wheelers. Edward Barnes and Mabel Robinson will give 15 minutes of song and comedy. Charlotte, a violinist of much ability, will run the gauntlet from grand opera to ragtime. Forrest Stone and Grace Young in songs, dances and entertainment and motion pictures complete the bill.

A couple of excellent sketches with a generous sprinkling of music and comedy make up a good bill in the Pantages this week. Moore's "Mother Goose Girls" top the show with a spectacular scenic production in three scenes.

SUFFRAGE WON BY ILLINOIS WOMEN

All Voting Powers Possible Without Constitutional Amendment Granted

House Concurs With Assembly After Long Fight—Governor to Sign

(Special Dispatch to The Call) SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 11.—After a fight extending through half a century, Illinois women today won the right to vote.

The house of representatives of the general assembly passed the senate bill granting suffrage to women for presidential electors and for officers created by the statute and for questions of public policy.

The total vote on the roll call was: Ayes, 87; noes, 55. The measure grants to women all powers of voting which they can have without a constitutional amendment, which will be the next step in the equal suffrage movement.

Governor Dunne is expected to sign the measure and it will go into effect July 1.

After that date women may vote for municipal officers and other officials named in the bill. They will be an important factor in the next mayoralty campaign in Chicago.

Edward D. Shurtliff made a telling speech when his name was called and he voted for it. His vote surprised the house, and suffrage supporters hoped that it had turned the tide in favor of the bill. He attacked the O'Hara commission and said women ought to have enough powers of government to protect their sex.

The windup of the vote was dramatic. When Speaker McKelvey's name was called he voted aye, making the seventy-sixth vote for the bill. The measure needed only one more.

There was a scramble on the republican side, and Representative Farrar, a former Lorimer republican, rose in his seat and voted aye. This started a wild demonstration.

Others who, like Farrar, had passed their votes when the roll was called, got into the band wagon and a total of 87 votes was piled up for the measure.

Representative John McCarty gave notice that he would move a reconsideration of the vote tomorrow.
